Watergate's enormous cost to the taxpayer

By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate scandal already has surpassed $1,250,000 in known legal and investigative costs and seems certain to eclipse the year-long Pentagon Papers trial as one of the most expensive public proceedings in history.

Not included in this estimate is the major cost to the taxpayer of the government's prosecution of the Watergate case and related litigation, the bulk of which is yet to come with new federal grand jury indictments expected in the weeks to come.

The Justice Department, which has hired special prosecutor Archibald Cox at a salary of $38,000 a year, would give no figures but said it is preparing a supplemental appropriations request for Congress to pay for Cox's investigation. This may provide some indication of the future dimensions of the public expense of the scandal that began unfolding last June 17 and could last for many more months.

The Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities already has received $500,000 in tax funds for its own investigation through next February, but it is sure to get all the additional money —and time—it might request later to complete its work.

Pushing the public and private costs higher are the main government trials to follow the original Watergate criminal trial last January, related court proceedings such as the indictments against former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Nixon campaign finance chairman Maurice H. Stans; defense attorneys' fees; Democratic civil suits; grand jury compensation; and the $20 a day it cost to house and feed six Watergate conspirators in the District of Columbia jail for nine weeks.

By contrast with Watergate, now nearly a year old, the case against Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo for theft of the Pentagon papers involved defense costs of an estimated $900,000 during litigation spanning two years.

The Justice Department has been unable to calculate how much it spent on the Ellsberg case before a federal judge dismissed all the charges last month in Los Angeles, but private estimates are reported to total nearly twice the defense costs—for a grand total of about $2.5 million.

The known, tip-of-the-iceberg Watergate costs incurred since the case broke last summer include Cox's salary, the Senate committee budget, the $250,000 the Democrats say they are spending on their $6.4 million civil damage suit against the Republicans, the nearly $8,000 cost of jailing the convicted Watergate bugging team, and $460,000 of Nixon campaign funds reportedly spent in behalf of the Watergate defendants.

Of this $1.25 million total, the $460,000 item could figure in any new indictments possibly charging former White House and campaign aides with obstruction of justice. There have been allegations that some of it was "hush money" used to pressure the defendants to plead guilty and remain silent.

Frederick C. LaRue, who served as a key aide to Mitchell in the Nixon re-election campaign, has told the Watergate grand jury that about $250,000 was paid out of campaign funds to help the seven original defendants. And Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former private attorney, was reported by the General Accounting Office to have disbursed $210,000 to the defendants.

Some Watergate costs are hidden in other ways.

For example, each of the seven senators on the Senate committee has assigned staff workers to Watergate —three or four full-time aides in the case of Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn.

On the other hand, these staffers would have been working on other projects and drawing salaries if there had been no Watergate and Justice Department spokesmen indicated that the federal grand jury that has met for months on Watergate would have been in session anyway, taking up other matters such as a District of Columbia police scandal.

Aside from all this is the spending by the television networks for live broadcasts of the Senate Watergate hearings, which will continue into July and — after a break in August — resume in September for an indefinite period.

SHIP BURNS AFTER COLLISION

Fireboats use heavy caliber streams to wet down 610-foot cargo container, Seawitch, after it collided Saturday in New York harbor with the Esso Brussels, background, a 699-foot Belgian tanker, setting off fires and explosions. At least seven crewmen are dead, nine missing.

Army adviser gunned down by guerrillas

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Gunmen believed to be members of a leftist guerrila group Saturday assassinated a U.S. army colonel attached as an adviser to Iran's army forces.

Firing at close range, two men on a motorcycle shot Lt. Col. Lewis L. Hawkins, 42, of Plymouth, Ind., seconds after he left his home to go to his office at 6:30 a.m., the government said.

Police said they suspected the killers belonged to a radical leftist guerrilla group which has carried out killings, bank robberies, sabotage and kidnapings, including an unsuccessful attempt to abduct former U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur Jr.

Last Thursday eight guerrillas of the leftist group were executed by a firing squad at Ahwaz in southern Iran. They had been convicted of killings and blowing up bridges and roads.

A man servant at the Hawkins home in Tehran's fashionable Abbasabad neighborhood told reporters he heard the shots and ran outside but retreated immediately when the gunmen threatened to kill him, too.

The motorcycle borne killers roared off just before Hawkins' wife Anne rushed out. "She almost broke down when she saw her husband lying in a pool of blood," the servant said. "But she came back in and fetched a blanket to cover the body and stayed with it until the ambulance and police arrived."

He said he was "too terrified" to remember any details of the killers except that they were "young men with guns." Police ordered officers throughout the Tehran area to hunt them.

Government officials declined to speculate on whether the slaying of Hawkins might have been a reprisal for the Ahwaz executions.

Hawkins had been serving in Iran since July, 1972. He was attached to the U.S. Army Military Assistance Advisory Group to the Imperial Iranian Armed Forces.

Mrs. Hawkins and one of their three sons, Lee, 5, lived with him in Tehran. Two older sons, Terry, 19, and Ronald, 18, are in the United States.

The U.S. Embassy said Hawkins earned a bachelor's degree at Presbyterian College in Clinton, S.C., and a master's at Syracuse University in New York. He also was a graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

During President Nixon's visit to Iran a year ago a bomb attack seriously injured a Tehran based U.S. brigadier general and killed an Iranian woman. The man the government identified as the bomb thrower later was caught and executed.

Iranian officials suggested the attack last May on Brig. Gen. Harold Price and the killing Saturday were intended to discourage U.S. military assistance to Iran and to frighten away U.S. military advisors.

9 missing in N.Y. harbor

7 die in ship crash blast

NEW YORK (UPI) — A containership rammed an oil tanker in early morning darkness in New York harbor Saturday, touching off a fireball explosion that set both vessels ablaze and killed at least seven men. Nine others were reported missing.

The blazing hulks drifted under the world's longest suspension bridge and spread an oil slick for miles.

The victims included John L. Patterson, captain of the American Export-Istbrandtsen line's 610-foot containership Seawitch. Surviving crewmen said Patterson apparently suffered a heart attack shortly after the collision. The New York medical examiner's office said at least three of the others were crewmen of Exxon's 700-foot tanker Esso Brussels.

By late afternoon, authorities had identified three more victims, all from the Esso Brussels. They were Rene Rome, steward; Alois Peters, boatswain; and Portas Oubina, wiper. Three bodies were not identified.

The outward bound American cargo container ship Seawitch plowed into the Belgian tanker Esso Brussels loaded with more than 9 million gallons of crude oil just after midnight. The impact triggered a string of deafening explosions and mushrooming fire balls that lit up the harbor.

"Both ships were engulfed by a flaming oil slick," said one eyewitness. "I don't know how anyone could have gotten out alive. It was just like an exploding box of fireworks."

At least 20 tugs from all the city's major towing services crisscrossed the waters, picking up survivors as the vessels, locked together by the force of the crash, drifted southward under the 4,260-foot Verrazano Bridge throwing up such intense heat that bridge authorities temporarily closed the span to traffic.

The ships drifted down the harbor into Gravesend Bay off lower Brooklyn. Fire boats put out the main fire. Rescue workers boarded the vessels and reported finding no one aboard.

The injured were taken to several Brooklyn and Staten Island Hospitals where authorities reported most of them suffered from either burns, smoke inhalation or exposure.

The 699-foot Esso Brussels was anchored off Staten Island while its cargo of oil was being unloaded. The Seawitch, got under way for Norfolk, Va., around midnight and "shortly after there was a collision with the tanker," the Coast Guard said.

Two hijackers abandon plane, flee with $50,000

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two gunmen Saturday abandoned a Colombian airliner they had hijacked in history's longest airline piracy in time and distance, then disappeared with $50,000 in cash ransom into Argentina's northern Chaco region.

Police and army units searched without success for the pair in the flat, treeless area around the city of Resistencia, 630 miles north of Buenos Aires. The hijackers jumped from the plane and fled on foot as it sat on the runway of the city's airport with its four engines accelerating for takeoff on a flight to Buenos Aires. Officials believed they had obtained a car in Resistencia to continue their escape.

The pair had identified themselves as members of a Colombian leftist organization, the National Liberation Army (ELN). In Bogota, the Colombian capital, airline officials said the two gunmen had purchased tickets for the flight they hijacked under the names of Gildardo Rivera and Aaron Howards.

At the conclusion of the epic hijacking, which began at noon Wednesday over Colombia, all other 85 passengers aboard the Electra aircraft had been released at various stops the plane made during its 2 ½ day odyssey. Only the pilot, Capt. Hugo Molina, and five other crew members remained aboard.

Show biz dope ring broken; $750,000 in cocaine seized

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Narcotics says it has broken a major international smuggling ring with seizure of $750,000 worth of cocaine and the arrest of four persons apparently using a film production company as a front

Four former residents of El Paso, Tex., who had been making feature films in South America were taken into custody Thursday.

They were identified as Charles S. Chauvet, Charles Patrick Scanlon, Eugene Phillip Barnett and Elizabeth Nichols, 19.

Frank G. Pappas, regional bureau director, said Chauvet and Scanlon were arrested in the swank Beverly Hills Hotel when they delivered three and one-half pounds of high quality cocaine to two undercover agents.

Pappas said Miss Nichols was arrested at Chauvet's home and Barnett aboard a luxury houseboat at Marina del Rey. Agents were said to have found one and one-half additional pounds of uncut cocaine at the Chauvet residence.

Scanlon gave his occupation as accountant for Show Biz, Inc., a film production company owned by Chauvet. Miss Nichols gave her occupation as actress.

Pappas said the ring had been operating between Columbia, Guatemala, Mexico and the United States.

"The film company produced feature films in South America," Pappas said. "It might well have been a front for the smuggling operation."

Agents had made some "preliminary" buys from the suspects over the past four months, Pappas said. He said the volume of the narcotic seized made it "one of the major cases we've had."

Jury recesses for weekend in Lakey case

POMONA — The jury in the murder trial of Lee Donald Lakey recessed Saturday after five days of deliberation and will reconvene on Monday.

The jury went into deliberation Tuesday afternoon, ending a trial that began shortly after 21-year-old Cheryl P. Brown was murdered Jan. 14.

Lakey is charged with strangling Miss Brown in her East San Francisco Avenue apartment. She had been moving into the apartment—her first — for several days and was murdered on the first night she was to spend in it.

In his summation to the jury Lakey's attorney, deputy public defender Carl Kandel, said the prosecution has not proved that his client killed or raped the young woman, as charged. He said she may have been choked to death by a burglar whom she surprised inside the apartment.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles Wolfe told the jury in his summation for the prosecution that Lakey arrived at Miss Brown's apartment and she let him in because she knew him. He said evidence supports the theory that she was the victim of a rape-slaying.

Political espionage papers headed for Mitchell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former Nixon campaign official has told Senate investigators that several days before the Watergate break-in, he saw the secret "Gemstone" file on political espionage which he was sure was intended for John N. Mitchell, it was learned Saturday.

Authoritative sources said Robert Reisner told of inadvertently observing the file on the desk of Jeb Stuart Magruder, then deputy campaign director who is believed ready to plead guilty and implicate others in a high-level coverup of the scandal.

Reisner, 29, was executive assistant to Magruder at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. He is to testify when the Senate Watergate Committee resumes its hearings Tuesday.

Reisner also said he was told by Magruder two weeks after the June 17 break-in that the file had been destroyed, the sources said.

"Gemstone" was Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy's code name for the file which sources close to the case say contained summaries of the wiretapped telephone conversations of Democratic officials and other materials related to a covert campaign of political espionage and sabotage undertaken in behalf of President Nixon's re-election last year.

Reisner reportedly told investigators he was "very sure" the file he saw on Magruder's desk was in a folder Magruder used to forward documents to Mitchell.

The first scheduled witnesses Tuesday are Mrs. Sally Harmony, a secretary, who has acknowledged typing transcripts of the tapped conversations, and H. A. Post, a Washington printer who prepared the "Gemstone" letterhead.

Mrs. Harmon told investigators she typed numerous intelligence memoranda and some telephone transcripts for Liddy, then a campaign committee counsel. One conversation dealt with the Democrats' financial problems with the telephone company.

The memos related to telephone wiretaps were identified by the code names "Ruby I," "Ruby II" and "Crystal." Reisner has told investigators he remembered seeing the code name "Ruby I" on the first page of the Gemstone file on Magruder's desk, and that it included glossy photographs in the back.

He did not say whether he read the contents of the file, the sources said.

It was learned that Reisner also told investigators that Liddy personally informed him and Magruder of the Watergate arrests June 17.

Magruder, who testified under oath at the Watergate trial he had no prior knowledge of the bugging, was told of the break-in while in California when he received a telephone call from Liddy shortly after noon, June 17.

LEPIRE OUTGUNNED

Montclair's Mayor Pro Tem Ernie Rowleys left was quicker on the draw as he gunned down Pomona's Mayor Ray J. Lepire in a western "shoot-out" Saturday afternoon at Pomona Valley Center. Rowley's time was 51-100 second, a whisker faster than Lepire's 62-100 second. The top gun of the afternoon, though, was not a Pomona Valley gunhand, but Lolita Levi of Paramount who won the fast draw contest with a time of 37-100 second to the delight of afternoon shoppers.

Chile police clash with rioting miners

RANCAGUA, Chile (UPI) — Riot police, firing bursts of submachine gun fire into the air, battled striking copper miners who hurled dynamite charges in a series of clashes that ended early Saturday.

Daniel Vergara, under secretary of interior, said 57 persons were arrested and six injured. He attributed the confrontation to "seditious elements, absolutely uncontrollable."

The strikers erected flaming barricades across 20 intersections in the worst explosion of violence in the 45-day walkout at the nationalized El Teniente mine, 65 miles south of Santiago.

The incidents erupted Friday night, several hours after the funeral of a miner who a military patrol had shot to death at the wheel of his autmobile earlier this week.

The federal government declared a state of emergency last month in O'Higgins Province and placed the army in control of law enforcement, as the results of strike violence.

Riot police, wearing plastic helmets and holding fibreglass shields, prevented the cortage from passing through the center of this provincial capital, generating protests from thousands of mourners.

After the funeral, groups of strikers raced through the downtown area, flinging coins and rocks at police. Later, police said, the miners hurled Molotov cocktails and sticks of dynamite.

Police fired dozens of tear gas grenades and several bursts of submachine gun fire in efforts to crush the outburst. Police water cannons barreled across the area, drenching hundreds.

During several hours of skirmishing, the miners erected barricades with old automobile tires and set them ablaze. Smoke from the barricades and tear gas fumes blanketed downtown Rancagua in the predawn hours.

El Teniente's 13,000 miners struck April 19 for a 41 per cent wage increase. President Salvador Allende's leftist government has offered a productivity bonus equal to about six weeks salary.

The government has estimated the strike at the world's largest open pit copper mine has cost Chile more than $35 million in export earnings. Copper accounts for 80 per cent of Chile's hard currency revenue.

The Kennecott Corp. owned El Teniente until nationalization of major foreign copper interests in July 1971.

Won't abdicate, says Elizabeth on anniversary

By WILLIAM F. WRIGHT

LONDON (UPI) — Britain celebrated Queen Elizabeth's 47th birthday and the 20th anniversary of her coronation Saturday with a sun-splashed panoply of military splendor. Palace officials scotched rumors she planned an early abdication in favor of her son, Prince Charles.

Huge crowds turned out in warm weather to cheer the Queen as they did for her coronation on a cold, gray morning on June 2, 1953, and to watch the Trooping the Color ceremony marking her official birthday.

As the pageant of glittering armor, clattering horses, booming drums and bearskin hats unfolded, officials at Buckingham Palace denied rumors the Queen, still radiant and revered by millions, planned an early abdication in favor of Prince Charles, 24.

"The really big occasion will be in four years time for the 25th anniversary of the queen's succession to the throne," a palace official said in explaining why no specific celebration for the coronation anniversary was planned for Saturday. "So you can take it there's nothing to the (abdication) rumors."

Elizabeth succeeded to the throne on Feb. 6, 1952, on the death of her father King George VI but was not crowned until the following year.

The palace said this year's trooping ceremony coincided by chance with the coronation anniversary. The Royal Horse Artillery fired a special gun salute from London's Hyde Park to mark the two occasions. A 41-gun salute is normally fired on the queen's official birthday.

Skylab crew may extend space stay by 10 days

HOUSTON (UPI) — The duration of the Skylab 1 flight may be extended 10 days to salvage scientific objectives if the space station crew is unable to free a jammed solar cell power generating wing by working outside the craft, a top NASA official said Saturday.

Kenneth Kleinknecht, manager of the Skylab program office at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said leaving the crew in space for 38 days offered the possibility of getting maximum power to run experiments with the solar panels now working on the crippled space station.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, meanwhile, conducted a survey from 272 miles in space of pollution in California and fields needing irrigation in Mexico.

Conrad celebrated his 43rd birthday in orbit, eating vanilla ice cream—the first ever carried into space—and enjoying an eight-minute radio chat with his wife and four sons. Jane Conrad told her husband: "We don't wish you were down here. We wish we were there."

She also said she would remain in Houston until after the repair spacewalk, which could take place Tuesday or Wednesday, and then go with the boys to the family ranch at Uvalde, Tex.

If it proved impossible to extend the solar wing outside Skylab, the space station would limp through the last eight days of its presently planned 28-day mission with hardly any power for experiments. But Kleinknecht said improved sun angles from the 29th to the 38th days would give the station plenty of power even without the wing out.

Official rules out televising space walk as too risky

HOUSTON (UPI) — A top Skylab official Saturday ruled out television of a proposed repair spacewalk outside the space station next week as an unacceptable added hazard to the already risky operation.

Kenneth S. Kleinknecht, Skylab program manager at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said the proposed work to free a stuck solar power generating wing would be dangerous enough without adding the problem of handling a TV camera.

"It would be an unnecessary risk to impose on top of the inherent risks in an EVA (spacewalk), and it does not add anything to what we are trying to do," he said. "I will be strongly against any he said. "I will be strongly against any further encumbrance for the crew.

Constantine denies connection to plot

ROME (UPI) — Exiled and deposed King Constantine of Greece denied Saturday that he was connected with a plot to overthrow the Greek government. He pledged to fight to restore democracy in his country.

The 33-year-old monarch, his queen Anne-Marie holding his hand, made his first statement since the Greek government abolished the monarchy on Friday, setting up Premier George Papadopoulos as the first president.

"Today, I declared in the most categorical terms that I had absolutely no connection with actions by officers of the navy," Constantine said in reply to Papadopoulos' charge he had helped to plan an abortive coup within naval ranks. The premier accused the king of displaying an "unforgivable lack of maturity."

Constantine pledged to "fight with all my strength as a soldier" to restore democracy in Greece.

Constantine said he welcomed a plebiscite on the monarchy, as promised by Papadopoulos, but only on these conditions:

—Lifting of martial law.

—General amnesty for all political offenses.

—Restoration of complete press freedom.

—Organization and conduct of the plebiscite by an impartial caretaker government.

The king said that if the government insists on holding a "spurious plebiscite" he would be obliged to consider himself "as the sole continuing source of legality in Greece."

Smartly dressed in a dark lounge suit, Constantine looked across the lawn of his Rome villa, and said: "I have an unshakable conviction that I shall return to my country." Anne-Marie appeared close to tears.

In Athens, the Greek government, implementing its abolition of the monarchy, accepted the resignations of a number of ranking military officers Saturday. Opposition sources said police rounded up some royalist supporters of exiled King Constantine.

Political opposition sources said royalists rounded up during the night and early Saturday included industrialist Christoforos Stratos, 49, who served as minister of the interior in a caretaker government appointed by the late King Paul in 1963. Also arrested were retired Maj. Gen. Nickalaos Fetsis and former Police Commissioner Kyriakos Spyriounis, the sources said.

DALLAS (UPI) — David Peterson, who was born into slavery in 1850 and lived more than 122 years in the obscurity of Southern cotton fields and poor urban neighborhoods, was buried Saturday in a black cemetery near his ramshackle home.

Friends packed into the Greater Emmanuel Baptist Church, a white frame building on a dirt road, to say goodbye to "Grandpa."

Peterson died Thursday after Parkland Hospital doctors were forced to amputate both of his legs. Peterson, who came to the hospital in March suffering from an infected toe, could never overcome the illness and eventually gangrene developed.

Peterson was eulogized by mourners "not for being old, but for being a man."

"He'll be missed by all of us because he was a true friend," said one man who stepped forward to address the group.

Peterson was buried in a gray coffin. During the funeral service a large spray of red carnations was draped over the coffin.

The old man lived in an upstairs garage apartment around the corner from the church. The apartment had never been completed and sat on stilts perched high in a grove of trees.

He was born in Lamateen, a rural Arkansas community that no longer exists. Government records show his date of birth as Nov. 22, 1850, during the presidency of Millard Fillmore. He had lived in Dallas since 1914 and in recent years lived with a 14-year-old grandson supporting himself and the youth with a small welfare check.

When asked how it was when he was freed from slavery, Peterson once said: "There was shoutin', jumpin' up and down and fun. Massah came down and told us, 'I command you to be free.' We knew we were glad of something, but not too many were sure what."

Accident victims' condition report

Victims of three separate automobile accidents throughout the Pomona Valley on Friday are either in good condition at local hospitals or have been released, officials report.

Steve Cardwell, 25, of 910 W. 18th St., Upland is reported in good condition in the intensive care unit of Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Cardwell drove off Webb Canyon Road Friday and tumbled about 150 feet down an embankment.

William C. Linker, 19, of 984 Vanderbilt Ave., Claremont, a passenger in the Cardwell car, was released Saturday from the hospital. He suffered a broken right hand and lacerations in the accident.

Jerry M. Telford, 30, of 1360 D St., Ontario, is in good condition at Doctor's Hospital of Montclair. He suffered a skull fracture and abrasions when he lost control of his small sports car on Mission Boulevard Friday.

Rosemary Ann Cheeseman, 33, of 610 Lamplighter Lane, Upland, was released from San Antonio Community Hospital on Saturday. She suffered a broken pelvis and minor injuries in a two-car accident at the intersection of Reservoir and First Street in Pomona on Friday.

Informer on Mafia blows cover as fashion tycoon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A star government informer against the Mafia who created a new career as a fashion tycoon has blown the cover carefully constructed to protect his life.

Litigation on file in San Francisco courts disclosed Saturday that the real identity of Paul Maris, former president of Paul Maris Co., is Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz, formerly of New Jersey.

It was Maris himself who commenced the legal action that inspired a private investigation and a countersuit that disclosed his past.

In January, 1970, Zelmanowitz and his family were kept under guard 24 hours a day by federal marshals while he was testifying at the Newark, N.J., trial of Angelo (Gyp) DeCarlo, 70, and Daniel (Red) Cecere, 53, reputed New Jersey Mafia chieftians.

The trial involved the mysterious death of Louis B. Spaerstein, 63, an insurance broker, and cash dealings in securities through a Swiss bank.

DeCarlo and Cecere were convicted on six counts of making and collecting extortionate loans. Zelmanowitz, who was under indictment for transporting $1.9 million in stolen and counterfeit securities, was given immunity and vanished.

Apparently Zelmanowitz was given new identification papers and a new identity by the Justice Department. In Washington, chief U.S. marshal Wayne B. Coburn said he was aware that Z B. Coburn said he was aware that Zelmanowitz' cover had been blown, but declined comment.

With the name of Maris he turned up in San Francisco as treasurer-controller of the Alvin Duskin knit-wear fashion house. Later, Duskin said he seemed "an outgoing guy, someone who was dynamic, and had a lot of charisma, but there also was a mystery about him."

When Duskin decided to quit the fashion business, Creative Capital, an investment company, became a major stockholder and retained Maris as president.

The new president's drive and innovations led to the firm's changing its name to Paul Maris Co.

Meanwhile, Maris maintained an expensive apartment and home, a Rolls Royce and a Mercedes Benz. He talked to expanding the company and of a plan to buy a group of 11 large discount stores.

But when visited by newsmen, he never permitted photographers to take his picture. He made allusions suggesting a past in which he operated some kind of a CIA-involved business.

Last April the fashion house stockholders abruptly ousted Maris as president, and Maris responded with a suit seeking various damages, including damage to his reputation.

The defendants brought a countersuit, claiming Maris "misappropriated to his personal use" $200,000 and misrepresented his background. He was said to have stated that he had been a member of a U.S. Army security unit in Europe from 1957 to 1971.

10th anniversary of Pope John's death

Saint, or not, peasant's son opened papacy to world

By WILBORN HAMPTON

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The late spring sun was setting over the seven hills of Rome. In the square below his window 100,000 pilgrims prayed.

For four days he had lain in pain and agony on a simple wooden bed laboriously drawing his last breaths from an oxygen mask as the world followed his struggle with death.

At exactly 7:49 p.m., 10 years ago today, Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, the peasant's son who became Pope John XXIII, passed from a coma into death.

It had been a short reign — four years seven months and six days—but it had transformed the Roman Catholic church such as had not been done in generations. He had been elected after nine ballots for what many believed to be an "interim" Papacy but, at the end, he had started a revolution.

John XXIII opened the papacy to the scrutiny of the world and the world responded with love and admiration for the farmer's son from Sotto Il Monte.

He moved among common men, criminals and children and injected a level of humanity into the Vatican which had been missing from the reigns of his predecessors.

There are those who call him a saint and his successor, Pope Paul VI, initiated the cause for his sainthood two years after his death. The cause has passed the diocesan, or local, stage but has not yet been taken up by the Vatican's Congregation for the Causes of Saints.

Saint or not, he was one of the most beloved Popes in modern times. And if the fruits of his brief labors have left his successor with the problems of a church in factions, he nonetheless swept out the cobwebs so others could start the house cleaning.

Cardinal Roncalli was patriarch of Venice when he was summoned to a conclave to elect the successor to Pope Pius XII. A friend advised him to buy only a one way ticket.

The friend reminded him of Cardinal Giuseppe Sarto, who as patriarch of Venice went to Rome to elect a successor to Pope Leo XIII in 1903 and bought a round trip ticket. Cardinal Sarto was elected Pope Pius X, the last Pope to be named a saint, and never used his return ticket to Venice.

"Silence." Roncalli said. "God save me from a similar experience."

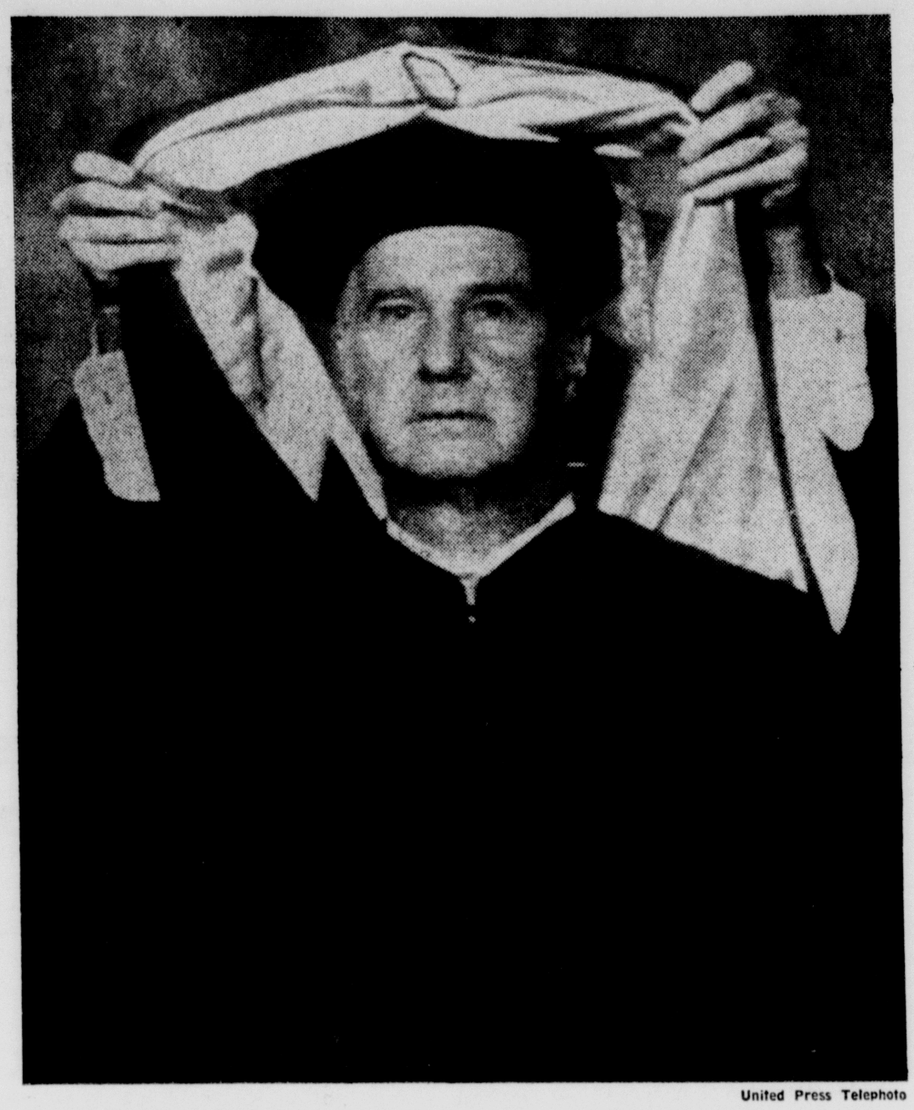
The 51 cardinals voted nine times without reaching agreement on a new Pope. They then began looking for a compromise candidate to serve briefly while the factions debated a future Pope to carry on in the tradition of Pius XII. They turned to Roncalli.

Roncalli accepted with "bowed head and shoulders to the cup of bitterness and the yoke of the cross." The "compromise" or "interim" Pope then transformed the papacy as one might throw open a window to a closed room.

"They want a Pope of transition," John XXIII once said, "but what will be the will of God? That is what counts most. In truth, what is not in transition in this world? What man? What Pope?

Nixon in seclusion for meet with Brezhnev

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — With the last in a series of talks with European leaders behind him, President Nixon began preparing Saturday for his summit meetings with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev later this month.



United Press Telephoto

VICE PRESIDENT HONORED — Academic hood for the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters is placed on Vice President Spiro T. Agnew at Drexel University graduation exercises Saturday in Philadelphia. He told graduating seniors that they will be walking into "trouble times" when they leave the campus to follow their careers.

Nixon worked in the seclusion of the Camp David mountaintop retreat where he and Brezhnev are expected to hold some of their summit meetings after the Soviet leader arrives in Washington June 18.

Mrs. Nixon, their daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, and the President's companion, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, who flew in from Key Biscayne, Fla., also were at Camp David, 60 miles northwest of Washington.

White House spokesman Gerald Warren said Nixon started going over briefing papers on various subjects he will discuss with Brezhnev and that he also reviewed material dealing with unspecified economic and energy matters.

Nixon went to Camp David Friday after returning to Washington from his two-day meeting in Iceland with French President Georges Pompidou. The consultations did not result in any dramatic announcements, and Nixon won only a "maybe" from Pompidou on a proposed super-summit to reshape the Atlantic Alliance.

But aides reported that Nixon was pleased that Pompidou had agreed to go along with plans for a July international conference of deputy foreign ministers on charting the future course of the alliance.

Nixon invited Brezhnev to Washington during their meetings in Moscow in May, 1972. Brezhnev will spend eight days in the United States, devoting most of his stay to serious negotiations with Nixon on East - West problems.

His schedule will allow little time for sight-seeing or public appearances, but the White House said he would deliver a half-hour speech on nationwide television. The date and details of the speech have not yet been worked out.

After the talks at the White House and Camp David, Brezhnev will begin a cross-country tour that may include a stop at the Houston Space Center. His trip will wind up at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., for more discussions with Nixon.

Nixon also was preparing for Tuesday's visit of Liberian President William R. Tolbert, an old friend. The First Lady attended Tolbert's inauguration in January, 1972. The White House will hold a State Dinner in his honor.

Same result with old fashioned paddle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The Controlling Board of Ohio balked Tuesday at granting $173,697 to the state Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for special behavioral studies.

State Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-Toledo, said one study would have been on the "Prediction of Stimulant Benefit in Hyperkinetic Children."

"That is what happened when I used to paddle my boy when he needed it," Cook said.

Man killed, couple hurt in car crash

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — A Rowland Heights man was killed and a Walnut couple injured Friday night in a head-on accident on Colima Road west of Brea Canyon Road Cutoff.

Mark J. Porten, 22, of 1542 Otterbein Ave., Rowland Heights was pronounced dead on arrival at Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. De Frisco of 20437 Flingtgate Drive, Walnut were injured in the accident. Mr. De Frisco was released following treatment while Mrs. De Frisco is listed in fair condition at the hospital.

According to Highway Patrol officers, the accident apparently occured when Porten swerved over the roadway's double-yellow line while rounding a curve in the road and hit the De Frisco's car head on.

Want right shade of trim

Board color coordinated?

CLAREMONT — The Claremont school board meeting will be somewhat brightened Monday night when suggested paint colors for the trim and doors of buildings at Claremont High School are shown for the board's approval.

Principal Alex Hughes and district color consultant Rufus Turner met with student representatives and decided to recommend earthy tones of orange, yellow, and gold for the building trim, doors, lockers, and walkways because the buildings are "too institutional-looking."

"They won't be too bright, because students don't want to attend a school that has bright nursery-school colors," said Hughes.

Painters the last couple months have been painting an under coater on the trim in preparation for the new colors.

Hughes said the trim colors have been battleship gray and maroon, and that there are so many shades of maroonn it has been difficult to match when repainting.

Carrageenan used for many purposes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Carrageenan is a natural thickening and gelling agent extracted from a type of seaweed. It is sometimes called Irish moss because Irish housewives collected it and cooked it with milk to make a jelled pudding. Some manufacturers use it in sugarfree dietetic jams and jellies.

Drug unit eyes joining Tri-City to expand role

POMONA — The Pomona Valley Comprehensive Drug Planning Board Monday will seek ties with the Tri-City Mental Health Authority to qualify for a $104,000 state grant to coordinate drug abuse treatment and prevention programs in the Pomona Valley area.

Tri-City's governing board will meet at 4 p.m. in the City Council chambers before the Pomona City Council holds its regular, weekly afternoon meeting.

The Tri-City board includes the entire Pomona Council, two councilmen from Claremont and one councilman from La Verne.

For purposes of fiscal accountability, the drug planning board wants to operate within the organization of Tri-City.

As proposed, the Tri-City governing board would become the parent body of the planning board. The latter would have its own advisory board whose members would come from a larger area than is included in the Tri-City district.

The planning board has applied for state funds under Senate Bill 714 to coordinate drug abuse treatment and prevention programs under a single agency.

The coordinated program would be for the cities of Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas, the Cal Poly University and Mt. San Antonio College campuses and portions of Diamond Bar and other unincorporated areas.

In its application, the valley planning board, headed by Adm. Charles Horne (Retired), proposed services that would include regional coordination, detoxification, a halfway house, residential care, crisis intervention, a hotline, research, vocational rehabilitation, placement and education-prevention programs.

Stanley Fikel, vice president of the planning board, will make the oral presentation.

At a meeting held May 15, the planning board was urged to include representation for Pomona's Mexican-Americans from low-income families.

Presently, the board includes 30 representatives from three City councils, school districts, medical associations, colleges, police departments, and laymen from Pomona, Claremont and La Verne, and a judge.

Claremont insect war

Lacewing replaces flighty ladybug

CLAREMONT — The ladybugs which gave the city nationwide television exposure in 1971 have been pre-empted this spring by the green lacewing.

Fred Hawkins, superintendent of parks and recreation, reported that tree crews have begun placing the crotches of elms, alders and holly oaks the hatched eggs or larvae of 75,000 lacewing, which feed on the pesty aphids as well as mealy bugs, mites, and moth eggs and larvae.

While the ladybug appeared to ease the aphid problem in the past, the city Parks and Recreation Department is interested in expanding its experience and knowledge of biological controls, he added.

Hawkins explained that after the ladybug had done its job and the aphids were gone, so was the ladybug in search of more plentiful food supply.

He described the green lacewing as a very common insect often found in grass, shrubs and around porch lights.

Hawkins received from a Rialto insectary three cardboard quart boxes which the firm said contained 25,000 lacewing eggs per box.

The lacewings were delivered as eggs ready to hatch or already hatching. The eggs were lost in a mixture of rice hulls and shavings. When Hawkins opened a container, he had difficulty finding the tiny, pale green eggs or the larvae, which are smaller than the period on a typewriter.

Hawkins said he had been told that the larvae grows to be nearly a half inch long "from their sucking sickle-shaped moth parts to the tip of the alligator-shaped tail."

The larvae search literally miles of plant surface during their two to three week life span. They cocoon and hatch into delicate clear-winged adults that live five to six weeks and lay eggs wherever they find aphids or honey-dew producing scale insects.

Park supervisor Chuck Meyer said that the city tree crew also has covered trees on Notre Dame Avenue, and will cover Harvard Avenue north of 10th Street, Indian Hill Boulevard, and 11th Street with the 75,000 eggs.

Meyer said that the aphid problem already has started, with drippings from trees as visual evidence.

Pomona crossing traffic limited

POMONA — For about one week starting Monday morning, vehicle traffic at the intersection of Orange Grove and White avenues will be restricted to one lane in each direction because of repair work on a sewer line.

The work, to be done by the Steve Rados Construction Co., also will involve the reconstruction of a sewer manhole.

City Traffic Engineer Richard Barrera said crews would work "around the clock" for about a week to get the work done.

Pomonan foils 2 hijackers

POMONA — A Pomona man outsmarted two gunmen who hijacked his truck by simulating engine trouble and then ran away when the men ordered him out of the truck to fix it.

Denis Paul Gendreau, 22, of 1206 Glen Ave., told sheriff's deputies he was on the westbound on-ramp to the San Bernardino Freeway at Via Verde Friday when two men stepped into the street and blocked his path.

The men pulled guns on Gendreau, police said, and ordered him to drive to San Francisco.

Gendreau told authorities he drove west on the San Bernardino Freeway, then north on the San Gabriel River Freeway. When he reached the Foothill Freeway he turned west and managed to turn off the truck's gas valve without his kidnapers noticing.

The truck ran out of gas near Huntington Drive in Monrovia. Apparently believing that it was only minor engine trouble, the gunmen told Gendreau to get out and fix it.

Gendreau went to the front of the truck, police said, and then started running, escaping down the freeway embankment. He summoned police but the gunmen had already fled when police arrived.

Both gunmen were described as white, about 5 foot 9, 150 pounds and about 25 years of age.

Three leap from path of auto

MONTCLAIR — Two highway patrol officers and a motorist they had stopped escaped injury when they jumped over a San Bernardino Freeway guard rail as another car collided with their parked vehicles.

Patrolmen Harold R. Chandler and Frederick P. Field had stopped Lewis Suhl of Downey Friday on the shoulder of the freeway east of Benson Avenue.

As the officers and Suhl stood by their cars talking, Field looked up and saw a car weaving on and off the freeway shoulder heading straight at them. He yelled "jump" to the other men.

All three leaped over a guard rail and tumbled down the freeway embankment as they heard the collision.

The driver of the third car, Lawrence P. Olsen, 23, of 651½ Alvarado St., Pomona, was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He received minor cuts and a broken nose in the accident and was treated at Doctor's Hospital in Montclair before being booked into the sheriff's jail in Ontario.

The highway patrol car was demolished and had to be towed away.

Serious approach

CHICAGO (UPI) — The world is united when it comes to breathing deep and working up a sweat.

There now are but a few countries, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, that do not take a serious approach toward physical education — emergent nations as well as those long developed.

Physical education, however, was slow in becoming a part of any school curriculum.

Reagan stumping for tax rollback

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — It costs, sounds and looks like a political campaign, and it is. It is also more. It is the first tax roll back of its kind ever attempted by any governor in the nation.

It is Ronald Reagan's most ambitious project yet after 6 ½ years as the fiscally conservative "squeeze, cut and trim" governor of the nation's most populous state.

His controversial proposal is to cut state income taxes immediately and place a permanent ceiling on future overall levies, reducing the total tax burden, he says, by 20 per cent over a 15-year period and saving the average family of four $17,000.

"It is a chance you may never have again," the potential 1976 presidential contender tells listeners in campaignstyle, one-minute radio commercials beamed throughout populous Southern California.

"Every time a radio spot goes on the air our phones ring off the hook with people asking to help," says a Reagan aide.

Assisted by an estimated 6,000 volunteers, Reagan has until Thursday (June 7) to collect 520,806 signatures to guarantee that his proposal will be placed before voters at a special statewide election Nov. 6.

The Watergate scandal has hurt his signature drive, the Republican governor acknowledges.

"If it wasn't for a national issue of this kind our plan would be pretty close to the No. 1 news item in California right now,' he believes.

His biggest problem in collecting all those signatures —representing three per cent of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial election —is an age old political dilemma: voter awareness, or name recognition.

"You find great numbers of people who just don't know anything about it," he says of the plan.

Basically, Reagan's plan would:

—Reduce the state income tax for the first year by up to 20 per cent, depending upon the size of a huge budget surplus Reagan expects to have stockpiled by the end of this fiscal year, June 30.

—Permanently reduce the state income tax by 7 ½ per cent. For couples with adjusted gross income of less than $8,000, and single persons with less than $4,000, the state income tax would be eliminated entirely.

—Gradually reduce over a 15-year period the percentage of total California personal income the state could collect as tax revenue from 8.75 to 7.15 per cent. Reagan says this would save Californians $118 million.

—Freeze all this into the state constitution. The legislature would be prevented from raising the total tax limit except in carefully spelled out emergency situations, and then only briefly. Individual taxes could be hiked or lowered by the legislature, but the overall limit could not be. The voters, of course, could raise the limit at any time.

"In 1930 (federal, state and local) government took 15 cents out of every dollar you earned in taxes. Today it's 44 cents. And if you don't do something to halt this trend, government will soon be taking more than half your earnings in taxes," Reagan says in one radio spot.

"This is the year you as citizens will have a chance to do something about the higher and higher taxes state government is taking from you," he says in another.

Reagan's 44 cent figure is disputed by A. Alan Post, the legislature's nonpartisan fiscal analyst. He places it at closer to 33 cents.

The governor sticks by his figure, but says even if it is a little off: "Taxes are still too high, by any measure, and if you don't think so just ask the people."

Which is precisely what Reagan wants to do.

He decided to go the initiative route —the first California governor to ever do so —when it became obvious the Democratic-controlled legislature would not accept his proposal, which has been pending in a Senate committee.

The majority of Republicans also appear to be cool.

"I see a real danger that if California and other states limit themselves, then the federal government will invite itself in with higher taxes and more controls," says Republican Sen. George Deukmejian of Long Beach, who previously has carried tax legislation for Reagan.

But the biggest objection of legislators —voiced privately if not always publicly —is that Reagan's plan would dilute their power.

"The governor is, to some extent, destroying representative democracy by removing authority and responsibility from the hands of the legislature," says the plan's most outspoken critic, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, a contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1974.

Moretti adds the plan would place the legislature and future state administrations in a "fiscal straitjacket."

"If that's a straitjacket, it's a hell of a fit," replies Reagan. He says the state budget still could triple under his plan from $9.4 billion during the next fiscal year to $27 billion in 15 years.

Former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, whom Reagan ousted from office in 1966, calls the plan "outrageous," "simplistic," "sheer unadulterated fakery" and "crackpot."

Such reaction is termed "the cry of the wounded spender" by Republican Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

Reagan says he is enjoying "the contest."

The 62-year-old former movie star is jetting around California as if it were a re-election campaign (he long ago announced he would not run for re-election next year), addressing big and small groups, appearing on radio and television talk shows and even walking a precinct or two.

A campaign-style headquarters has been opened on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles, the traditional heartland of political headquarters in California.

Full page newspaper ads have been purchased and radio spots have flooded Los Angeles and San Diego.

More than $250,000 in cash and pledges has been privately donated by 11,000 persons to help Reagan collect the signatures. If the measure qualifies for a November ballot, the cost of the campaign undoubtedly will run into seven figures.

Dr. Norman Topping, president emeritus of the University of California, is statewide chairman of "Californians for Lower Taxes"—the committee set up to collect the signatures.

There is some leeway in filing signatures after June 7. But to be absolutely certain the measure will qualify for a special ballot Nov. 6, coinciding with various municipal elections, the petitions must be in by June 7.

If Reagan and his volunteer army cannot collect enough signatures by then "we'll just keep going until we do, and set a later election," the governor says.

"Obviously freedom itself is in danger if we continue our present rate of tax increases."

Demand strong for grads of Cal. Maritime Academy

VALLEJO, Calif. (UPI) — Tony Cellini, 20, who will finish school this summer, expects to go right to work for $1,500 a month.

Many of the nations college graduates may find employment scarce this season, but Celini's class probably will have four times as many offers —ranging up from $1,200 — as members.

Cellini will be graduating from the California Maritime Academy which trains young men—and soon will train young women—to be ships' deck officers and engineers. Their skills also are sought by the fishing fleet, tugboats, port authorities, stevedore firms, shipping companies and the offshore oil industry.

"I have learned something useful," Cellini said. "I can't understand why people go to college to take degrees in political science."

Cellini, whose education costs him on $1,350 for all expenses including board and room in an 11-month academic year, says he has had a good time in school.

He has visited the Caribbean, South America and the South Pacific on annual three-month training voyages of the Golden Bear, the academy's 8,000-ton training ship.

As an upper classman, he has performed all the functions of ships' officers, including being the skipper. He says the licensed captain just sits and watches, and interferes only if the vessel appears to be in actual danger.

The Academy is described as semi-military. Midshipmen wear uniforms, but don't bother with hats, and their twice daily formations are informal enough to resemble a gaggle of Boy Scouts.

The state-operated Academy was in deep trouble for awhile because of proposals by Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration to abolish the school, partly to save money and partly because of fear that maritime industry shrinkage would abolish jobs for the graduates. But this crisis was resolved last year when the legislature voted that the Academy would be continued. It was required, however, to broaden its program to include oceanography and computerscience and to obtain full accreditation as a college.

Rear Adm. Joseph P. Rizza, the superintendent, thinks that however much the nation's merchant marine fleet may shrink, his graduates will still be in demand. His idea is they will be sought for new automated ships of the future and for an increasing number of jobs ashore in sophisticated activities related to shipping.

Next August, Rizza says, probably will bring the Academy's first couple of women students. The admiral doesn't doubt that they will be able to find jobs after graduating.

Use whale oil?

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. D. M. Yermanos, a University of California professor, suggests the use of a desert shrub called jojoba as a substitute for whale oil.

The agronomist says the plant could be raised in dry climates and its oil could replace that of whales, which have been put on the protected list because they are an endangered species.

Dogs are frequently allergic to foods

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: We've discovered little Whammy, our beagle, is just wild about strawberry shortcake. He prefers it to steak which is just as well, for he has no chance for that. We've discovered something else we think even more amazing. He seems to be allergic to strawberries! Have you ever heard of such a thing in a dog? He breaks out in hives, just like I used to when I was a kid.—J.J.

Dear J.J.: Food allergies in dogs are not too uncommon. Strawberries are rather infrequently the culprit, but then strawberries are not a common canine dessert, any way. I've known dogs to be allergic to strawberries, also to whipping cream. Undoubtedly, it's one or the other. Since any food allergy is cause for concern—the reaction could always be a severe one—perhaps you had better keep your strawberry shortcake sessions secret, from little Whammy, that is. Another more insidious hazard of such a dessert, especially if indulged in frequently, is the countless calories consumed and, for most species, the inevitable consequences of such consumption.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I think I saw a pregnant rhinoceros which makes me wonder how long one is pregnant? Or is this an illogical question?—Y.R.

DEAR Y.R.: Certainly not. Almost anyone encountering a pregnant rhinoceros is bothered by that question. The gestation period is 475 days, give or take a few.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What makes for the difference in size between the same kind of birds? Are the small ones actually born that way or did they get less food growing up, or what? I was watching a small group of killdeer yesterday. When two suddenly took off I could see how much bigger they were than the rest. I've noticed this with other birds, too.—N.M.

Dear N.M.: Actually, variations in size between birds of the same species are quite small. Judgment as to size is difficult anyway unless the bird is near something of known size for comparison. When they seem unusually small or large it is more likely to be due to the conditions under which they are seen rather than to any real size variation. Birds appear to vary considerably in size depending upon whether they are in flight or perching. A bird with unusually long wings such as a killdeer, looks small on the ground but large in flight. The meadowlark, a short-winged bird, gives just the opposite impression; when in flight it seems smaller.

Erma Bombeck

By ERMA BOMBECK

Child psychology books call it the "Age of Independence". . . that time in a child's life when he or she is super-critical of parents and their ideas.

I call it the Jane Fonda syndrome.

They wake up negative. They go to bed negative. And if a parent is smart he won't turn his back on them. You get the feeling if you asked them what they wanted to be if you allowed them to grow up they'd pick "orphan."

It's hard to pin down the exact moment when mother, a warm, plump symbol of apple pie and Geritol, wakes up one morning and discovers she is the Viet Cong in white anklets. But from that moment on, you can't do or say anything right.

In one day alone last week I racked up the following sins:

"You spoke to me in front of my friends."

"You think you know everything because you watch Jeopardy.

"You don't like my friend, Malcolm, because he goes barefoot in the winter."

"You think because he's little, he's perfect."

"You used my deodorant and it's personal."

"Boy, you don't even know how to shrink jeans yet."

"People who lose their car keys all the time shouldn't be allowed a license."

"You sneak up on me on the phone so you can hear."

The sins I could absorb. It's the constant contradictions and interruptions that plague me. As I reported the other morning at breakfast, "I saw an amusing thing at the supermarket. . ."

"You always say amusing," whined a voice. "Isn't anything just plain funny anymore?"

"Anyway," I started again, "I saw the fattest man ever. . . weighed about 300 pounds."

"The fattest man according to record weighed 568 pounds and was buried in a piano box, said the interruption.

"Anyway, he got stuck in the turnstile . . ."

"I'm sure," said the voice belligerently.

"Are you saying I'm not telling the truth?"

"I'm saying if he saw the turnstile and weighed 300 pounds he wouldn't have been stupid enough to go into it in the first place."

"Look," I said heatedly, "I am sick and tired of having you disagree everytime I open my mouth. You contradict me with every sentence, protest every remark and dispute my every word. You wouldn't believe me if I told you Wednesday followed Tuesday!"

"Where did you hear that?" he asked cocking his head.

High school senior king of the comics

By DONALD THORNTON

CARMICHAEL (UPI) — "I'm the king of the comics," declared 18-year-old Mitchell Mehby. "I'm the true king because I have the foremost knowledge on comics and the most valuable one in the world."

Mehby, a long-haired high school senior, is a true comic book freak.

He recently paid a record $1,801.26 for one of nine existing copies of the comic book introducing Superman to the world in 1938. The Action No. 1 book explains the origin of the Man of Steel and shows him lifting his first car. The record price was confirmed by Berkeley and Hollywood dealers.

"Everybody who owns Action No. 1 is king, but I am the king of kings because mine is the most famous in the world," Mehby said.

"The thing about Action No. 1, the book is so monumental, so unique, it created the rise of comics in this country. Thousands of new titles sprang up after its success, new publishers sprouted up."

Mehby, who has collected more than 2,000 comics in the past 10 years, says of his "babies:"

"They have a hypnotic trance about them. They are the best thing to collect. Every issue is unique. They're educational. They're pretty and their value goes up every day."

Parents who don't let their children read comic books are severely hurting them and may, in fact, be hurting the country, Mehby said.

"Comic books are more educational than school," he said. "They teach you never to kill, never to mangle, they teach you a moral.

"Every American family should make their children read one comic book a week. Actually, the comic book plays a fairly important role in the nation's economy. I feel that if you buy a comic you help a train of people."

Mehby estimates that there are 10,000 "super serious" collectors in the country today with maybe 100,000 "general collectors."

Holding the Superman comic book up for a picture, he turned to the photographer, asked what year he was born and was told, "1936."

"My god," said Mehby, "you let a fortune slip through your fingers."

Mehby purchased the Action No. 1 from Theodore Holstein, 25, a Sacramento State University student, who had bought it earlier for $1,500 from Bruce Hamilton, a Scottsdale, Ariz., collector.

Holstein, who estimates his collection of comics at $20,000, said he sold it "only to raise money for a comic equally valuable if not more politically significant.

"It cost me $1,000 —the first Captain America comic published in 1941. The cover has Captain America actually hitting Hitler in the face," he said.

Leonard Brown, a manager of Bennett's Bookstore in Hollywood, one of the largest comic dealers in the country with a stock estimated at 500,000 issues ranging in price from a nickel to $600, said the comic business has been very steady for the past five years.

He disagreed with Mehby on the number of very serious collectors, putting their total at 1,000. But he did estimate there were tens of thousands of small collectors.

He also confirmed that the price Mehby paid for the Action No. 1 was a record, but added, "One person buying something doesn't make a market. If a comic changes hands at that price it undoubtedly was one of a kind and won't be repeated."

Brown went into the comic collecting business 12 years ago. It spurted about six years ago when old comics received national publicity, but has proved it wasn't a fad and remained steady ever since, he said.

What's behind America's infatuation with the comic book, especially old ones?

"It's primarily nostalgia," said Brown. "There are other deeper reasons but nostalgia is the driving force."

"It's one of America's greatest pastimes," said Holstein. "It provides an escape for individuals so they won't have to look ahead, so they can look back."

Mehby was more explicit: "It's sort of a hypnotism. It will drive people to do most anything."

Food stamps are sold as postage

NEW YORK (UPI) — Food stamps in many foreign countries are postage, not discount coupons for low income families. Hundreds of nations issue thousands of such stamps picturing almost every vegetable and fruit, grain, spice, meat and farming process, says Raymond Schuessler in "Gusto International," a new quarterly magazine sold in food stores. Russia leads the world in the number of food stamps, he said.

Cattleman sells product direct to customer--head, hide and all

MESQUITE, Tex. (UPI) — Young, tall, with a close-clipped shock of reddish-blond hair and wearing orange boots, Terry Hollan looks like the cattleman he is.

But more often than you'll find him leaning on a rough rail fence, he'll be quoting cattle prices from behind a walnut-grained desk on the second floor of a bank, manning a telephone and punching a hand calculator.

Such is the nature of cattle dealing these days. 8

Spurred by the spring housewife meat boycott and the subsequent ceiling on meat prices levied by President Nixon, Hollan and his business partners in the Diamond Cattle Co., are selling cattle directly to consumers, cutting out the middlemen he said make market pices too high.

Head, Hide and All

Hollan said his type of business may be the coming thing. He offers the consumer his choice of more than 25,000 head of cattle at 49 cents per pound —head, hide, bones and all.

"You want beef? You come out here and you can cart the calf of your choice away for your family," Hollan said, swinging his orange boots onto a nearby table. "Put it right in the trunk and away you go or drive away the whole herd if you're that hungry."

Hollan said there is nothing unusual about his going straight to the consumer, cutting out the middlemen.

"What we're doing is a form of marketing that has been in existence since the beginning of man—one man going up to another and buying the produce he needs," he said. "When God made men and bartering, He didn't see any particular need to create a third man to stand between them and state the prices."

The Diamond Cattle Co., has run advertisements in Dallas-area newspapers that are direct:

"Eliminate Middleman"

"Enjoy steak for the price of hamburger! Eliminate the middle man completely. Buy direct from the ranch choice Texas corn-fed beef. No free gifts, come-on's, gimmicks or price switching — just a straight beef sale from cattlemen."

If the buyer doesn't want to carry off a live animal at 49 cents a pound on the hoof, he may purchase a dressed carcass for 51 cents per pound or have the beef packaged and delivered for 56 cents per pound. All prices are based on "live weight"—the weight of the cow at the time it is sold, minus 4 per cent shrinkage.

The ads have brought some calls from the Dallas Better Business Bureau, which claims "live weight" is deceptive and misleading to the public.

"We are not retailers or packers," Hollan said. "The only way we could sell these cattle is 'live weight' because the last time we see them when they're going out the gate is with their skins on and their tails a-waggin'.

"We're not going to get rich selling this a-way. But at least we are not going to lose any money either.

BBB "A-Fussin'"

"The Better Business Bureau has been feudin' and a-fussin' with us about our supposedly misleading the public. But hell, we're stating like it is. Furthermore, we explain to the buyer that there's no way he's going to get more than about 60 per cent meat from that 700 or 800 pound animal. We also tell him that he's going to pay for the whole carcass—the whole 700 or 800 pounds—and that he'll still be getting a good deal. The meat he'll put in his freezer, packaged and precut, will cost him about $1 a pound."

The current status of the cattle business has driven down the price of calves and cattle by $10 to $15 per head, he said.

"What is happening now to the producers could wreck the cattle business," Hollan said. "Producers would like to sell, but the retailer is refusing to buy from the packer and the packer is refusing to buy from the producers—except for outlandish low prices."

He said there is only one alternative to the meat crisis.

"We've got to get back to selling face to face—not middlemen," Holan said. "It was the dealing with people first-hand that made ranching and cattle selling the business it was. There's still a little of that, but not as much as there used to be. Now it's phones and figures."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your energy stirs everybody, may get you in the middle. Any invitation to make easy money is a risk, not an investment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If your clothes are not quite right, give serious thought to replacements soon. It's a good pastime on a day of mild surprises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Survey your family conditions this quiet Sunday. Leave driving to others, or proceed with care.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The more completely you leave the workweek behind you, the better. Avoid commitments. Meditation comes naturally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be receptive, let life flow in a deep quiet tide. An unfortunate incident may put you into an unaccustomed role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pursuit of your goals can make this a most noteworthy Sunday. Achievements may include insight into yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let the spiritual factors of life guide you past all sorts of unproductive distractions. Avoid excess.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend time with loved ones. Altho friends bustle about, you needn't. Avoid spending money.

MONDAY, JUNE 4

Your birthday today: Purposeful change is your motto for the coming year. Competition this year inspires you to superior achievement. Today's natives are natural travelers who often select some technical subject for special study.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Use lively ideas promptly, even in haste, while you're in the rush of enthusiasm. Do not "favors" today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Though closer and more affectionate, associates can impede your work — find a middle course. There's a possibility of increasing earning power.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Intuition leads you thru a creative day. Humor sparkles. Be hospitable and make your friends comfortable.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Recent puzzles are resolved when more details are completed. Bargain hunting succeeds, for once.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Exert yourself to be seen and heard this extremely productive day. Ask for what you're sure is yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): More has been working in your favor than you have realized. Technical advice can be helpful, but do your own thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give others chance to function, altho you have to redo their errors later; everybody learns from the experiment. Home life has rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Begin a new career activity. Forgive an awkward friend rather than lose him by criticism.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Open your week's adventure boldly, make new commitments. Technical or legal procedures go well. Use the evening for planning.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Extend your welcome spirit to those you like. Sentimental ventures are facilitated by circumstances beyond public view.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be prepared to reach far and wide, travel, to get what you need. Resistance develops late in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Sharing means much more than letting others have part of your material prosperity. Encourage loved ones toward creativity.

FTC will keep ad vigilance despite outcry

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The new chairman of the Federal Trade Commission has reaffirmed the commission's intention to keep an eye on the advertising industry despite recent criticisms by a national ad agency.

Lewis A. Engman told a county Bar Association meeting recently that he believes "a collision can be avoided" between the regulative agency and the ad industry.

'Given the enormous role which the advertising industry plays in this country," he added, "there is no way that the FTC can abdicate its responsibilities to monitor and, where we believe necessary, to challenge the dose of advertising which is being administered to the public every day of the year."

Engman, who was appointed three months ago to replace outgoing chairman Miles Kirkpatrick, was responding to recent charges by Tom Dillon, president of the Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne advertising firm. After the FTC questioned several ads developed by the firm, Dillon accused Engman of not paying enough attention to violations by smaller agencies.

"I cannot accept the suggestion," Engman said, "that we are picking on big advertisers while ignoring the little ones."

"I assure you, we will concentrate on both," he said.

Year-round schools seen coming thing in California

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California schools quietly are shedding their traditional summer vacations —born in frontier days when children were needed for harvesting —and switching to controversial year-round programs.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles predicted one year ago, "Sooner or later we'll have year-round schools in most districts in California."

His prophecy seems to be coming true despite objections by some legislators and teachers who say the switch to year-round schools is "potentially as divisive as the busing issue."

In 1971, only one California school, in Alameda County used a year-round operation. This year there are 49 year-round schools, and education experts say the number will double next year.

And large districts such as San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento are contemplating joining the movement.

What's causing the upsurge?

The reason cited most often is the financial pinch preventing new school construction.

The most common type of year-round school in California is the 45-15 plan where students attend classes for 45 school days or nine weeks and then have three weeks of vacation.

It results in about 25 per cent fewer students attending school at any one time and in the use of facilities during the summer when they otherwise would stand idle.

What this means to low-wealth districts is they can delay school bond issues or the prospect of double sessions, at least temporarily.

Another popular aspect of year-round schools is that they permit parents, students and educators to take vacations throughout the year instead of during summer when resorts are crowded and expensive.

"I really love it!" exclaimed Penny Roper, a third-grade teacher in Los Angeles' ABC Unified School District. She took a winter vacation in Hawaii this year, splashing in the surf when other California teachers were busy at blackboards.

However, the year-round concept can be troublesome for families accustomed to long summer vacations and or teachers who like three-month holidays for far-away trips or scholastic achievement.

"A decision to go year-round affects the daily lives of thousands of families," Assemblyman Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach, said recently. "It turns their lives upside down."

Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City, agreed saying conversion to year-round schools was "potentially as divisive as the busing issue." He said citizens should be given the right to vote on any hiiee.the right to vote on any proposed conversions.

Les Edwards, president of Milpitas' Federation of Teachers, contends the change over costs can wipe out any potential savings from the year-round system. Edwards also said the switch can cause "educational chaos" in districts which have not prepared teachers for innovative teaching techniques needed in year-round classes.

Even Riles doesn't think 12-month schools are the answer for all districts.

"Parents must be involved in the planning," he said.. "If not, forget it — it won't work."

However, Riles added, "Year-round schools can't hurt anything and they may do a lot of good."

To encourage more schools to join the year-round movement Riles is sponsoring legislation giving districts $25,000 incentives to help pay for change over costs.

He also would like the legislature to repeal a recently enacted law giving teachers veto power over their participation in year-round classes. Instead, Riles wants to pay teachers more if they have 12-month courses.

Perhaps the most unusual year-round program in California is run by ABC Unified. Attendance by both teachers and students is flexible, as long as they go to school for a minimum 176 days.

"They can't squawk," said Superintendent Charles W. L. Hutchison, "They can do anything they want."

He explained that teachers keep complete records on the weekly progress of individual pupils. If a student takes a week off, he merely picks up where he left off.

"The secret is the involvement of people," Hutchison said, noting that the adult-student ratio in his schools is about 9-to-1 because of volunteer aides, including parents.

There are other potential pluses for year-round schools, including:

—A reduced need for review because of less "forgetting time" between sessions.

—Less boredom in classrooms because of shorter, more concentrated learning periods. "When I get sick of school, I can go on vacation," explained one youngster. "And when I'm tired of loafing, I can go back to school."

—Less vandalism to school property because of year-round occupancy.

—More classroom space in districts where schools are being reconstructed to make them earthquake-safe.

The Hayward Unified School District pioneered year-round schools in California when it converted Park Elementary School in 1968. The district used a 50-15 plan, with students attending school for about 10 weeks, then vacationing for about three weeks —all year long. Everyone is in school for the same 10 weeks, then on vacation at the same time.

There are no high schools on a year-round basis in California, primarily because of their more rigid schedules and class requirements.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

About 1543, Nicholas Copernicus, the Polish astronomer, published his heliocentric theory which stated that the planets circled the sun. Galileo defended Copernicus' theory, but in 1616 the Inquisition at Rome declared the assertion of the earth's motion to be heretical and placed works of Copernicus, Kepler, and Galileo on the Index until 1822, The World Almanac recalls.

Flexible guide for citizens

S.D. gets five-year plan for street, park projects

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — City Manager Robert Poff has presented a five-year capital improvement plan which projects spending $1,226,800 on street improvements and $678,200 on city parks through 1979.

Poff said the plan is a guide to the citizens of the community who desire to know when and where a particular project will commence. The City Council has accepted the plan for study.

Funds to support the $1,905,040 budget of the five-year program will be derived from the following sources: state gasoline tax, $786,040; county highway-through cities allocation, $266,500; federal revenue sharing, $174,300; and the property development tax, $678,200.

Poff said the plan is flexible. He said it could be reviewed yearly to reflect the needs of the community.

A 13-acre park adjacent to Freeway 210 at the Covina Boulevard offramp will be developed over the five-year period at a cost of $185,000. A total of $55,600 will be spent in 1974-75 for acquisition, a sprinkling system, landscaping and the first stage of development of two back-to-back lighted ballfields.

The park will be fully developed with restrooms, a storage building, parking, walkways, equipment and lighting by 1979.

Other projects include:

—A two-year program will complete a horse ring and show park on three acres at San Dimas Avenue at the Oberg Floor Control Channel at a cost of 39,000. The project is slated to begin next year.

Poff said the park would be utilized by horsemen as a show grounds and training area. It is estimated that $1,000 per month would be derived from rental of the site to the different horsemen's associations for shows and other uses. A total of $23,300 will be spent on the project in 1974-75.

—A total of $50,500 is slated to be spent developing the 10-acre Marchant Park which is located at Juanita Avenue and Delancey Street. The city will spend $33,700 next year improving the park with a snack bar and improvements to the ball fields, lighting, parking, and a sprinkler sytem.

—A $21,600 amount will be spent on Villa Park development on 2½ acres located at the north side of Covina Boulevard near Lone Hill Avenue. The small neighborhood park will be developed in 1976-77 with turf, landscaping, a hardtop game court, play and park equipment and shelters.

—Rhoades Park in downtown San Dimas at Bonita Avenue and Monte Vista will be developed with a western appearance to blend in with the downtown redevelopment theme. A total of $2,500 will be spent on western playground structures and park equipment.

—The 10-acre Lone Hill Park at Shellman Street and Juanita Avenue will be improved next year with lighted tennis courts, handball courts, a multi-use building and park equipment. A total of $56,900 will be spent through 1977.

At 84, he's still a fireman at heart

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Miss La Verne, Robin Benedict, congratulates Hubert (Scubie) Mills after he was honored Friday night at a Chamber of Commerce dinner as La Verne Citizen of the Year.

LA VERNE — La Verne's Citizen of the Year for 1973 came to this community in 1905, when it was a village named Lordsburg.

He has lived in this community since that time.

He was honored at the annual La Verne Chamber of Commerce dinner for his long years of devoted service.

He is Hubert T. (Scubie) Mills.

Mills was nominated for this honor by his fellow volunteer firemen. He continues as an active member of that group at 84.

It was recalled at the dinner that one of the highlights of the year for the volunteer firemen is Christmas morning when they take Santa throughout the community with goodies for the children. Mills always is the first one to arrive at the station and he annually fixes breakfast for the crew.

In reading minutes of the firemen's monthly meetings, it became evident that Mills is a faithful member and has been for 55 years. For the past 25 years he has been house chairman in charge of all dinners.

Mills was La Verne's rural postman from 1910 to 1955. He carried mail from the La Verne Post Office to people in the surrounding area. As the only person outside their immediate families many residents saw during the week, he heard many tales about family problems.

"I could write a book about my experiences," said Mills.

Research on Mills turned up the fact that the City of La Verne owed him $25 since early days, and if interest were to be added, it would be a considerable sum.

Lordsburg's first mayor, Henry Kuns, wanting to beautify the community, decided trees should be planted along the streets and in the park across from his home.

He ordered a supply of deodora and camphor trees. They arrived by freight from Pasadena with a representative from the nursery. The railway agent would not release the trees until the $25 freight charge was paid.

The representative did not have the money. Kuns could not be located. The Pasadenan went to a local bank and asked for a 90-day loan.

The banker said not without a co-signer.

Mills was at work at that hour in the post office. He heard of the man's dilemma. He went along as the co-signer.

At the end of the 90 days, the Pasadenan could not be found to pay back the $25. Mills had to make good on the debt. Kuns and the City of La Verne never repaid Mills.

Mills, who now lives under the shade of some of those same deodoras on Third Street, says their beauty is pay enough.

Affixed is his original fireman's badge.

Close to 200 community residents attended the dinner, which also was a recognition for all La Verne firemen. Thirty-five volunteers and employes and their wives were guests of the chamber, other civic organizations and individuals.

Watergate angers GOP businessmen

Newsmen who travel the big city speech circuit these days find, not surprisingly, that Republican businessmen are among the country's most irate citizens over Watergate.

The reasons are simple, of course. They fear for the economy, and they don't like to believe that their party can be guilty of such depredations upon the political process.

But observations like this convey no real idea of the turmoil Watergate has stirred in the minds of many Americans.

In one case, a speechmaker asked a businessman audience how many present felt President Nixon was involved in White House cover-up efforts. A show of hands indicated 80 per cent.

He then asked how many, believing this, would vote for him again against Sen. George McGovern. Answer: 80 per cent.

Since their outrage at Watergate is so strong, we suspect that more than old-fashioned party habit is reflected in such a response. Not the least thing to be said about last November's balloting is that it was a huge vote of no confidence in McGovern. Nothing learned about him in the intervening months has made him more palatable to the voters.

What a dilemma, then, for the American electorate. What choices!

Maybe men with such reclusive traits as Richard Nixon should never occupy the White House. By the same token, perhaps men with such devastatingly limited appeal as McGovern exhibited should never be nominated.

Is there something terribly wrong with the process by which we choose our presidential prospects? Polls may not indicate that Watergate is cutting that deep, but the question is one that deserves to be thrust into the realm of public debate in these unsettling days.

Despite all the furore about "dirty tricks" and the accumulation and spending of huge sums of money in campaigns, there is no impressive evidence that these factors can get you nominated.

If money would do it, New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would have made it long ago. Even aging Averell Harriman might have beaten out Adlai Stevenson in 1956. A serious candidate has to have big money, but money just won't buy the prize.

Manipulation ("dirty tricks") might play a role in a close election, though it seems not to have affected any key nomination battles. Mr. Nixon didn't need the absurd Watergate conspiracy in 1972, but he may well have been decisively hurt by alleged widespread vote-stealing in Illinois, Texas and elsewhere in his close loss in 1960.

The critical question is: What does get you nominated? The answer, from the record, seems to be largely a combination of the candidate's drive, desire and energy plus a truly skillful, dedicated corps of delegate-rustlers. Normally, a centralist party position is a help, but McGovern won without it.

Do these crucial candidate attributes, so useful in the choosing process, translate into good presidential performance? Watergate makes that the most puzzling question of the day.

Gossip for today

Since certain Senators think that they ought to be doing SOMETHING to earn their pay and since the President hasn't yet claimed executive privilege for representatives of the diet industry—a Senate committee is keeping busy these days holding hearings to determine whether or not certain types of dieting shouldn't be declared inimical to the health of the average American citizen. And while they're at it, those committee members might well subpoena the U.S. Agriculture Department which is also suspect where reducing is concerned.

This because of a recent bulletin the Department has issued declaring that an average American family of 4 can eat on $35 a week. That $35 figure, by the way, averages out to about 36 cents a pound for food, based on statistics which indicate that most Americans will eat about 45 tons of food in a lifetime. So, as the old saying goes, the fat's in the fire—or perhaps I should say, getting rid of excess fat is what your Senators are now all fired up about. It's crises like this that keep a democracy on its toes but, as a world renowned psychiatrist recently remarked: "Crises are good for you."

Nixon's wish for limited probe

WASHINGTON — Declaring "it was the President's wish," H. R. Haldeman asked the CIA last June to intervene with the FBI to limit the Watergate investigation to the five men who were arrested inside Democratic Party headquarters.

He promised that acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray "would be receptive as he was looking for guidance on the matter." The once-powerful Haldeman has now been deposed as White House chief of staff.

From our CIA sources, we have obtained internal memos which claim the CIA's two top bosses at the time, Director Richard Helms and Deputy Director Vernon Walters, were summoned to the White House on June 23, 1972, less than a week after the Waterbuggers were caught.

Haldeman told them the incident "was getting embarrassing" and asked Walters to call on Gray and suggest that the arrest of the five suspects "should be sufficient and that it was not advantageous to have the inquiry pushed . . ."

Obeying orders, Walters saw Gray the same day. "I reported," Walters recorded afterward, "that if the investigations were pushed 'south of the border,' it could trespass on some of our covert projects, and in view of the fact that the five men involved were under arrest, it would be best to taper the matter further."

Gray was quoted in the CIA memos as suggesting the "problem was how to low key this matter now that it was launched." He said "this was a most awkward matter to come up during an election year, and he would see what he could do."

The account of the White House attempt to suppress the investigation is contained in a memo which Walters dictated on June 28, 1972. It describes the June 23 meeting with Haldeman and John Ehrlichman in Ehrlichman's White House office.

Declares the memo: "Haldeman said that the 'bugging' affair at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate apartments had made a lot of noise and the Democrats were trying to maximize it.

"The investigation was leading to a lot of important people, and this could get worse. He asked what the connection with the Agency was, and the Director repeated that there was none.

"Haldeman said the whole affair was getting embarrassing, and it was the President's wish that Walters call on acting FBI Director Patrick Gray and suggest to him that since the five suspects had been arrested, that this should be sufficient and that it was not advantageous to have the enquiry pushed, especially in Mexico, etc.

"Director Helms said that he had talked to Gray on the previous day and had made plain to him that the Agency was not behind this matter, that it was not connected with it and none of the suspects were working for nor had worked for the Agency in the last two years.

"He had told Gray that none of his investigations was touching any covert projects of the Agnecy, current or ongoing.

"Haldeman then stated that I could tell Gray that I had talked to the White House and suggest that the investigation not be pushed further. Gray would be receptive as he was looking for guidance on the matter.

"The Director repeated that the Agency was unconnected with the matter. I then agreed to talk to Gray as directed. Ehrlichman implied I could do this soon, and I said I would try to do it today. . . .

"On returning to the office, I called Gray, indicated that this was a matter of some urgency and he agreed to see me at 1430 that day."

In other words, the White House pair directed Walters to intervene with the FBI, despite repeated disclaimers that the CIA was involved in the Waterbugging or could be hurt by the FBI investigation.

Indeed, Helms had already made it plain to Gray that the FBI investigation wouldn't jeopardize any covert CIA operation. Walters, nevertheless, carried out the White House orders and spoke to Gray about tapering the investigation. Subsequently, the CIA resisted White House pressure to participate in the Watergate coverup.

The CIA memos also entangle President Nixon in the coverup. Haldeman said the intervention with the FBI "was the President's wish." Of course, Haldeman may have misused the President's name. But it took another 10 months for a reluctant Nixon to fire Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Then he praised them in the process.

For another month, the two aides continued to use White House offices and to ride around in White House limousines. The public was treated to the spectacle, for example, of the accused pair showing up at the courthouse in a gleaming White House limousine to answer charges against them.

Berry's world

"Will everyone kindly get a hold of himself? This is a directors' meeting, not an 'encounter group'."

Downgrades holy profit motive

Whether he is representative of a new breed of corporation president or is a lone "maverick," businessman Jay Monroe delivered some interesting comments recently to the New Enterprise Club of the Harvard Business School.

"We have to break with the maximizing-of-efficiency tradition," said Monroe, president of the Tensor Corp. "The concept that all is fair in the pursuit of increased earnings per share is dangerous and simplistic. . . The whole world could explode."

He clamped down particularly hard on "MBA-type" (master of business adminstration) thinking which, he alleges, equates success with profits.

To Monroe, "success is measured by a company being in a sufficiently good position to be able to innovate." But formalized business tradition, he claims, discourages innovation.

"I am not putting down profit per se," said Monroe. "But there are other things to be derived from a company apart from building profits for stockholders."

As far as stockholders are concerned, "I don't feel any obligation towards them, apart from complying with Securities Exchange Commission regulations as they relate to sales of an initial issue. . . If they still choose to invest, then that's their business.

"I don't think one owes even that much, however, to the subsequent investors because they didn't invest in the company, they simply bought the stock from somebody else. If they're not satisfied with their investment, they can sell it. They're just in it for the ride."

If it was going to cost, say, 30 cents a share to invest in antipollution equipment for example, Monroe would advise his stockholders of this, but would also tell them that "they owe it to society to improve the environment."

This kind of corporate thinking is refreshing, and maybe a little courageous.

PAUL HARVEY

Sen. Eagleton, the Demo who won

Sen. Tom Eagleton, since he was rescued from the path of the landslide in 1972, has not been able to do anything wrong. Tom Eagleton is the Democrat who won.

Have you been paying attention to the public utterances and the personal tending-to-business of Missouri's Sen. Eagleton?

The man Sen. George McGovern dumped because his emotional stability was in question has demonstrated every symptom of superb mental health: poise under stress, serene forgiveness and a gentle, natural sense of humor.

An insecure person in his position might be expected to divert criticism to others; on the contrary, Eagleton shows no such inclination.

At Akron University, asked about high food prices, he said, "It's been a dreadful crop season for our farmers; prices will moderate when the weather gets better."

Asked about Watergate, he replied, "All political parties spy on one another; the Republicans got caught at it." Asked about President Nixon's resumption of bombing in Indochina, Eagleton called it "disappointing."

And asked about his own personal political prospects, he laughingly replies that whenever any party official telephones from now on he, Eagleton, will begin the conversation with "First, have you heard about my mental health?"

The fact is that his mental health is now such a lifeless issue that nobody in either party shows any inclination to run against him for senator in 1974.

The man who was propelled from obscurity to fame by a kick in the britches less than one year ago now receives 10 times more requests for personal appearances than he can fill.

More significant than today's applause is the fact that Tom Eagleton was hospitalized three times in the 1960s for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue"—what we used to call a "nervous breakdown"—and has overcome.

The senator has to know that the one-in-ten Americans now in mental hospitals are the benefactors of his triumph. It takes purposeful remembering to realize that just 15 years ago we did not even speak on radio such words as "retarded" or "breast surgery" or even "cancer."

Courts of law associated "insanity" with "criminals" and any mental sickenss was a family shame. During 15 days in July of 1972 the attic windows were flung open. And in the months since, the important public attitude toward humankind's most common malady has been so altered that the new issue of the AMA's "Archives of General Psychiatry" reports: "Most former mental hospital patients now find their jobs waiting, their family relationships improved, the old stigma is no more."

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Information gap obvious in capital

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — America can lose a lot in translation for those of us news types who spend most of our time in the nation's capital. The pace is often too furious to reflect that the loud-spoken few who consistently monopolize all phases of the communications media do not necessarily represent the the views of the majority.

But, like the fable of the "Emperor's Clothes," we tend to relieve our hurried situation by shutting our eyes to the obvious and accepting for fact that which is paraded for consumption.

When a Ted Kennedy or a George McGovern pontifically solemnizes that Watergate is the ultimate political horror, we nod wisely and rush to tell the world that we have learned from sincere authority.

When the Supreme Court strikes down the death penalty and uplifts the "artistic" value of pornography, we shudder with relief to know that mass murderers like Charles Manson have escaped execution, then run out to see if Marlon Brando really does "let it all hang out."

Meat prices go higher and consumer advocates say cattle rancers are gouging the public. There is no hay balers union for critics to admonish. So hay can now sell for a dollar per bale, when just recently it sold for 60 cents. Neither has anyone attacked artificial inseminators for failing to devise a shorter gestation period for cows to speed production of calves.

Events carefully staged

Washington is publicity minded. Events seldom just happen, they erupt; carefully staged by experts in promotion. Timing is usually the key to good exposure. Information experts know when to feed what to whom for widest coverage.

With a Republican administration in charge, congressional Democrats find themselves hours or even days behind GOP members in receiving news of grants or other special interest items for their states or districts.

A standing rule with federal agencies is that Republicans will be informed first. It may just be a phone call to advise that a particular release is on the way, but it is nearly always enbugh advance to insure that Republicans will show up first in the local newspapers.

Democrats do the same when they control the White House; so, on the surface, this little bit of subterfuge does not seem too important. But take a state like Nevada, with one freshman Republican representative and two senior Democratic senators. The information gap is obvious, and for those who follow politics could give the impression that the senators are resting on their laurels.

Straight to the problem

A trip away from here is the best remedy for it all. Visiting with the real majority helps cleanse and revitalize. One relearns that Americans are really pretty decent people, after all.

People are more concerned with good educations for their children. They truly resent the hindrance of busing and feel their leaders in Washington have let them down.

According to polls, a substantial majority of the nation wants the death penalty brought back, and even administered with more frequency. In the Washington vernacular, that suggestion is not chic. Of course, with a ready pipeline to the treasury, Washington can station a policeman on every corner and brag that the crime rate is going down.

The silent majority does not portray a facade of tedious morality to make a point. They talk straight to the problem at hand, and wonder why the simpleness of it all evades the nation's planners.

Thorny sign issue tops busy Pomona council list

POMONA — The City Council will hold a rehearing Monday night on an application for a conditional use permit that previously has been approved once and rejected two times.

Edward DeNoyelles Jr., applied for the permit to allow more than 10 square feet of sign area at his Ed's Bail Bonds business at 500 W. Mission Blvd.

The bail bondsman has two on-site signs at the location, which lies within the Civic Center Overlay District. The district restricts sign area to 10 square feet. DeNoyelles' two window signs exceed this limit.

The planning commission following a hearing March 28 denied the request, ruling that a single, 10-square-foot sign would provide adequate identification.

In its resolution, passed 3-1, the commission also said that a sign "greater in area than the permitted 10 square feet, will appear larger than the sign that identifies the (Barrister) building and all uses included within it."

DeNoyelles appealed the commission's decision and a hearing was held before the council on tne eve of the April 17 municipal elections.

That council overruled the planning commission and granted the permit on a 3-2 vote.

The decision later was spelled out in the form of a resolution and resubmitted for formal approval on April 30 to the council, which then included two new members, Mayor Ray J. Lepire and Councilman Ben Ochoa.

Since Lepire and Ochoa had not heard the evidence at the hearing, they were ruled ineligible to vote.

A motion to reject the council resolution was supported by Councilmen Charles W. Bader and R. T. French and opposed by Councilman Adrian T. Wright.

City Atty. Patrick Sampson ruled that the motion died because it did not receive the necessary majority of three votes.

He said the council in effect had changed nothing and therefore, that the commission's decision would stand.

L. Guy Lemaster Jr., attorney for DeNoyelles, subsequently requested a second hearing before the council and this was granted May 7 on a 5-0 vote.

More than 40 other matters are scheduled for the council's 8 p.m. meeting, including:

—Opening of bids and oral auction for food concessions in city parks.

—Hearing on determination of public necessity for an underground utility district, in Holt Avenue between Dudley Street and Hamilton Boulevard.

—Hearing on appeal of planning commission resolution denying variance for free-standing pole sign at 1575 E. Holt Ave.

—Hearing on appeal of planning commission resolutions denying conditional use permit and variance for 2155 Murchison Ave.

—Planning commission resolution recommending approval of parcel map for the northwest corner of Grove and Garey avenues.

—Request of First Baptist Church for waiving of fees for a conditional use permit.

—Hearings on the revocation of massage technician permits for Angela Scott and Karen M. Talley.

—Second reading of two ordinances providing for the position of assistant city adminstrator and increasing the salary of a staff psychiatrist.

—First reading of an ordinance, held over from May 14, increasing the speed limit on La Verne Avenue, from Garey to Mountain Avenue, from 25 to 35 miles per hour.

—Emergency and first reading of ordinance changing the rate of tax on dwelling units.

—Four resolutions authorizing agreements between the city and Title Insurance and Trust Co., between the Redevelopment Agency and Title Insurance and Trust, between the city and Security Title Insurance Co. and between the agency and Security Title Insurance, for title services.

—Resolution directing notification of owners to install sidewalk on the south side of Philadelphia Steet, from Towne to Virginia avenues.

—Eight resolutions confirming summary abatement at 990 W. 9th St., 741-743 W. 10th St., 2047 Arthur St., 1732 Elaine St., 2359 Gabriel Dr., 2207 Marquette Ave., 2354 S. Park Ave., and 2374 S. Park.

—Resolution reaffirming interest in major rapid transit network in metropolitan Los Angeles area with connection of San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys to the Ontario International Airport.

—Recommendation of water department manager for agreement with the Foothill Beverage Co. for fire protection service.

Pomona will get state land for F.D. site

POMONA — Plans for a new Pomona fire station and training facility can move ahead under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The legislative measure, sponsored by Assemblyman Bill Lancaster, R-49th Dist., will allow the state to transfer 6.8 acres of land to the city for fire station use.

The land has been declared surplus by the state and is immediately north of and adjacent to the Pacific State Hospital staff residences.

The site is bounded on the east by San Jose Creek, on the north by Temple Boulevard and the west by the existing state hospital property line.

"This station will provide improved fire protection for residents of this area and greatly improve service to the 1,800 patients at Pacific State Hospital as well as parts of Cal Poly University," said Lancaster.

Assembly Bill 151 had the support of both the administration of the hospital and the city.

Scripps grads to hear newswoman, alumna

CLAREMONT — Ruth Ashton Taylor, KNXT-TV newscaster, will speak at Scripps College's 43rd annual commencement June 10 at 4:30 p.m. on Elm Tree Lawn.

"Maybe It's Time for a Woman President" will be her subject. She is expected to discuss the need for a moral revolution in politics.

Mrs. Taylor, the first woman to broadcast television news in the Los Angeles area, received her B.A. from Scripps College and her M.S from the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism.

In 1960, she joined the Claremont Colleges as a publicist, leaving in 1962 to do a CBS radio interview program.

Also scheduled to address the more than 90 graduates is Beth Nolan of Irvington, N.Y., who will receive her B.A. in history.

She was selected by the senior class. She has been a member of the Scripps Academic Assembly and Judiciary Board and active in student government. She will work toward her M.A. in film history and criticism at USC next fall.

On June 2, the California Press Women will present her their 1973 Golden Flame Award for outstanding achievement in journalism. Last year Associated Press honored her with an award for "Creative Reporting."

PRESTIGE HOME—This architect's drawing shows one of the homes being built by the Lewis Homes, Inc., in its "Prestige Series" at San Antonio Avenue and 21st St., Upland.

New Lewis homes are 'wrapped'

UPLAND — Work crews at th Lewis Homes' "Prestige Series" development here have reached the "wrapping" stage of construction, said Richard Lewis, president.

"With a number of the model homes already walled, visitors may observe the architecture that distinguishes this development," he added.

Workers are building 42 single family homes, one and two story, at San Antonio Avnue and 21st Street. Prices will range from $37,950 to $42,450, with conventional terms allowing a five per cent down payment.

Buyers who purchase homes during the construction stage may receive their personal choice of carpet and wall colors, said Lewis.

"A fuller selection of lot locations is also afforded the early bird buyer."

The homes are equipped with air conditioning, wet bars, sunken Roman tubs, three-car garages, shake roofs and carved wood double entry doors.

"Spaciousness of the new houses, with floor plans encompassing as much as 2,315 square feet of living area, has also been a factor in generating advance sales," said Lewis.

POMONA — Condominiums keep on being one of the best of recent trends in real estate, said Jamse Odom, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

They appeal to the apartment dweller as a way of having some control over shelter costs in these times of inflation, he added.

"At the same time, they give the satisfaction of owning the unit they live in instead of renting. Keeping up the landscaping is seldom a worry because the condominium owners chip together to have it done professionally."

That lack of unkeep has found its appeal among retired people, who may decide to go to Europe for a month, said Odom. "Apartments also have that advantage, of course, but I've observed in my work as a realtor that elder people worry about being sell sufficient.

"The ownership aspect appeals to them. There won't be an unexpected rent hike boosting money outlay perilously close to retirement income. Young couples find condonimiums a way of building equity for the future without, as they put it, being tied down to a house.

"When children start coming, well, they can always sell the condominium so the kids can have a yard, some dirt to play in, and more privacy," said Odom.

"In case you don't know the principle of a condominium, you own the unit you live in, but common areas are owned jointly by you and the other owners If there's a swimming pool, tennis court, and of course, landscaping, that's common. So is the roof if the units adjoin."

Together, families contribute a fixed amount of money toward their upkeep with an elected governing board of the owners acting as manager.

Condominiums may be row houses, high rise apartments, or single family homes clustered around common areas.

"One trend that I see more of is the conversion of an apartment building to a condominium. It particularly can provide low income housing for those who buy," said Odom.

An eight unit apartment building, for example, may have a market value of $80,000. To modernize it, a person who pays the legal fees and other costs of converting it to a condominium may increase the value to $125,000.

"That's $15,625 a unit. How easy it is to find a modern dwelling you can buy for that amount?"

There are obvious drawbacks, said Odom. Unless soundproofing is good, the neighbor's "hi-fi" set may drive you to the farthest room. "You can't complain to the landlord or just up and move You own the place. So does the hi-fi owner."

When you sell, you have to find a buyer who likes condominiums, he added. "This is no problem today, but will it always be so? Those common areas can suddenly need some uncommon attention with owners having to dig in their jeans for the cash over and above the regular stipend contributed each month."

But this can be a very satisfying way of living, he added. The owner has a deed, title and mortgage and can sell it just as if he had a single family residence.

"Condominiums are a welcome addition to the choices you have of owning your own dwelling. They have their own unique advantages."

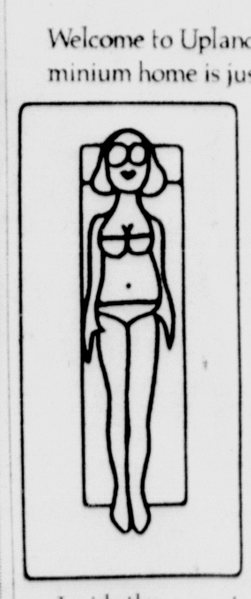
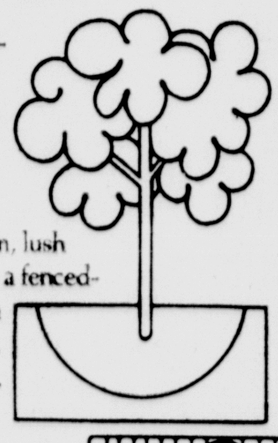
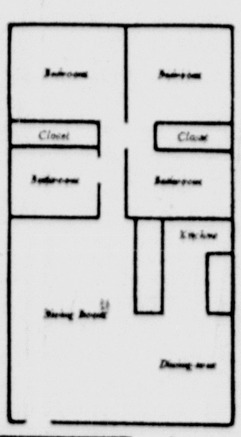
Welcome to Uplander Village. Your condominium home is just about ready. All we need are your personal finishing touches to make your new home feel like home.

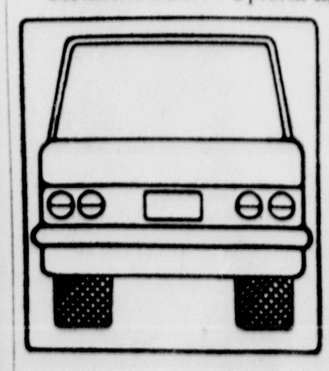


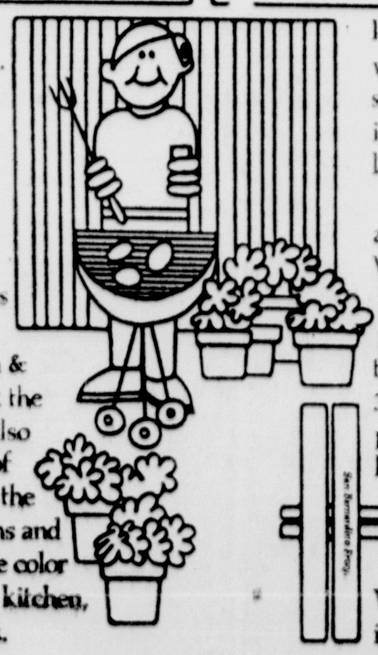




The landscaping is in, lush and blooming. There's a fenced-in swimming pool with cabana and restrooms. And enclosed garages. And every condominium home comes with a large, private enclosed patio. Big enough for furniture and a barbecue.

And that's just the outside. Inside there are two bedrooms and 1-3/4 baths. (That's 3/4 more bath than any other 2-bedroom condominium in Upland under $22,000.) The modern kitchen comes with a dishwasher, disposer and gas oven & range. You get to pick the appliance color. You also get to pick the color of the shag carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallway. As well as the color of the linoleum in the kitchen, dining area and baths.

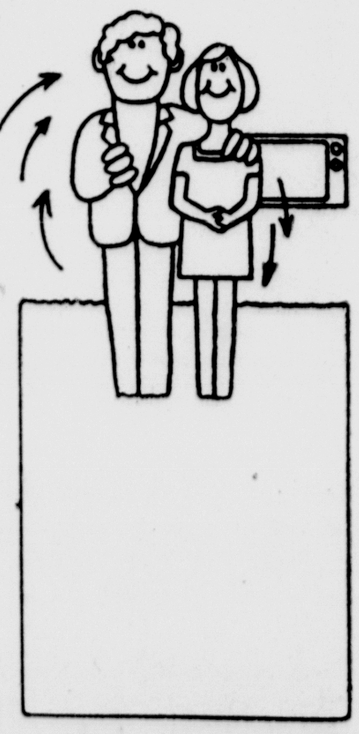


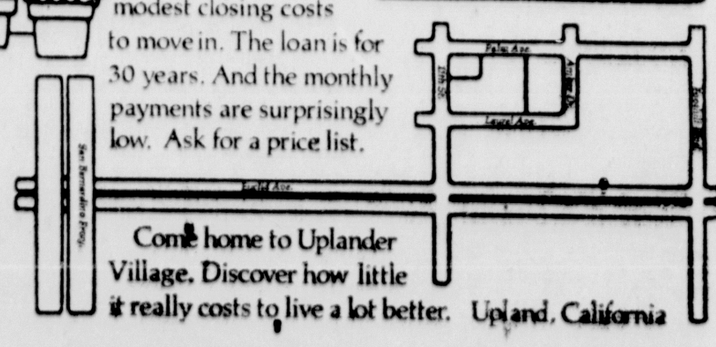


And, there's air conditioning. Big 14,500 BTU air conditioning for those long summer days.

Another thing you'll like is our circulating hot water system. It guarantees that the water will be hot as soon as you turn it on. Not five minutes later.

Okay. What does all this luxury cost? Very little. You only need 5% down plus modest closing costs to move in. The loan is for 30 years. And the monthly payments are surprisingly low. Ask for a price list.





Come home to Uplander Village. Discover how little it really costs to live a lot better. Upland, California

Cost of natural gas may increase

Residential users of natural gas may pay 23 cents more per month starting next November.

The Southern California Gas Co. has requested an $18.9 million increase in its rates to offset an upcoming increase in the cost of gas it purchases from the El Paso Natural Gas Co., one of its major out-of-state suppliers.

The California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) must rule on the application.

"The $18.9 million offset request is necessitated by an application filed by El Paso with the Federal Power Commission (FPC) on May 2 for approval of a $40 million annual rate increase for its southern system customers, including those in California," said Harry P. Letton Jr., gas company president.

"Our application seeks only to recoup the higher rate we will face from El Paso Natural Gas Co., he added. "The increase will not add to our earnings."

Under the federal Natural Gas Act, rate increases requested by interstate pipeline companies, such as El Paso, may become effective, with maximum suspension, six months after they are filed with the federal commission.

The FPC then schedules hearings and later determines how much of the rate increase will be allowed and how much will be refunded.

California utilities, however, can't pass on the added costs to their customers until the PUC approval has been obtained.

In addition, the PUC approved rate increases can't be applied retroactively so Southern California Gas Co. would have to absorb the added costs of the El Paso increase until the PUC approves the offset increase, explained Letton.

"Any reductions ordered by the FPC in the El Paso increase will result in subsequent reductions or refunds to customers by the Southern California Gas Co."

Colonel sells antique sword for $70,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sam Someya, a Japanese dealer, Thursday paid a record $70,000 for a 14th Century Japanese sword brought to this country as booty by an Army colonel of World War II.

The previous reccord price for such a sword at a public auction was $20,000.

The sword bought by Someya has a 30-inch blade and was forged by master swordmaker Aoe Suketsugu in 1312. Someya said he would take it to Japan and see if it could be registered as a national treasure.

Good garbage

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Household garbage is helping beat the energy crisis in St. Louis. Union Electric Company, an area utility is using municipal solid waste to produce electricity. Each ton of low sulphur refuse burned in the utility's boilers generates 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity.

DAYBREAK — The drawing depicts one of the homes being built by Crowell-Leventhal, Inc., in its Daybreak development at 15th Street and San Antonio Avenue, Upland. The project has 34 single family homes, with three and four bedrooms. Buyers may select from 17 exteriors and six floor plans. They are priced from $29,950 and include front yards landscaping, sprinklers and ceramic kitchens.

Three school issues fail

ALAMEDA (UPI) — Three money issues to improve schools in the Alameda Unified School District lost in Tuesday's elections, final results showed today.

They included a $7.9 million bond issue to upgrade earthquake-prone schools and a companion act authorizing the schools to borrow $1.9 million from the state for school improvements, both of which needed only a simple majority.

They lost by about a 3-to-2 margin.

A third measure to authorize a $2.2 million bond issue to improve schools also lost by 3-to-2, but needed two-thirds approval to pass.

DOCTOR REY — "Portrait of Doctor Rey" by Vincent van Gogh, is one of 41 impressionist and post-impressionist paintings in an exhibit on loan from Russia which will open at the county Museum of Art June 15. Because of the importance of the collection, the museum will go on a seven-day schedule for the first time in its history. The paintings will be on view through July 8.

County Museum of Art to show Russ paintings

LOS ANGELES — The Russian exhibition of 41 impressionist and post-impressionist paintings will open at the county Museum of Art June 15.

Because of the importance of the collection, on loan from two Soviet museums, the Museum of Art will be open seven days a week for the first time in its history through July 8.

The paintings will be exhibited in the Frances and Armand Hammer Wing of the museum.

Dr. Franklin D. Murphy, president of the museum board, said that every effort will be made to permit the maximum number of people to see the exhibition. The Hammer Wing will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The museum is normally closed on Mondays and weekday evenings.

Paintings by Matisse, Gauguin, Picasso, van Gogh, Monet, Renoir, Rousseau, Derain, Pissarro, Sisley, Braque, Vlaminck and Leger makeup the exhibition. All in this century by a pair of Mscovite art collectors whose collections were nationalized after the revolution of 1917.

The public opening of the exhibition will be preceded by an invitational reception June 12. Representatives of the Siviet government have been invited to the reception in the Hammir Wing.

Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children and senior citizens.

The 41 paintings are from the Hermitage Museum, Leningrad, and the Puskin Museum, Moscow. They are the first Western paintings ever exhibited in the United States from Russia collections. The paintings range from the early impressionists to the beginnings of cubism. Soviet collections of this period are considered among the finest in the world.

Russians and Americans were the first perceptive and acquisitive patrons of Matisse, considered by many to be the finest French artist of this century, and Picasso, generally acknowledged as the greatest artist of the 20th Century. Ivan Morozov and Sergei Shchukin knew these and other artists and collected their works before they became popular. The two Russians began buying Matisses and Picassos around 1905.

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

CAPSULE REVIEW — Out of "Summer of '42" by "A Long Day's Journey into Ennui," Peter Nichols, "Forget-Me-Not-Lane," which opened Thursday at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center, is a limp, bittersweet diary of a British Penrod.

The play bills itself as "a nostalgic look at the '40s," but it is nostalgic only if you were a boy growing up in London during the blitz. The period and setting are purely incidental: this is the story of Everybody — how he learned to smoke, how he learned about sex, how he hated his father then learned to understand, pity and finally love him, and so on.

The cats is competent but uninteresting, with the exception of Bud ("Harold and Maude") Cort as Young Frank, a funny, persuasive youngster, and Donald Moffat as the tyrannical father.

"Lane" winds on through July 15.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: Why doesn't the Cultural Arts Commission get the city to buy the defunct United Artists movie theater and turn it into a live theater for concerts by the Pomona Community Chorus, Pomona Concert Band and visiting ensembles, for performances by the Valley Concert Dance Theater and Valley Community Theater, for civic programs and school events? Central location, plenty of parking. Maybe it's worth thinking about.

Gold mines to start producing

CARLIN, Nev. (UPI) — Two abandoned gold mines will be reopened because of the higher price of the precious metal, the Newmont Mining Corp. announced.

The company, which operates the Carlin gold mine, said the Bootstrap and Blue Star mines will go into production in late 1973 or early 1974, with the rate of work depending on gold prices.

Zethren art on display at library

POMONA — Paintings by artist Kristin Zethren of Los Angeles are on exhibit through mid-June in the main galleries of the Pomona Public Library.

The artist describes herself as an abstract imagist who uses the human figure as the predominant motif in her work. She says her paintings relate strongly to her Biblical and literary daydreams.

Miriam Lowenkron, art historian and cataloguer for the Downey Museum of Art, sees Zethren's paintings as "very much in the tradition of Picasso, de Kooning and other 20th Century expressionists, though modified by a feminine sensitivity. Classical subject matter is clearly present and is translated into contemporary abstracted forms."

Miss Zethren is an extensive world traveler with a keen interest in Chinese culture. Besides the United States, she has lived in Japan, France and Turkey and has visited many other countries. She earned her B.A. in philosophy at Mt. Holyoke College Massachusetts, and is currently working towards and M.A. in fine arts at Cal State Los Angeles.

She has had showings at the Venice Spring Art Show and the Mt. Holyoke Centennial Art Show. One of her murals is in Mexico City and another appeared in a Life Magazine in 1970.

GAME OF CHANCE—Artist Kristin Zathren of Los Angeles, stands beside her "Dice Game," one of the works in her show being held through mid-June at the Pomona Public Library. The exhibit, open to the public without charge, is on view from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The classical theme ever-present in her work is suggested by titles such as "Two Angels," "Last Judgment," and "Jacob Wrestling With The Angels."

PVAA gallery shows works by 3 artists

POMONA — Works by Watson Cross, Heintz Rosein and Cleo Hinton will go on exhibit Wednesday at the gallery of the Pomona Valley Art Association mezzanine, Home Savings & Loan Building, 100 Pomona Mall West.

Mrs. Hinton, a resident of San Dimas, is well known for her work in graphics and ceramics, and exhibits widely in the Southern California area. She has received many awards and is noted for the feeling of refinement and sympathy with her subject in graphics.

She studied at Citrus College in Azusa and Tri-Community Adult School, and is currently an art major at Mt. San Antonio College continuing her ceramics studies under John Blough. She is a member of the association.

Rosein will display a collection of watercolors, oils and pastels. He studied at the Academy of Fine Arts in Nuremburg and Munich, Germany, as well as the Otis Art Institute. He has had many exhibits in major museums throughout the world, and has been teaching art for the past 10 years. He is noted for his works in many media, including oils, acrylics, watercolor and pastels.

Cross, past president of the California National Watercolor Society, is well known for his drawings and watercolors, with exhibits at the Los Angeles County, and San Francisco museums of art, the American Watercolor Society, the National Academy Galleries and the Riverside Museum in New York City. He taught at Chouinard Art Institute for 28 years.

The show is open daily, Wednesday through Saturday from 12:30 to 4 p.m. The public is invited.

Lowell Thomas

Eighth Wonder of World?

NEW YORK UPI) — Lowell Thomas, 81 and in his 43rd year as radio's most durable newscaster, is working on a two-volume reminiscence but his multitudinous activities — such as skiing — keep getting in the way.

"I've written 52 books and am working on three right now," said Thomas, the nearest thing to a national institution in the flesh, on a flying visit to Manhattan between skiing trips to Utahs Wasatch Mountains and Alaska's glacial slopes.

"I'm writing about my radio experiences, my 20 expeditions to remote parts of the world and life in general, and I'm also working on a biography of Gen. Jimmy Doolittle (the areonautics hero)," Thomas said. "I've been working on the Doolittle book for 40 years but put it aside when I got involved in radio."

Being "involved," Thomas indicated, is the secret of staying vital. He rarely sits and claims to be as allergic to desks as he is to shirts (he prefers turtleneck sweaters). During the interview he paced his oak-panelled office in the landmark Henry Villard mansion, perching occasionally on a chair arm or table.

More used to asking questions than answering them, Thomas preferred to discourse with as little interruption as possible on a subject currently close to his heart. It is the revival of "This Is Cinerama" in New York, Toronto, Atlanta, Boston, Detroit, Los Angeles and eventually several other cities.

Thomas took Cinerama, the vision-enveloping 3-camera movie with 7-channel stereophonic sound, out of the experimental studio and into the forefront of show business in 1952. He did what the Rockefellers and Time-Life, original backers of Cinerama developer Fred Waller, had failed to do over a period of 14 years.

"I realized that they had a geyser of gold and all we had to do was make a show—not fiction, but a non-fiction film that would make the audience feel it was actually experiencing what it saw on the screen," Thomas said.

"This Is Cinerama" was a global success in 30 cities where theaters were altered for wide-screen presentation. Untold millions shrieked down a roller coaster ride, flew over Niagara Falls, glided on Venetian canals, thrilled to opera in Milan and shuddered at a bullfight in Madrid. Thomas sold his interest in Cinerama after the third production had racked up a total box-office gross of $130 million.

"President Herbert Hoover told me radio had four stages— invention, sound, color, Cinerama," Thomas said proudly. "After Cinerama, all the Hollywood companies jumped into wide screen film. But Cinerama, encompassing even the watcher's peripheral vision, was more suited to non-fiction material because its whole magic was audience participation. You watch a story in a fiction film, but you don't take part."

Hoover was just one of the famous friends Thomas mentioned. A sampling of others included Lawrence of Arabia, the Dalai Lama whom Thomas visited on an expedition to Tibet, King Edward VIII with whom he explored India, and Olympic ski star Alf Ingen, his recent skiing companion in Utah.

Thomas' 1924 best-selling book on Col. T. E. Lawrence catapulted Thomas to fame and later the job as first radio network newscaster in 1930. Since then few places on the globe have escaped Thomas' on-the-spot examination, poviding grist for lectures, books, movie features, television series and chances to ski on five continents. He has declared the 20th Century the Golden Age of Exploration.

"I know we usually describe the age of Columbus and Vasco da Gama that way, but a large part of the earth's surface still needs to be explored in detail. New Guinea is the world's largest island, if you accept the theory that Greenland is an ice-covered archipelago, and it is just beginning to be explored. Three-fourths of the earth is covered with water and we're just getting into that. And then we have space—without limit."

Thomas, who broadcasts five nights a week on the CBS network, said he plans to do some undersea exploration "when several television projects I'm working on allow me the time." He stood beneath paintings of the Seven Wonders of the World, depicted for Cinerama, as he said goodbye to his visitor. The thought could not be suppressed: Is this man, born the year of President Grover Cleveland's election, the Eighth Wonder?

The rainbow trout is the Utah state fish.

Something for all at Heliotrope

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ever had a hankering to learn loom weaving, oil painting or gourmet cooking? If not, maybe instruction in Volkswagen maintenance for women is what you've been looking for.

Those with a more exotic flair might long for lessons in belly dancing.

Now, it is possible to learn about all these and more because of an experiment in higher education called Heliotrope, "the open university," a catchall for instruction in nearly everything imaginable that cannot be found in the traditional classroom setting.

In fact, at Heliotrope, there aren't any classrooms at all. Classes are held in the homes of professors who, by the way, can teach in their own fields of endeavor without any academic qualifications whatsoever.

"Heliotrope picks up where formal education leaves off," said David Marmon, 32, its director. Helio (the Greek word for sun) and trope (turning toward) has been 'turning people toward the sun' ever since it was founded by Marmon five years ago in San Francisco.

Law graduate

"We'll offer almost anything that someone is interested in learning about," said Marmon, 32, a graduate of Harvard Law School. "Anyone can walk in here and propose a class and if other people like the idea, that's groovy."

If belly dancing or loom weaving don't happen to be your bag, that's groovy too, because at Heliotrope, Marmon said, there is something for everyone. Those inclined toward the offbeat, for example, might consider lessons in "Beginning Tarot," "Bio Body Massage" or "How to Keep 'im Fat and Happy" (plants, that is).

Last year, Heliotrope in San Francisco offered a course in firewalking. It was taught by a Buddhist priest from Japan who had to give it up for insurance reasons.

"The same people that signed up for firewalking," explained Marmon, also hang from their heels on the cliffs of Mt. Tamalpais (in Marin County). Mt. Tamalpais was also the location of another class sponsored last year by Heliotrope: "Howling at the Moon."

Heliotrope, which operates in San Francisco and Los Angeles, mails out 65,000 catalogues each month advertising classes to prospective students. The classes, which usually last a month, meet weekly. Tuition usually ranges from $10 to $15. "Auto Mechanics for the Complete Dummy I," for example, costs $15.

But there are exceptions. "Introduction to Nudity," taught by Jesse Ivanhoe in Topanga Canyon, runs only $5 for men and $3 for women.

According to the catalogue, the nudity class is an opportunity to discuss self concepts and body image. "Your own nudity," says the catalogue, "is optional."

While several Heliotrope classes are unusual, Marmon claimed that most are practical. "Classes such as creative writing, photography and language are designed to give the public a taste of what it would have to pay much more to get elsewhere."

Marmon said that people of all ages are attracted to Heliotrope, although a large majority of them are under 30. "This is a way to get acquainted in a big city like Los Angeles. It's about half social, half educational."

Wide variety

A non-profit organization, Heliotrope offers about 40 classes each month in Los Angeles and more than three times that many in San Francisco. Los Angeles Heliotrope, which Marmon opened more than six months ago, enrolls about 200 students monthly while the San Francisco branch signs up from 800 to 1,000.

Eventually, Marmon plans to expand the organization.

"Someday we want to be in every major city in the country," he said, "but we want to expand in a very together manner."

Marmon said he envisions branches opening in Phoenix, Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, London, and Marseilles, France.

TENNIS FASHIONS

The front button tunic by Point Set of polyester, left, is banded with orange and green stripes. Comfort is the name of the game because of a new process that makes the fabric cooler to wear. On right, Keds' free-wheeling "Fastracks" set the pace for men's athletic shoes, which when combined with new tennis outfit, can do double duty on the road.

Anyone for tennis?

Love-all new styles

The tennis look is what fashion is all about this season. Since so many men and women are wearing their tenniswear off the courts, it's very important what they will be wearing on the courts.

The new advantage for this season is color. The solid whites, which for years were de rigeuer from backyard courts to Forest Hills, are now being accented with color and printed trims, or are replaced entirely with colors, lights and brights.

The questions over the acceptability of colors began last year when many of the professionals playing the U.S. Open asked to be allowed to wear colors because of television coverage. An exception to the all-white rule was made, and colors are now officially permitted.

The idea of brightening up the courts isn't a new one. In fact, many years ago tennis players at Wimbledon got so carried away that their garb became costume-like and the firm all-white rule was imposed with such strictness that it stood until last year.

In the late '40s, Gussie Moran delighted Wimbledon spectators with her lace ruffled panties. American Karol Fageros went one better by appearing in 19 carat gold briefs which were later auctioned off. And Laura Lou Jahn Kunen stitched the confederate flag to her pants. In the '50s, some even dared leopard and mink trims, or paper and transparent dresses.

Compared to that, one could hardly be shocked by today's on-court fashions. They're made of easy-care fibers like Kodel polyester for easy-to-move action and on-the-ball styling.

One of the most popular looks for tennis '73 is the dress with the drawstring waist. This is a definite carry over from women's wear for spring.

The one-piece tunics and shirt styles will continue to be popular, especially because you can slip on a pair of slacks and be perfectly dressed for a patio party or a shopping trip.

Halters will remain favorites for those who dare, and dresses with cut-outs can be found for those who want a crazy tan. Shorts outfits and playsuits are also being worn.

For those too traditional to jump right into the colors, whites come trimmed in brights or accented with gingham or appliques.

The new color this season seems to be lettuce green. It will be seen as both trim and basic. Navy and red remain traditional, and yellow, bright and pale, is a favorite.

Men also have turned to colors. This year, they won't shock anyone if they choose a bright, red shirt. In fact, men's tennis shirts are so colorful they can be worn as sport shirts off the courts. The look is a bright or dark shirt with white shorts, but pastel coordinates are also in the game.

Tennis is the fastest growing sport in America, with more and more people learning to play every year.

Pocket pets fill need

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — If space is a problem at your place, what do you say to the kids yammering for a pet.

It's not as bad as it sounds. What the rodent pocket pets have going for them: kids love 'em. Such pets are fun to play with, fun to feed and fun to watch. Ask the boy or girl on the block who owns one.

The pocket pet mouse actually is kept in a cage most of the time. He amuses for hours, whirling on an exercise wheel or scampering about the cage. After generations of domestic breeding, the mice now come in 70 different color varieties. There even are waltzing mice. This strain has a hereditary quirk which prompts them to run circles on their hind legs when they do it looks as though they are dancing. Pet mice, once tamed, enjoy being held. They scamper up sleeves and search pockets for treats. The average life-span of a mouse: two years.

Other pocket pet information:

—HAMSTERS. This mini-pet looks like a stub-tailed teddy bear with the mumps. He sits up to eat, using front paws to stuff extra into his large cheek pouch. Hampsters can be temperamental and nip. They are best for older children who understand how to handle them, says Patricia O'Keefe, of the Pet Food Institute. Hampsters live about three years.

—GERBILS. Pronounced jurbils, these creatures made the pet scene in 1965. They resemble hamsters but have a long tufted tail and sturdy hind legs. They are said to be very curious and quite sociable critters. They can be trained to accept food from the hand and nestle in a pocket for hours. Miss O'Keefe says they seldom nip unless abused or frightened. Their life span is three to four years.

—GUINEA PIG. Affectionate and docile, the guinea pig is a good pet for small children. It can withstand a good bit of cuddling. This four-legged pet of pint-sized proportions is not from Guinea and neither is it a dwarf pig. He looks like a cross between a large mouse and a short-eared rabbit. He's related to porcupines. Guinea pigs, according to Miss O'Keefe, grow to be about 10-inches long and hit the scales at two-and-one-half pounds. They fit only in a large pocket. However, they will snuggle on a shoulder and hold tight. It is not unusual for a guinea pig to learn to recognize his master's voice and greet him with a noisy whistle. He also whistles when he thinks it's time to eat. These pocket pets live about five years, if well cared for.

"Since pocket pets are small, two are as easy to keep as one and twice as much fun," Miss O'Keefe said. "Don't, however, get a male and a female unless you're prepared to cope with more. . . many more."

Mice can produce 10 litters a year, averaging seven to nine babies a litter. Hamsters are almost as efficient: eight or nine litters a year with about four to five little ones each time. Gerbils —five or six litters a year with two or three new ones each time. Ginea pigs may have five litters a year with two or three added each litter.

The Pet Industry Distributors Association's Pet Care Bureau suggests that any pocket pet needs a secure, comfortable cage. It should be big enough for exercise and provide places to hide. Pocket pets like to build nests. Only a metal cage is suitable since thise pocket pets have strong sharp teeth and can demolish a cardboard or wooden box in a short time.

Reaching retirement age?

Wills should take priority

UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Procrastination is the thief that steals from your security when you're ready to retire.

Prepare for retirement well ahead of the day it arrives and save yourself the poblems and the price you pay an attorney to solve them.

Many nudging retirement age, for instance, neglect to have wills drawn. Many don't look thoroughly into the risks involved in selection of housing, whether in a special development a condominium or a cooperative apartment.

Guidance on such matters especially as they relate to middle-agers is in a new publication "Legal Guide to Independent Living," published by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP)

Hesitant as many persons are to think of it, making a will should have top priority, says the publication.

"Many people disregard making a will because they have the misconception that leaving an estate is limited to those people who have large sums of property or money. On the contrary, if you own, alone or with someone else, any real or personal property, you have an estate," it advises.

A properly-drawn will has many benefits. They include assurance that on your death, your possessions will be distributed according to your wishes, provision for the most economical distribution of your possessions, assurance of a minimum delay in the transfer of your estate to your heirs, and minimization of taxes and other expenses in settlement of an estate.

The booklet discusses the "danger" of do-it-yourself wills, or holographic wills. First off, only about half of the states recognize them. And you may not have the legal knowledge and precise language to make certain your estate is handled in the manner you intended.

Once drawn, make sure that someone besides yourself (relative, executor or your lawyer) knows where it can be located. The best place to store the document is in a safety deposit box, bank vault or firepoof safe in an attorney's office.

Say you're also considering a change in living quarters. Again, the booklet advises consulting an attorney.

Most states have laws governing such things as special housing developments, condominiums and cooperatives. But they of necessity are in general terms.

So be on the lookout for "escalator" clauses on maintenance services, restrictions on your personal life, and your rights regarding selling or willing the property.

For your own protection, you and your attorney should check these points carefully:

What exact part of the premises you will occupy, whether you are entitled to that part for life, and whether your privacy in the use of that part will be protected.

What services and care you will be entitled to, under what circumstances, and whether there will be an extra charge.

What arrangements are made for medical care if it is not provided by the enterprise and how it will be paid for.

Whether you are entitled to a refund of any or all of your initial payment if you leave for any reason.

The publication gets into the nitty gritty of choosing an attorney. Exercise the same judgment you would in selection of a doctor. (Editors: The "Legal Guide to Independent Living" is free by writing Action for Independent Maturity (AIM), 1225 Connecticut Ave., N. W., Washington, D.C. 20036).

Galbraith spars with Women Libbers

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family News Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The other day John Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist and former U.S. Ambassador to India, stirred up a hornet's nest.

Galbraith was one of three speakers at a luncheon sponsored by MS. magazine. Maybe that's why he had to fall back on diplomatic skills to survive unstung. If he had been the sole speaker, he would have had the lectern to himself. Much less controversial that.

The other speakers were Gloria Steinem, an editor of MS., and Aileen Hernandez, of San Francisco and immediate past president of the National Organization for Women (NOW). Ms. Hernandez, under President Johnson, was the nation's first commissioner of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Galbraith, speaking first, said he believed the movement was moving in too many directions, thus dividing its energy and not having the impact it could have if it concentrated on one goal at a time.

He also nixed what he described as certain sillinesses.

All the movement debate about sex roles and who's in charge, the man or the women, isn't as important as developing some political clout, as the economist sees it. He advised the women to take one step at a time, the single strategy. He recommended as a first priority the development of cohesive political groups in every legislative district nationwide. The politicians then will know that women are a political force is his theory.

Galbraith pooh-poohed word "games" that have accompanied the movement. He doesn't think much is accomplished by dropping the word chairman in favor of chairperson when the chairman is a woman. Or calling her chairwoman. This person or woman thing applied to the many words with "man" attempts to inject into the language such things as fisherwoman, HERstory instead of HIStory. In church, the extreme versions of language change would make Amen—Ah-women.

Galbraith said that to keep words with sex labels—chairman being one—will mean that at some future time when the women have equality such sexist words will stand as monuments to a time when society wesn't so enlightened about women.

That remark, among others, brought hisses from the audience and rebuttal from Ms. Hernandez.

She described herself as "a perfect token" in this era when both women and blacks are popular with employers.

"I am a black," she said, "and a woman and I have a Chicano name."

As such she said she took great exception to Galbraith's observation that such things as the crusade to change the word chairman to chairperson or chairwoman.

"I would be called a darkie," she said, "if word changes didn't accompany the black power movement."

Ms. Steinem also spoke about monuments. Rather than keeping words such as chairman as monuments to the dark ages before women's liberation, she suggested plastic be sprayed over some of the uppercrust neighborhoods. She apparently believes that as women come into their own the contemporary roles of women in such neighborhoods will be considered the dark ages, too.

Galbraith earlier referred to such neighborhoods as "fur-lined coffins" for women. He said he has seen progress among educated women in the retreat from the fur-lined coffins. In the mid-fifties, he recalled, the ambition of the economics majors from Radcliffe College was to be a wife.

The contemporary female eggheads, as he sees it, put a high priority on a career and developing their minds and talents. It's something like the song—"Married You Can Always Get."

Both Ms. Steinem and Ms. Hernandez rejected Galbraith's suggestion for one strategy instead of many in the women's movement. They believe in demonstrations, lobbying, affirmative action and developing political muscle.

Ms. Hernandez, who has her own urban affairs and management consultant firm, said things happen when "you make people angry." She believes "in stirring things from the bottom up."

The one-sided debate—two women against one man—was timed with the publication of the MS. June issue — on "Women and Money." The major report on that subject carries Ms. Steinem's byline. It is titled—"If We're So Smart, Why Aren't We Rich."

The report shows:

—96 per cent of the over $15,000 a year jobs are held by white males; only 38 per cent of fathers are in full compliance with a child support order a year after a divorce, 24 per cent are in partial compliance, 42 per cent had made no payment at all. Also—10 years after a divorce only 13 per cent of the fathers were making all child support payments.

Ms. Steinem said the figures are based on a 1955 study, the only one available on the collection of child support.

"There are no reliable studies on the collection of alimony," she said.

Generally, is woman's economic plight getting any better?

"Not in a mass way at all," Ms. Steinem reported.

"In fact the differential between male and female pay has been getting steadily bigger, not smaller.

"The unemployment rate for women is up about 40 per cent in four years.

"Easier divorce laws, though a basic step forward, still have left many women with no job training and few alternatives."

Ask the ex-wife who's stranded.

Carefree patterns designed

McCall's Patterns has retained the services of world famous designer Halston. He has designed six styles for their new Carefree Pattern collection. He also has some tips for home-sewers. To wit:

— Know what styles are becoming to you before selecting patterns.

—Know exactly what your lifestyle is, so that you can successfully plan your wardrobe needs.

— Be sure when making clothes and fitting them that they are comfortable (Halston suggests before a garment is finished you "move" in it. Try fixing your hair, sit, walk . . . in front of a mirror.)

— Make sure the fabric suits the style you intend to make.

— Plan your wardrobe early in advance and co-ordinate a color theme. Plan accessories accordingly so that fewer pieces are needed.

— Pay atention to details. Spend the time, even if it means an extra day or two, to finish a garment properly. Don't shortcut . . . take all the pattern instruction steps . . . you'll be happier with the result. (Halston believes an outfit should be as pretty on the inside as the outside.)

— Prints are fun, but solids have a longer life in any garment.

— Skirt lengths are mid knee-ish, above the knee only if you have pretty legs and are young. Look at your proportions and the proportions of an outfit in front of a full length mirror before you hem.

Electrocution

Auburn Correctional Facility was the site of the first electrocution in the world in 1890. A more positive distinction these days: the prison now offers college level courses to selected inmates in an experimental volunteer program. Volunteer students and professors from Cornell University and Auburn Community College help fuel the program.

Woman Achiever awards

Nominations due Wednesday

The Progress-Bulletin will repeat its Woman Achiever awards program this summer as part of the Women's Department special club edition to be published July 24.

The awards program was originated in 1966 when Pomona Valley residents had an opportunity to nominate outstanding women for service to their community.

This year four women will be named in the special edition and tribute will be paid them for their contributions of time and service to their community at a luncheon later.

The nomination blanks must be returned to the Women's Department of the newspaper not later than Wednesday.

Fact sheets for club inclusion in the annual Pomona Valley Women edition have also been sent to the president or publicity chairman of every club listed with the Women's Department. Deadline for return of the club forms is June 25.

Halloween look

Despite attempts to get the women of America into a ladylike look, the halloween look may hang on. Many women have such a wardrobe of mixes-n-matches and pants, for example, that they're not going to run up the white flag. The young of the land, besides, like the halloween look. It is strictly non-copycat. Any which way, it is one of a kind.

Beach bag

One of summer's special pleasures is a day at the beach. Take along a bright beach bag. The newest batch is smashingly colorful and decorated with nautical appliques.

Be cautious

Do not attempt do-it-yourself installation of an air conditioner unless the manufacturer specifically so instructs or provides a kit. Then carefully read the instructions before starting.

Montclair-Ontario Jrs.

Montclair-Ontario Junior Women's Club received four awards at the San Bernardino District Junior Convention recently.

Ten members attended the convention from the local club which received a first place in Federation, two second place awards in press and March of Dimes, and an award of merit for the Build A Better Community work which included four major projects.

Mrs. Diess was installed as district first vice president during the convention.

Montclair-Ontario Juniors will hold an installation of club officers on May 11 at the La Cabana Restaurant, Pomona.

Mrs. Yoakum and Mrs. Diess will be delegates to the California Federation of Women's Club, Junior Membership, state convention in Palo Alto from May 17 to 19.

Casual look

What's the newest way to top pants for spring and summer? Sportswear sophisticates say it's the easy-to-wear tennis look, even if you never go near the courts. The handbags that score with this look have a sporty flair. Included are the following types: compact but handy wallet with separate change purse; wood ornaments on a double-handled smooth patent sporty bag with adjustable shoulder straps; a quilted gingham patchwork rectangle bag with zipper closing on top and second zipper compartment outside.

Not Rinse Your Hair?
Not Likely!
Not Rinse Your Carpet?
MANY DON'T—BUT
It Needs Rinsing as Much as Your Hair!

JiRo
"COLD RINSE EXTRACTION PROCESS" IS THE LATEST REFINEMENT
IN CARPET CLEANING

A new machine with spray action, is used to pull out deeply embedded soil. Wonderful for heavy traffic areas and deep pile carpet. Of course, We still take these preliminary steps:

1. POWER VACUUM
2. PRE-SPOT
3. EDGE BY HAND
4. SHAMPOO

YOUR CARPETS WILL STAY CLEAN TWICE AS LONG!

YOUR CARPET WILL FEEL AS SOFT AS A TEDDY BEAR

AFTER IT HAS BEEN CLEANED BY
"COLD RINSE EXTRACTION PROCESS"

Now, after vacuuming and shampooing, your carpet is rinsed with a spray of cold water which is immediately extracted under high pressure. This removes all deeply embedded soil and leaves your carpet with the fluffy feel and appearance it had when it was new. In fact, the above comment is an actual quote one lady made after her carpet was cleaned with JiRo.

USAC changes racing rules

CHAMPION SWING

'Wings' clipped on Indy cars

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The U.S. Auto Club Board of Directors, reacting to criticism of this year's tragedy-marred Indianapolis "500," Saturday night revised big car rules for all championship circuit races.

The directors reduced the amount of fuel allowed on board championship cars from 75 to 40 gallons and clipped the "wings" or aerodynamic foils on the rear of the big cars, cutting the maximum wing width from 64 to 55 inches.

The Saturday night rules changes came as a surprise. The USAC Board of Directors held the meeting after announcing earlier they would act at some later date on recommendations made during an afternoon meeting involv- an afternoon meeting involving the USAC competition committee and other key figures.

The action followed two deaths and severe burn injuries to two drivers during May at the Speedway.

The wing-size reduction should reduce speeds somewhat. The wing reduction was an exploratory first step and may be followed by other changes in wing rules after USAC has had time for additional testing.

Another rule change requires the pit man designated as the signal or board man, stationed at the pit wall, to remain in that position throughout the race.

USAC approved a rule requiring that all the fuel on board be carried on the left side of the car except for a pickup tank with a maximum capacity of 2.5 gallons. The placing of all the fuel on the left side is expected to be a great anti-fire measure.

USAC also mandated that the area formerly occupied by the right-side tank be filled with an energy-absorbing material.

The changes are effective with the running of the Pocono "500" July 1 in Pennsylvania and will apply to all national championship races from that date.

USAC President Reynold Macdonald said, "Our constant objective is to make auto racing safer and more enjoyable for everyone involved."

The tragedies at Indianapolis last month included the death of driver Art Pollard in a practice run May 12 and that of a pit crewman struck by a fire truck when the rain-delayed race was finally run Wednesday.

Probably the most talked about areas of controversy are fuel supplies and the wings mounted on the rear of the championship cars.

The wings create an aerodynamic situation which keeps the cars tighter to the ground, thus allowing greater speeds. A cutback in fuel allotment, as many propose, would force competitors to slow down to conserve fuel.

Other areas of safety discussions include the 2 1-2 mile track itself, which some drivers say is among the safest around, but which others say is too narrow for the speeds run this year.

Some observers also think the stands are too close to the

Preps run 7th in state

WOODLAND—Seven was not a lucky number for the three area prep stars in the California State Track and Field finals Saturday at Woodland High School.

Marcus Gordien, Gene Bernard, and Cleve Porter each finished seventh in their respective events.

Porter, the promising junior from Ganesha High in Pomona, came the closest of the trio. He missed placing in the finals by an inch as his distance of 46-10 in the triple jump was only an inch shorter than the fifth place finisher.

It was only the third time Porter ever had competed in the triple jump and his remarkable showing was all the more impressive because the five athletes that placed in the event were all seniors.

Gordien, from Claremont High, threw the discuss 173-3. He would have had to surpass his lifetime best to place fifth since the fifth-place finisher had a mark of over 183 feet.

Gene Bernard of Chino cleared 6-2 in the high jump. He had some difficulty getting used to jumping off a surface of decomposed granite with which he had little experience.

San Francisco Wilson won the team scoring with 17 points and Lompoc was second with 14 points.

Monzon decisions Griffith, retains title

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Carlos Monzon of Argentina retained his world middleweight boxing crown for the sixth time Saturday with a close but unanimous 15-round decision over Emile Griffith of New York.

For the 35-year-old Griffith, who held the middleweight title twice and the welterweight crown three times, it was a second unsuccessful bid to take the title from the Argentinian, who beat him in 14 rounds in Buenos Aires in 1971.

Griffith used his 18 years experience and appeared to lead the title-holder going into the 10th round. But he then tired rapidly, allowing Monzon to score the vital points he needed in the later rounds. There were no knockdowns.

Referee Pierrot Brambilla of Italy scored the fight 147 to 145 for Monzon and Judges Raymond Balderau of France and Karl Berteet of West Germany had it 147-143 and 147-144 for the South American.

French Promoter Charley Michaelis said Monzon would defend his title next against Jean-Claude Bouttier of France, whom he knocked out in the 12th round one year ago. The rematch tentatively was set for Monaco Sept. 1.

Monzon, 31, who had to run three miles Friday before weighing in at 159 pounds, collected a reported $100,000 and Griffith, who tipped the scales at 157, received $45,000.

Monzon, who never has been sent to the canvas in his pro career, improved his record to 82-3-9 while Griffith, who was taking part in his 24th—and perhaps last—world championship fight, is now 77-14-1.

Griffith, moving in behind a left jab and using his right cross sparingly but effectively, took the early offensive. Monzon relied on his counter-punching and his right again proved the weapon which enabled him to keep the title.

Griffith clearly thought he won the fight, as did the sellout crowd of 8,000 fans in the open-air Louis II Stadium.

"I am really shocked at the decision," said the New Yorker. "I really felt I won the fight. Every punch I took off him I took easily, and he has no punch at all."

Griffith had the slight edge going into the last five rounds but his age caught up with him. He slowed down and Monzon, the more powerful boxer, took advantage, catching him with a vicious right hook in the 14th which glazed Griffith's eyes and turned his knees to rubber.

But Griffith, who has been fighting as a pro since 1958, knew how to hang on. He came inside and tied Monzon up, but it wasn't enough by then to prevent the fight from slipping away from him.

Hundreds of Argentinian fans tried to pour into the ring as the final bell sounded, and the police took five minutes to clear it before the decision was announced.

The majority of the nonpartisan crowd, who two years ago saw Monzon floor Nino Benvenuti of Italy in the third round, clearly disagreed with the verdict and cheered Griffith back to his dressing room.

Monzon appeared to find some extra reserve in the closing rounds after appearing very weak in the ninth and 10th. But Griffith didn't have the punch to put him down at any point.

Monzon said he was "perfectly happy about the decision."

"I thought I was just about level by the 10th round but after that I was quite convinced every round was for me," he said. "In the 10th, I thought I had him knocked out but he is a very, very strong fighter—one of the hardest I have ever been in the ring against."

Monzon said he was so tired at the end that he would seriously consider retiring with the crown.

"I'm not really sure that I will fight again, but if I do, it will be against Bouttier in the fall.

"It is very unlikely that I will ever fight (Tony) Mundine of Australia."

Bouttier fought earlier on the same card Saturday, knocking out Al Phillips of New Orleans, La., in the fifth round of a one-sided contest.

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — David "Salt" Walther, 25, Dayton, Ohio, was transferred Saturday to the University of Michigan Hospital burn center for treatment of injuries suffered in an Indianapolis 500-mile race accident Monday.

Walther was moved from Indianapolis Methodist Hospital, where he had been flown by helicopter Monday a few minutes after he was burned in the fiery accident on the first lap of an aborted race.

He was removed from the intensive care until earlier and showed enough progress to withstand a hospital move despite the fact his condition report had remained serious and stable each day since the accident.

Swede Savage, who was injured in the race Wednesday, remained in Methodist in critical but stabilized condition, the same report given by hospital officials since he was taken there.

Poly track team gains sixth place

So said coach Ron Allice Saturday after his Cal Poly track and field team finished sixth in the NCAA College division championships here at Wabash College.

It was the second straight year that the Broncos had finished high in the NCAA meet. Last year Cal Poly was fifth in the scoring.

The Broncs had a one-two sweep in the 880-yard run to help as James Couch and freshman Albert Feeney, who came from seventh place, scored in that order. Couch's winning time was 1:51.8.

Both joined David Frierson and Rudy Peters to get fourth in the mile relay.

Norfolk State, helped by sprinter Seve Reddick with three firsts, claimed first place as expected, gaining 54 points to shade Lincoln State University which had 48.

Joining Poly in the top 10 was Cal State Northridge in seventh place and Poly, San Luis Obispo in 10th. Poly scored 20 points, Northridge 25 annd SLO 18.

Reddick, who repeated Friday as 100-yard dash champion, won the 220 Saturday in 20.6 seconds, missing the meet record by one tenth of a second. He then anchored Norfolk State's 440-yard relay which won in 40 seconds flat.

Reynaldo Broln of SLO became a two-time winner of the high jump, outclassing the field at 7 feet 2 inches. He set the previous record of 7 feet 1½ inches two years ago.

Norfolk's Anthony Hall threw the javelin 258, feet 7 inches and Norwegian Knut Hjeltnes of West Maryland hurled the discus 183 feet for the other records.

A BOOT OUT OF SOCCER

Duran winner over Thompson on TKO

PANAMA CITY UPI) World Boxing Association lightweight champion Roberto Duran retained his title Saturday night with a technical knockout over Australian challenger Hector Thompson in the eighth round of their scheduled 15-rounder.

Duran knocked Thompson to the canvas twice in the eighth round after causing the fifth-ranked Australian's nose to bleed profusely. Panamannian referee Nicasio Drake halted the fight after the second fall, awarding Duran the TKO. By this time, Thompson was at the mercy of Duran, who pummelled him with combinations of head and body punches.

Nolan Ryan defeated in 2-0 Yankee victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Blomberg and Horace Clarke each drove in a run and Fritz Peterson, with eighth inning relief help from Sparky Lyle, outdueled Nolan Ryan Saturday to help the New York Yankees beat the California Angels, 2-0, in a nationally televised game.

Peterson had control trouble, walking five men and throwing two wild pitches, but the only hits he allowed through seven innings were a third inning single by Rudy Meoli and a fifth inning single by Bob Oliver. The Yankees pulled off three double plays in the first four innings to erase Angel baserunners.

Peterson, raising his record to 5-6, had his toughest moment in the sixth when the Angels loaded the bases with two outs on two walks and an error by Blomberg, but Peterson got Oliver to hit into an inning-ending forceout. Lyle held the Angels hitless over the final two frames to pick up his eighth save of the season.

The Yanks reached Ryan for their first run in the fourth inning. With two out Bobby Murcer singled, stole second and scored on a single by Blomberg. Murcer's steal was set up by when catcher Art Kusnyer had trouble holding on to one of Ryan's fastballs.

New York made it 2-0 in the fifth when Thurman Munson walked, moved to third on a hit-and-run single by Gene Michael and scored on a sacrifice fly by Clarke.

Ryan, who pitched a no-hitter last month, suffered his sixth loss against as many wins and his third setback in a row. He was touched for seven hits and struck out six to raise his major league-leading strikeout total to 123.

Shoe eclipses $50-million

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Minstrell Miss raced to a surprise victory over favored Susan's Girl in the $65,000 Milady Handicap for fillies and mares at Hollywood Park Saturday and Bill Shoemaker passed the $50 million mark in career earnings by finishing third with Pallisima.

Trailing until the second turn, Minstrell Miss closed with a powerful rush to catch Susan's Girl in the stretch and drew out to win by a length.

Third place in the race was worth $9,000 and boosted the money won by Shoemaker-ridden mounts over 24 years to $50,002,292. It was another milestone in the career of the all-time riding champion, who started the day with 6,493 victories.

Jockey Donald Pierce took advantage of a 10-pound pull in weight as Minstrell Miss carried 138 pounds to 128 on Susan's Girl.

Minstrel Miss ran the 1 1-16 miles in the good time of 1:41 4-5 and paid $14.20, $4.80 and $3.00. Susan's Girl, coupled with Mainzier, returned $2.80 and $2.20 and Pallisma was worth $2.80.

The victory was worth $38,000 and boosted Minstrel Miss' earnings for the year to $98,625. It was her fourth win of the season, but only her first stakes victory this year and the second of her career.

Last year she won the Palomar Handicap at Del Mar for her initial added money win.

Mainzir cut out a brisk early pace followed by Bird Boots while Susan's Girl laid in third position and Minstrel Miss was last in the field of six until the second turn.

There Don Pierce brought Minstrel Miss to the outside for her belated drive that resulted in the rich victory for the daughter of Poona II.

The Milady is the final stepping stone to the $100,000 Vanity Handicap July 7 for the distaff championship of the meeting. The second choice in the race was Convenience, which faded to fourth place in the stretch

Expos stop L.A.'s win streak at seven games

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Renko survived a shaky start Saturday night to halt the Los Angeles Dodgers' winning streak at seven games as home runs by Ken Singleton and Bob Bailey brought the Montreal Expos a 6-3 come-from-behind victory.

Los Angeles, attempting to take over first place in the National League West, collected three hits off Renko in the first and took a 3-1 lead, but the 6-foot-6 righthander allowed the Dodgers only three other singles until the ninth when he got relief help from Mike Marshall, who nailed down the triumph.

Meanwhile, the Expos were roughing up loser Andy Messersmith for six runs on eight hits in his 6 1-3 inning stint. The two Montreal homers were the ninth and 10th off the Dodger righthander, whose record dropped to 5-5.

The setback dropped Los Angeles a game and a half behind San Francisco.

Montreal took advantage of second baseman Dave Lopes' three errors in the first inning for an unearned run. Lopes thus equalled a major league record for most errors in an inning by a second baseman.

Lopes, however, got the Dodgers moving in the bottom of the first as he opened with a single and stole second, his 14th theft of the season. With two outs, Joe Ferguson walked and Willie Crawford singled home Lopes. Ron Cey's bloop single to right brought the other two runners home.

Bailey, who went 3-for-3, homered to lead off the fourth inning. He was later ejected by second base umpire Frank Pulli for arguing on a disputed double play call.

Singleton followed Ron Fairly's one-out double in the fifth inning with his fifth homer of the year to put the Expos ahead 4-3.

Messersmith's wildness in the seventh cost him two more runs. Walks to Singleton and Mike Jorgensen, a run-producing single by John Boccabella and a fielder's choice accounted for the scoring.

Chris and Maggie meet for French Open singles crown

PARIS (UPI) — Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Australia's Margaret Court won their semifinal matches Saturday in the $135,000 French Open Tennis Championships to advance to the women's singles finals, setting up the pairing expected before the tournament.

In men's singles action, Tom Gorman of Seattle advanced to the semifinal round where he will meet Romania's Ilie Nastase, the men's second seed.

Miss Evert, 18, easily vanquished Francoise Durr of France, the 1967 champion, 6-0, 6-1, needing only 37 minutes to complete her victory. In gaining the finals, scheduled for Sunday afternoon, Miss Evert kept her tournament record intact of not having lost a set.

Mrs. Court downed countrywoman Evonne Goolagong, 6-3, 7-6, to reach the berth opposite Miss Evert.

Gorman defeated Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1. Kodes won the men's title in 1970 and 1971 but saw Gorman win five straight games in the final set.

Nastase disposed of Roger Taylor of Britain, 6-0, 6-2, 7-6, to reach the semi-final berth opposite Gorman. Earlier Saturday Taylor defeated Paul Gerken of East Norwalk, Conn., 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-7, 6-4, in a fourth-round match that took three days to complete because of the rain here.

In the women's doubles semifinals, Miss Durr and Betty Stove of The Netherlands combined for a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Chris and Olga Morozova of Russia, and in the final will face Mrs. Court and Britain's Virginia Wade, who defeated Mona Schallau of Iowa City, Iowa, and Eugenia Birioukova of Russia, 6-1, 6-4.

In other men's singles action, Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia topped Frank Froehling of Miami, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, in a fourth-round match. Pilic will face Paulo Bertolucci of Italy in quarterfinal play. In the other remaining quarterfinal matchup, Adriano Panatta of Italy, a 7-6, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5 victor over Bjorn Borg of Sweden in a fourth-round match, will meet Tom Okker of The Netherlands, the winner over top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., Friday.

Pomona Kings beaten 7-5 in Connie Mack baseball

The Kings scored three runs in the sixth. With the bases loaded and two out, Terry Huggins struck out. But the Charter Oak catcher dropped the ball and the team started off the field. Pomona runners began advancing and two runs scored before Charter Oak got organized again. The third run scored when the CO second baseman errored on Steve Benoit's grounder. grounder.

Trojans corral prep cage star

LOS ANGELES — Marvin Safford, a prep All-America from Worcester, Mass., has signed an inter-conference (national) statement of intent to enroll at the University of Southern California, Trojan coach Bob Boyd announced today.

Stafford, 6-2, 160, led Holy Name Central Catholic High School to a 24-3 record and state championship. A first team All-State selection, he averaged 25.3 points a game. He scored 2368 points in his high school career to become the second leading scorer in Massachusetts history behind King Gaskins.

"Marvin was one of the most sought-after guards in the East," said Boyd. "We are happy to have him for two reasons: he has excellent physical ability and excellent personal characteristics."

Ryun wins mile again

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Distance runner Jim Ryun, troubled by an aching right hip, won the mile run for the second time in as many nights Saturday in an International Track Association meet.

Ryun took the mile in a time of 4:05.1, dashing past Keith Munson, who led the race most of the way, at the start of the final lap. Ryun crossed the finish line 15 yards ahead.

Ryun had been scheduled to duel an old rival, Kip Keino of Kenya, in the two-mile event. But he decided to run only the mile because of bursitis in his hip. Ryun said running frequently on indoor wooden tracks had caused his hip to act up.

In other meet action, Brian Oldfield, the leading money winner on the ITA circuit, won the shot put with a throw of 69 feet, 4½ inches. Fred Debernardi was second and former Olympic champion Randy Matson was third.

Jean Louis Revelomonsoa won the men's 60-yard dash with a time of 6 seconds flat. It was the second night he won the event.

Troy topples Diablos to gain berth in series

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Shortstop Roy Smalley and third baseman Rich Dauer each drove in four runs Saturday to lead University of Southern California to a 13-6 victory over Cal State Los Angeles for the Trojans' fourth straight NCAA District 8 baseball title.

The switch-hitting Smalley had a three-run homer batting from the right side in the second inning and a bases empty shot hitting lefthanded in the fifth. He also collected a double and a single and scored three runs.

Dauer went three-for-five and hit his club-leading 11th homer of the year, a three-run shot in the fourth inning.

The Trojans now go after their fourth straight victory in the College World Series at Omaha, Neb. The NCAA tournament gets underway net Friday night.

USC slugged four home runs for a 1973 team total of 61 to break its own NCAA season homer record of 60 set in 1970. Daryl Arenstein belted the other Trojan homer with one on in the fifth.

Coming in with the bases loaded and one out in the fourth inning with USC ahead 8-6, Jeff Reinke pitched 5 2-3 innings of one-hit, scoreless ball for the Trojans, who beat the Diablos 4-3 in the first game of the best-of-three district finals Friday.

Manny Estrada and Bud Bulling homered for Cal State, which completed its season at 31-20.

For USC, now 46-11, it was its final game at Bovard Field. The Trojans move to a new facility, Dedeaux Field, next season.

Upland loses to Montclair

UPLAND — Montclair defeated Upland, 6-4, Friday night in 10 innings in a District 25 American Legion baseball game.

Montclair tied the contest with a three-run rally in the top of the ninth and scored the winning tally in the top of the 10th on a double by Mike Pittman and a single by Pat Proulx.

Dale Biggs led Montclair at the plate with three hits in four trips, and Bob Self went three-for-three for Upland.

Feuerbach wins again in Kennedy

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — World record holder Al Feuerbach, breaking the 70-foot barrier twice, won his second shot put title in less than 24 hours Saturday at the Kennedy Games with a throw of 71-1½, fourth longest heave in history.

Feuerbach won the USTFF title at Wichita, Kan., Friday night with a throw of 69-9¼, then hopped a plane for Berkeley to compete in the Kennedy Games. Later Saturday, he climbed aboard another plane en route to Moscow, Russia, for a meet there Tuesday.

Besides his winning throw Saturday, Feuerbach did 70-6¼. His world record, achieved this spring at San Jose, Calif., is 71-7.

"Competing two days in a row with travel in between fatigues you," said the muscular shot putter. "But it loosens you up too. There are so many variables that I don't know which combination is best, but I usually do quite well the second day.

"I like to think I'm capable of a world record anytime, and I go for it all the way in each meet. I always take my six throws. I had a lot of 71 warmups Saturday without trying too hard.

"With that consistency, there's bound to be one bomb in there."

Rod Milburn, the world record holder in the high hurdles, also was a double winner in less than 24 hours. Friday night he won the 120 highs at the college division championships at Crawfordsville, Ind., in 13.1. In the Kennedy Games, he took the highs in a little slower 13.4.

Kathy Schmidt of Norwalk, Calif., who took the American women's javelin record to 207-10 a week ago at the Cal Relays, broke that mark with a 208-1 performance.

Sprinter Steve Williams was a double winner by taking the 100-yard dash in 9.3 and the 220 in 20.6.

In another fine performance. Gordon Minty of England, a three-time college division champ while competing for Eastern New Mexico, took the three-mile run in 13:15.4.

Post 30 tops La Verne in opener

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — Pomona Post 30 opened the District 18 American Legion season Saturday afternoon by stealing a game from La Verne Post 330.

The Gems, who had twice during the game seen a lead evaporate to sudden La Verne explosions, broke a 7-7 tie in the top of the ninth inning at La Verne College when pinch-hitter Jon Freeman scored from third during a run-down between first and second involving Ed Carmean.

Conde Rael retired the heart of the La Verne order in the bottom of the inning to preserve the win for relief pitcher Mark Lambert.

Freeman had singled with one out, and moved to third on Carmean's base hit. Post 330 pitcher Jim Vallone attempted to pick Carmean off, allowing Freeman to break for the plate and score when Carmean eluded the La Verne infield.

The contest began as a tight pitching duel between La Verne's Ralph Beltran and the Gems' Bob Chaulk.

Beltran and Chaulk battled to a scoreless tie for the first four innings. Chaulk struck out the first three batters he faced.

Keith Thomas sacrificed Chaulk home, and Jeff Corkill singled Lewallen home.

The Gems added another run to their lead in the sixth when Jack Devers was hit by a pitch and came around to score on Les Christensen's pinch-hit single.

Chaulk's mastery over La Verne ended, though, in the bottom of the inning.

The first five Post 330 batters in the sixth hit safely to finally chase Chaulk. The quintet eventually scored to give La Verne a temporary 5-3 lead.

Leftfielder Steve Hines singled Barnard and Thompson home and Dave Alexander came up with the second double of the inning to finally knock Chaulk out.

Lambert replaced Chaulk and got Al Acosta to fly out to center, but then surrendered a hit to pinch-hitter Carl Davis.

Vallone held the lead for La Verne until the eighth, when Rael led off with a solo home run. Carmean singled and moved to second on Troy Baird's sacrifice bunt. Lewallen got on when Barnard allowed his grounder to go through for an error, and Thomas followed Lewallen with a long double to right to put the Gems back in conntrol.

La Verne tied the game again in the bottom of the eighth when center fielder Rich Ortega homered with Marty Schroedter on base.

Corkhill went three-for-four and was hit by a pitch. Carmean was three-for-five.

The Gems host Glendora Legion today in a District 18 doubleheader at Ralph Welch Park, the first game beginning at noon.

Qualifying record set by Schekter

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — South African Jody Schekter set a new Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course qualifying record for Formula 5,000 cars Saturday with a time of 1:25.779 and a speed of 100.7 miles per hour during qualifying for Sunday's L&M Championship race.

Schekter, driving a new Trojan T-101, will start in the pole position for the first of two heat races Sunday.

The previous best Formula 5,000 qualification time here was 1:27.6 and a speed of 98.63 miles per hour by George Follmer in 1970.

The top 10 finishers in each of two 100-mile heat races will then compete in the 100-mile championship race for a total purse of $80,600.

Schekter, who drives for the Winston Delta Tire team, has won two Formula 5,000 races this season and can get a healthy lead in the L&M Championship point standings with a victory Sunday over Mid-Ohio's 2.4 mile road course.

Weiskopf's four-under 68 nets Kemper Open lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf zipped through the third round of the Kemper Open golf tournament with a four-under 68 Saturday and claimed a two-stroke lead at 13-under-par 203 after 54 holes of the $200,000 event.

Veteran Ken Still, who has been on the PGA tour since 1960 but hasn't won a tournament since 1970, and Lanny Wadkins both shot 71s to tie for the runnerup spot at 205, 11-under-par on the 7,219-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course.

Four players were tied at 10-under 206, including second-round leader Leonard Thompson, who shot a fat 74 with two bogeys Saturday. Others at 206 were Cesar Sanudo, a four-year tour veteran confined to the also-ran ranks so far this year who shot a six-under 66, Dave Hill with a third round 67 and Charles Coody with a 70 Saturday.

Art Wall Jr. was next in line at eight-under 208 after a round of 70. Rod Funseth carded a 70, Wayne Yates a 70 and George Johnson a 68 to tie at 209. Nine golfers were clustered at 210.

"I'm playing really well, putted very well and feel very confident," said Weiskopf, a tall Ohio native tied for fifth in money winnings with $81,822 on this year's tour.

"I'm looking forward to tomorrow," he said. "I'm not going to play conservative golf.

"I'm playing as well as I've ever played—I'm very relaxed," Weiskopf said.

Still also had praise for Weiskopf. "Tom played a good solid round," he said. "The way he's playing he just might win the U.S. Open."

Weiskopf started off slow Saturday, shooting par on the first four holes before hitting a three wood to within 25 feet of the cup, then two-putting for a birdie on the 565-yard No. 5 hole. He finished out the front nine with par golf and turned the corner one under.

At No. 10, Weiskopf wedged to within two feet of the cup and putted in for a birdie. On 14 and 15, he wedged to within 15 feet both times and one-putted for birdies. On No. 16, he hit a wedge shot to within two feet and added another birdie. But on No. 18, a 448-yard par four hole, his drive landed to the right and he over-drove the green on his second shot, then pitched to within five feet and two-putted for a bogey.

Still had four birdies and three bogeys but said he considered himself to be playing very well. Wadkins, who was tied with Still for second place behind Thompson in the second round, said "I hit it good today, but not as good as yesterday.

"I'm definitely within shooting range," said Wadkins, fourth on the money list this year and just ahead of Weiskopf.

Claremont C.M. edges Walnut, 3-2

CLAREMONT — Two singles and an error allowed the winning run to score Saturday as Claremont edged Walnut 3-2 in a Connie Mack baseball game at Pomona College.

With one out, Chris Johnson and Tony Janusz singled. Johnson was thrown out attempting to go around to third on Janusz' hit with Janusz going to second on the play. Kent Stalwick, who was Claremont's big threat in the game, lashed a grounder to third. When the thirdbaseman's throw was wild, Janusz scored giving Claremont a win in its first league game. Walnut is 1-2-1.

The run negated a sterling performance by losing pitcher Bob Salas. Salas struck out 16 while giving up just six hits He also had three hits including a double in four at-bats.

John Huddleston got the win although pitching only one-third of an inning. He replaced starter Harry Brown with two in the first of the ninth and two men on base. He retired Salas on a liner to left field.

Tee to Cup

Head coach Stan Wood and his USC golf team go after their first national collegiate championship June 17-23 at Stillwater, Okla, home of Oklahoma State U.

In 18 years at USC, Wood, who at one time was a golf columnist for the old Los Angesl Mirror, has never had an NCAA medalist or a national title, despite a string of victories—51—in dual meets that ranks as the longest in history. The streak spanned four years from 1956-59.

Wood is also the only college coach in the country to have two national PGA champions—Al Geiberger and Dave Stockton.

Jovial and rotund, Wood was forced to shed 55 pounds, down to 250, because as he says, ". . .I was down 20 yards on my tee ball. My stomach was getting in the way of my swing. Now I can turn my shoulders. The first thing that went was the beer."

If there has been some frustration over the years in not gaining collegiate golf's top prize, the coach feels this may be the time.

"I think we have a pretty good shot at it this year. I didn't think so when the season began, but now I think this might be my best team, going by the way it has jelled and performed."

This year's five-man contingent includes Claremont's Jon Fiedler, who will play fifth man. No. 1 is Craig Stadler of La Jolla, a sophomore, and a long ball hittter.

A 5-10, 200 pounder, Stadler has a measured drive of 431 yards to his credit and five tournament victories this season.

Balancing the long ball of Stadler is third man Mark Pfeil's abilty on the greens.

"Craig is the longest hitter I ever had," said Wood. Mark's straight and he's a good putter. Plus he's been very consistent. Both these kids could go on to be successful tour pros. ."

Host Oklahoma State figures as the favorite with the obvious home course advantage. But Texas is two-time defending champion with 1971 medalist and 1972 co-medalist Ben Crenshaw still in the lineup. Crenshaw shared medalist honors last year with teammate Tom Kite.

MEMBERS OF THE Claremont-Montclair chapter of the City of Hope will sponsor their sixth annual golf tournament next Saturday and Sunday at Claremont Golf Course.

Competition will compete from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Winners will win a gift certificate from the pro shop.

A 50 cent donation is being asked.

GOLF LESSONS are in progress every Tuesday and Thursday at Palm Lake Golf Course, with pro Ken Murray offering instruction. A six-lesson series cost $12, which includes use of clubs and balls. The one-hour lessons begin at 7:30 and 8:30 p.m.

IT'S NEW AT MSAC—This new track and football field house was completed recently at Mt. San Antonio College at a cost of more than $500,000. The thirty teams, with more than 500 swimmers from Southern California, will participate in the university's first aquatic invitational for youth.

George Winney will be head starter. Meet director is Page Remillard, a senior student. Project supervisors are Bob Stull and Stan Jackson of the physical education faculty.

The events will include mixed medley relays, individual medleys, butterfuly, backstroke, breatstroke and freestyle. The meet will conclude with a mixed freestyle relay

Competing ages, based on swimmer's age on day of meet, are, 8 and under; 8-10; 11-12; 13-14; 15-17.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three finishing relay teams and top six swimmers in individual events, along with heat winner ribbons.

Pomona Valley residents interested in assiting promotion of the meet may contact the university aquatics department, 598-4622.

Dodgers' Cannizzaro likes new role

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In his 18th summer of a pro career that has taken him to 16 different cities, Chris Cannizzaro could be excused if he acted like a tired veteran.

But that isn't his style.

"My job," said the 35-year-old reserve catcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, "is to help the young kids in any way I can and stay ready in case I'm needed."

On a young team made up mostly of players in their early and middle 20s, Cannizzaro also could be excused if he resented their youth.

But that's not his way.

"I've been in baseball for 18 years," he said, "and I've never had a communication problem."

In the first seven weeks of the season, Cannizzaro got to the plate only three times in pinch-hit roles. His No. 1 job has been to help perfect the catching skills of the Dodgers' two young receivers—Joe Ferguson, 26, and Steve Yeager, 24.

Ferguson, the starter, and Yeager have high praise for Cannizzaro, who is quick to return the compliments.

"Both these two kids are listeners," he said. "They're two of the finest young catchers I've ever seen."

After two months, the Dodgers found themselves contenders in the National League West.

"We've got the confidence and we've got some pretty good major league ball players," the veteran catcher assessed. "With our pitching staff, we've got a chance to win it all.

"Our youth might hurt us in September as opposed to a veteran team like Cincinnati but again it might not. Most of these kids have had quite a bit of experience at the minor league level and they've won there.

"They're used to winning and they don't see why they can't win at this level. I think it'll be interesting to see what happens if we're still up there in September."

Of the Dodger youngsters—Ferguson, Bill Buckner, Bill Russell, Ron Coy, Dave Lopes, etc.—Cannizzaro was asked to pick a potential superstar or superstars.

"I can't do that," he said. "I don't think it's fair at this stage to put that label on any one of them. Ferguson could win the RBI title this year but one good year doesn't make a career."

Texas gridders claim slim percentage edge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas narrowly holds the edge in winning percentage over Penn State, .910 to .904, in regular season college football action over the last five seasons, the National Collegiate Sports Services announced today.

The Longhorns have compiled a 45-4-1 record since 1968, as compared to the Nittany Lions' 47-5-0. However, in the last five seasons, Penn State met Texas only once, defeating them 30-6 in the 1972 Cotton Bowl, and if postseason bowl action is considered—Penn State was 3-1 while Texas was 3-2 — the Lions would lead in percentage, .893 to .882.

Among the top 14 schools percentage-wise, 11 retained the same coaches for the entire period, including all of the top five—Texas, Penn State, Michigan, Ohio State and Arizona State.

Reflecting the increased offensive emphasis of college football, six of the top 10 winning schools were among the top 10 in both total offense and scoring. Notre Dame, the No. 9 percentage team, was the only team in the top 10 in the four categories of total offense and defense and scoring offense and defense, but Nebraska, San Diego State and Penn State just missed.

The top 10: Texas .910, Penn State .904, Michigan .885, Ohio State .872, Arizona State .865, Tennessee .858, Nebraska .833, Toledo .821, Notre Dame .820, San Diego State .814.

Second 10: Southern California .811, Dartmouth .811, Louisiana State .802, Auburn .800, Arkansas .783, Alabama .774, Oklahoma .755, Yale .744, West Virginia .736, Houston .726.

Cal Poly's second clinic has top talent

The curtain is about to raise on the Pomona Park and Recreation Departments 1973 Adult Civic Softball season. Play for over half of the 68 participating teams begins Monday evening. The remainder get underway throughout the week.

This year there are five slo-pitch and three fast-pitch leagues. The competition will be intense in all eight circuits.

Each season I try and handicap the leagues. However, there are no clear cut choices this time. The only sure statement is there will be playoffs needed at season's end to determine the championships.

We will attempt to give a run down on the best bets to be at or close to the top. Our opinions are based on the just completed practice round and past performances plus a little guessing.

The American fast pitch league will probably be a three-team race between defending champion African Palace, Glendora Flyers and the Kings. All three possess fine pitching and defense. Whoever hits the best will win.

The remaining five contenders in the top league may be short on the pitching end. How the top three do against the lower five will probably determine the title winner.

Pomona's number two fast pitch league, The National, may be a real dog fight. The team that has the fewest problems with vacations, injuries, or overtime work will probably win.

If I had to pick a winner, it would be Jim Cerda's Equipment coached by Louie Cerda. The team has consistent pitching. A sleeper in the league might be Vern Davidson's Ewart's Club. Should young 18-year-old Tom Murphy be as good a pitcher as some say then look out.

The Coast League may be as tight as the National. There is one team, that is capable of running away and hiding. Bob Alispones' Bullets could romp if their defense supports the pitching.

Alispones has righthander Jim Hummel doing the pitching. Hummel is one of the most underated throwers in the area. He was a victim of poor defense last season.

Slo-Pitched Balanced

The slo pitch leagues are very balanced. Last season all but one league needed a play off to determine the winner. This season will be no different.

We will pick the Northside Teen Post to capture the California League title. Coach Bob Smith's squad can be expected to beat back the challenges of Falstaff Brewing and Convenient Food Mart.

Two years ago, the Teen Post won the S.C.M.A.F. title, last year they suffereed through a 4-14 season with many internal problems. However, the key players on the 1971 championship squad are back.

In the Florida League, the pick is Mandrell's Body Shop. Coach Bob Mandrell's team has been knocking at the door for two seasons now and they may get in this time. Their toughest opponent will be themselves.

There aren't any weak sisters in the Florida loop so the winner must be consistent and play strong defense.

Terry Passoth's Valley Sheet Metal should win the Cactus League. The main challenge comes from the Agitator Shop. However they must play better than they did during the practice games.

Picking a winner in the Hawaiian League is almost impossible. However, I will go with the Lincoln Avenue Reform Church. Coach Dennis Beukelman's team may be a little stronger than their nine oppoents.

In the Grapefruit circuit, Munger's Oldtimers must be the choice. John Munger's team has been one of the most consistent and they come off a strong showing in last years San Gabriel Valley tournament.

Local softball action can be seen nightly from 6:30 PM to 10:00 PM at five locations. Slo-pitch is played at Palomares, Ralph Welch and Philadelphia parks along with the Mt. San Antonio College field on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Fast pitch games are played at Palomares Park and MSAC on Tuesday and Thursday as well as Washington Park every evening.

The activity is good recreation for the participant, spectators will also find the program very enjoyable.

POMONA — When Dr. Frank Lansford, the director of the 1973 California Stage Polytechnic University Pomona All-Sports Clinic, was planning the agenda he had only one goal in mind — to present the top talent available in each sport featured.

And the line-up for the second annual clinic, to be held on the University campus June 20-23, indicates that he succeeded in his talent search.

Only a handful of teams were considered to have a chance to defeat UCLA in the NCAA basketball championships this year. The head coaches of two of those contenders will be featured speakers at the All-Sports Clinic — Norm Ellenberger of the University of New Mexico and Bill Musselman of the University of Minnesota.

Al Downing and Bill Buckner, two veterans of the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be guest speakers at the baseball sessions of the clinic.

The track and field speakers include coaches whose athletes have won championships and set records on every level. Among those speaking will be Vern Wolfe of the University of Southern California, Tom Telez of UCLA, Willie Williams of the University of Arizona and Dr. Jack Rose of Cal State Long Beach.

Vaughan Hitchcock, who has built Cal Poly San Luis Obispo into a national power in wrestling, will be the guest speaker for that sport.

Special luncheon programs will be held Wednesday, June 20, and Friday, June 22, at Kellogg West on the University campus. The Wednesday speaker will be Dr. Bruce C. Ogilvie, Professor of Psychology at San Jose State University on the topic "Emotional Cost of High Level Stress."

On Friday, Dr. Jack Wilmore, Professor of Physical Education at UC Davis and an exercise physiologist with the San Francisco 49ers, will speak on "Innovation in Coaching: Using Science to Build Better Athletes".

Many more speakers are on the agenda for the four-day clinic to be held in Cal Poly's new and old gymnasiums.

The clinic was conceived to enrich an individual's knowledge of major sport through personal contact with persons with proven success in their special fields.

College-level credit will be granted to persons attending all four days of the clinic, according to Dr. Lansford. By completing registration forms and payment of the registration fee, four units of credit will be awarded upon completion of the clinic.

Registration fees are $75 for all four days with four units of credit; $50 for all four days (luncheons included) but no credit; and $35 for two days with no credit.

The clinic is open to athletes, coaches, students, anyone who is interested in gaining more knowledge of sports, added Dr. Lansford.

Interested persons should contact the Cal Poly Pomona Physical Education Department at (714) 598-4611.

Gustava Pena to face Santos

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mexican soccer star Gustavo Pena will join the Guadalajara, Mexico team here today for its match against Santos of Brazil.

Pena, the captain of the Mexican National team and his country's number one defensive player, was asked to join the Guadalajara team by Coach Walter Ormeno in order to end Santos' winning streak over Mexican teams.

Pena is one of the 1970 World Cup stars who plays for the Jalisco Club of Guadalajara and it is hoped he can contain Santos' superstar, Pele, who is considered the greatest soccer player of all time.

Arizona school trains business executives for careers overseas

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) The great global gold rush for the 500 billion business generated by multinational companies is accelerating daily.

In Japan, 56,000 businessmen and students are studying English.

In London, native German and French teachers are in short supply. Some 80 British businessmen recently took crash courses in Chinese because of the thaw in Peking. Foreign language schools are booked solid until autumn.

In a suburb of Phoenix, at a former U.S. Air Force base that trained World War II pilots to fight the Nazis and Japanese, a unique American school trains business executives and potential executives to fight for the multinational pot of gold, which today accounts for one-sixth of the world's gross natinoal product

The Thunderbird Graduate School of International Management at Glendale, Ariz., is the only graduate school in the U.S. devoted exclusively to educating men and women for international management careers. Its curriculum demands knowledge of business techniques and cultural makeups in foreign countries plus a conversational knowledge of a second language.

Korea, Japan and France have set up schools copied after Thunderbird.

Last week Thunderbird graduated 99 men and women from 32 states and 18 foreign countries. After being culled by swarms of recruiters from multinational American corporations, the graduates will spread out over the world to mine the foreign trade gold.

Since the school was founded in 1946 on the 180-acre site of the former Thunderbird AFB. More than 2,600 business, government, social and educational organizations have hired more than 7,000 Thunderbird graduates. Many of them now important executives, those graduates work in some 100 countries and territories from Angola and Belgium to the Virgin Islands and Zambia.

Each semester 100 or more multinatinoal firms send recruiters to the school. Of Fortune's 500 largest companies 267 have hired graduates off the Glendale campus.

The average salary offered has been $12,900 but offers ranged up to $20,000. Seven engineer undergraduates who decided to bend their careers towards business management had as many as five job offers apiece before their graduations. Fifty-five per cent of the December 22 class had jobs at the time they received their Masters In Management (MIM) degree. Six months later 99 per cent of them had been placed.

Because of such placement success the school's enrollment has risen 62 per cent since 1967. By March, 1972, Thunderbird had enrolled students from every state, 56 countries, 1009 U.S. college and universities, and another 247 from foreign universities. One is Han Soo Kim, a retired general in the Korean marine corps, who will be graduated this month.

"It was the right school at the right time to do the right things", said President William Voris who taught in or headed business and management curricula at the University of Arizona and California State University of Los Angeles and served as professor or consultant in Saudi Arabia, Korea, Lebanon and Iran before taking over at Thunderbird in 1971. "It also is a school that bonds with the times."

Its tripartite curriculum consists of courses in World Business (practical aspects of international finance and business management in foreign countries), International Studies, The cultural background of foreign countries and Modern Languages (conversational proficiency in at least one foreign language. Foreign students attending Thunderbird take English as a second language.

An MIM degree is awarded upon successful completion of 48 semester hours during three regular semesters or two semesters and a summer session. Total cost per student runs around $6,100, including room and board. Companies often pick up the tab if they want a promising employee to pickup skills in their overseas operations.

A non-degree course to prepare corporate executives and their wives for overseas duties was established in 1951. So far 600 executives and many wives anxious "to fit in smoothly" have taken the six or eight week "cram" course. A six week session costs $2,400 for the man and $1,800 for the wife, including room and board, cassette players, tapes and books.

Strong men have been know to groan in frustration and their wives to break into hysterical tears as they study, literally, day and night to learn a second language in that short time. "But we lose very few of them," Dr. Voris said. "And they eventually thank us for forcing them to learn the language of the country to which they are going."

Average age of the Thunderbird student is 26. Sixty per cent of them come directly from graduate school. Forty per cent of them come directly for graduate school. Forty per cent are married when they enroll. About 8 per cent are women and about 20 per cent from a foreign country.

Class sizes range from one in the individual research courses to a maximum of eight in language conversation courses and 200 or more in some lecture courses.

Forty per cent of the 75 faculty members are of foreign birth and some are retired corporation executives.

Dr. Voris restructured the faculty when he took over two years ago.

"We've added some bright young squirts as a mix with the more experienced teachers," Dr. Voris said. "We wanted to get the realists as well as the theoreticians. It did stir up some jealousies and worries. But I like that. It gives our students the advantage of learning from the pragmatist as well as the Ph D."

Has Dr. Voris noticed any trends in the quickening race for multinational dominance?

"Japanese is coming up a fast as a second language," he said. "Spanish is dropping off. Brazil still attracts U.S. capital, but the other South American countries seem to be losing ground according to the recruiting we see. Probably because of their political problems."

Thunderbird, a non-profit school accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a Master's Degree graduate school, is helped financialy by the business community.

While it derives 85 per cent of its costs from tuitions, the other 15 per cent and funds needed for expansion and retirement of debt comes from corporations and interested individuals.

"We have about 60 faithful corporate supporters," Dr. Voris said. "Our affiliation with the American Management Association (AMA) is a security blanket. Each year it gives a chair worth $18,000 and its contributions over the last 10 years has run about $300,000. So we are running in the black and retiring debt at a rapid rate."

Dr. Voris said he and other school officials visit about 500 campuses annually to spread the word about Thunderbird.

The school's board of directors includes Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona, Lowell Thomas, author and news commentator, and active or retired presidents and board chairmen from such companies as IBM World Trade Corp., Motorola, Goodyear International Corp. and Pepsico International.

There has been talk about changing the name of the school from Thunderbird to some thing more identified with business and trade.

"But American Indians regarded the 'thunderbird' as a god responsible for peace, brotherhood and prosperity," explained Dr. Voris. Apparently the business world also does, so we hesitate about making a change."

Bears took over Wall Street for poor week

By LEE MITGANG
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks tumbled over a broad front in sharply reduced activity this week on the New York Stock Exchange as Wall Street failed to sustain the brief exuberance that carried the Dow sharply higher the week before.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials skidded 36.88 to 893,86, wiping out the previous week's gains of over 35 points. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, a broader barometer, also fared badly, losing 4.01 to 103.93. The NYSE index slid 0.12 to 54.86.

The list was hit hard: 1,423 issues declined, only 337 advanced, among 1,946 traded.

Turnover slid to 45,621,167 shares, about half last week's 90,247,740 shares. Volume was 61,367,420 a year earlier. Friday's volume totaled only 10,405,000 shares, the smallest since Oct. 9, 1972.

Investor confidence, both public and institutional, departed the Street this week, and had several analysts worrying out loud. Lucien Hooper of W.E. Hutton said, "Morale here is as bad as I've ever seen it."

Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham said "The lack of volume reminds us more and more of the 1969 bear market— a slow, insidious fall."

Several others indicated a crucial test of the low Dow 800's is in the offing.

A number of developments weighed on investor confidence. The dollar slid steadily on European currency markets, and reached post World War II lows by midweek. Gold prices took a corresponding leap, soaring to all time highs on bullion markets.

These only mirrored and magnified the larger questions of Watergate, and an administration that to many now seems ineffectual in its fight to curb inflation. Observers said investors are worried a "tightmoney" strategy will prove inadequate. Some said the dramatic surge in short-term interest rates—with the blessing of the Federal Reserve—has been counterproductive.

Dollar woes overseas were viewed by many as a European vote of no confidence in the United States' ability to tame its booming economy and fireballing inflation.

The Commerce Department reported several indications the economy is indeed slowing down. It said an index of leading economic indicators had dropped in April for the first time in 30 months. A later report said factory orders in April slipped 0.5 per cent, the first such drop in six months.

NBC, Soviets to swap TV, radio shows

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Broadcasting Co. and the Soviet Union will exchange radio and television programs under an agreement signed recently.

NBC called the agreement "wide-ranging and long-term" and said it calls for exchange of news specials and documentaries showing life in the two nations.

The exact programs to be shown will be determined in future discussions in New York and Moscow.

The agreement took four years of negotiations, NBC said, and also provides for an exchange of production and technical personnel and middle-level management employes.

NBC President Julian Goodman and Sergei G. Lapin, chairman of the television broadcasting committee of the Soviet Council of Ministers, attended the signing ceremony in NBC's headquarters in Rockefeller Center.

Hiker uncovers stolen jewelry

ONO (UPI) — Jewelry believed stolen in Napa and valued at $80,000 was found buried beside a tree near this Northern California community by a hiker, according to sheriff deputies.

Authorities said recently that Jess Forscher of Ono was hiking in the area during the weekend when he discovered several rings. Digging into the soil he found a paper sack containing 205 rings and 42 watches.

Deputies said the jewelry was believed taken in a March 3 burglary at the Gensler-Lee jewelry store in Napa.

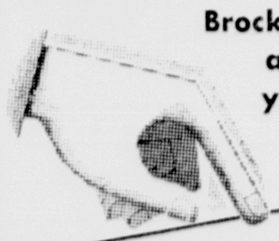
Make Money With Them . . .



Brockway Glass Co. will pay you one cent a pound for every glass bottle or jar you bring into our redemption center.

A VERY SINCERE PURPOSE IS BEHIND THIS PROGRAM—

Brockway Glass Company is one of the nation's largest glass container manufacturers. We're proud of the glass containers we make. But we're concerned with what happens to our glass containers after they're empty. They either become litter, or if thrown into the trash add to the solid waste that is plaguing our country.

This is a problem.

A problem we're doing something about. What we have done is set up a "Glass Container Reclamation Program" in conjunction with a national glass industry program to collect empty glass containers. We're paying one cent a pound for any bottle or jar anyone will bring into our redemption center.

We'll take them as long as they are clean, free of metal & separated according to color-Flint (clear) amber, green. It doesn't matter what size, shape or kind of glass container you bring. We'll take it as long as it is made of glass.

The glass containers we collect will be put to good use. They go back into the manufacturing process to make new glass containers.

So start looking around. Collect all the bottles and jars you can find and bring them to us.

We're going to try to reclaim all the used containers in this area. But we need your help to do it.

Lead poison health threat

PALO ALTO (UPI) — We live in a world increasingly aware of poisons: lead in paint and gasoline, mercury-contaminated fish and cadmium plated screws.

Cadmium screws?

Yes, say two chemists at the Varian Associates scientific instruments manufacturing company.

"Knowing what I do now, from our studies," said Dennis Sandoz, manager of the optics application laboratory at Varian, "I wouldn't let my children play with cadmium plated screws —put them in their mouths —and I wouldn't want them to fool around with flashlight batteries."

Some 15 million pounds of cadmium is used each year in American industrial processes. It is found in silver solder, bearings, dry cell batteries. It is used for electroplating of iron and seel, as a plastic stabilizer and as an anticorrosive.

Sandoz and applications chemist Clive Parker used a newly developed carbon rod atomizer attachment on an atomic absorption spectrophotometer machine to measure trace cadmium levels in the environment.

Their preliminary findings on the effects of everyday exposure to cadmium particles are chilling, but Sandoz and Parker emphasize they have only scratched the surface with their methods. The study of cadmium poisoning among workers and residents in the United States is yet to be fully documented.

Lengthy surveys conducted in Japan by scientists from the Department of Environmnetal Hygiene of the Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden under a contract with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, found that a crippling disease called Itai-Itai "is a manifestation of chronic cadmium poisoning.'

In its advance stages the disease makes bones brittle. A victim may suffer fractured ribs simply by coughing, the department's scientists reported. Skeletal deformation takes place, until the victim is bent double and unable to stand.

Case after case was documented in the fertile basin along the Jintsu River below the Kamioka metals mine near Toyama City. Water apparently contaminated with cadmium from the mine was used on rice crops and consumed by the populace, the report said.

But a bigger danger from cadmium occurs when the element is converted into a gaseous state, said Parker. Inhaled cadmium particles tend to accumulate in the lungs and daily exposure can result in an emphysema-like condition.

Using their sophisticated instruments to measure cadmium in parts per million, the two chemists found miniscule amounts in dozens of everyday items.

Parts per million, Sandoz said, is comparable to one drop of vermouth in six gallons of gin.

Traces of the poison, not always in dangerous amounts, they said, were measured in baby foods, tobacco, hair, beverages and other everyday items.

The danger is highest, they found, for industrial workers in electroplating processes, plumbers and others who frequently use silver solder and breathe the fumes.

Cadmium in a gaseous state enters the body and tends to accumulate over the years. A cigarette, for instance, was found to contain cadmium levels of from one to two parts per million.

In the smoke from two-thirds of a cigartete, Parker said, at least one of two micrograms of cadmium — that's one to two parts per million —will burn into a gaseous state. Ten per cent of that enters the body. It flows through the biological processes and .026 micrograms of the toxic material is retained in the lungs from a single cigarette.

"It can make a very significant contribution to your total ingestion of cadmium," Parker said.

AGE AND HEALTH
This policy may be purchased by anyone of any age in any state of health who has never had cancer.

COVERAGE STARTS
This policy provides full benefits for any cancer which is first diagnosed 60 days or more after the policy effective date. Pre-existing conditions are not covered. Any cancer first diagnosed 60 or more days after the effective date is presumed not to be pre-existing.

OTHER INSURANCE
This policy was designed to supplement your existing health insurance program to better provide for the expense of cancer; therefore, this policy pays in addition to Medicare or any group or individual insurance you may carry.

ELIGIBILITY, TERMINATION AND DEPENDENTS
Eligible for this policy are yourself, your spouse, and all of your unmarried children under 21 who live with you. Children born after the Policy Date, or legally adopted children under age 21 are automatically insured if the policy is issued on a Family Plan basis. The insurance on any dependent child will terminate on the first renewal date following his marriage or 21st birthday. The insurance on your spouse covered under this policy terminates upon divorce or separation.

RENEWABILITY PROVISION
This plan is Guaranteed Renewable for life. As long as you make your timely payment of premium, we guarantee not to cancel or refuse to renew your policy for any reason whatsoever.
Your rate cannot be increased individually unless there is a general rate increase on all persons of the same class as you. You cannot be singled out for a rate increase because of claims, bad health, or advanced age.

LIMITATIONS AND EXCLUSIONS
This policy does not cover any loss caused by or resulting from any disease other than cancer, or any cancer first diagnosed prior to 60 days after the effective date of insurance as to each covered person.
No benefits shall be payable for or on account of (1) any supplies or services for which no charge is made in the absence of insurance or for which the insured is not required to pay, or (2) charges made for professional services by a close relative.
Cancer must be diagnosed by a microscopic examination of human tissue or fluid by a qualified pathologist. (This is a standard medical practice for diagnosis of cancer.) The maximum benefit payable to any one insured shall not exceed $60,000.

BENEFIT INCREASES AND REDUCTIONS
If cancer causes loss occurring prior to your 45th birthday, the benefits will be increased 50%. If cancer causes loss which occurs after your 65th birthday, the benefits will be reduced by 50%. The maximum $60,000 benefit will apply regardless of age at inception of loss.

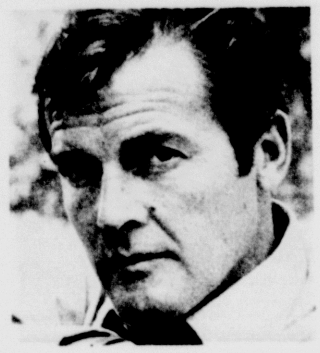
Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ROGER MOORE, the new James Bond

As the third actor to play James Bond in movies, will it be hard to follow in Sean Connery's footsteps as agent 007? Will this be the last episode? —D.O.R., Hayward, Calif.



● Actually, I would have been the first to play James Bond in "Dr. No" if I hadn't been involved with "The Saint." Producer Harry Saltzman offered me the film, but I had to turn it down and he gave it to Sean Connery. Five Bond films later, he asked me to do "The Man With the Golden Gun," and I signed for it. The filming was to be done in Cambodia, but when hostilities erupted there, the project was scrapped. We finally got together on "Live and Let Die." I've signed for two others. Ian Fleming had some unpublished manuscripts that will form the basis of other James Bond films. As for Sean, he and I are good friends. We're two different actors, so I intend to play Bond my way and not follow his interpretation of the role.

FOR HOWARD COSELL, sportscaster

Do you believe big-time sports belong on college campuses? —R. F. Kane, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I'm dead set against a big-time college sports program because I think it defies and thwarts the purposes of a large university. The premium must be placed on academics. The moral breakdown of an athlete begins when he's recruited for college.

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON

● Checkers died in 1964 and was buried at Bide-A-Wee Associates Pet Cemetery in Wantagh, Long Island.

I've heard that you're a vegetarian. Is this true? If so, why? —Donna Powers, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● That's true, I am a vegetarian. I simply can't bear the thought of killing animals for food.

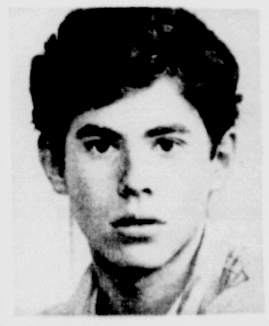
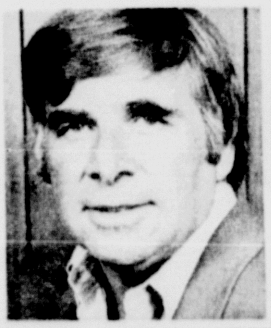
I hear an actor can't make much money from his first movie. Does that mean that you could still be poor despite "Summer of '42"?—R. L., Maywood, Calif.



● I had to sign a contract before I did the screen test, otherwise I wasn't going to have the opportunity to act in the first place. So I signed and was therefore restricted from making any strong financial gains. Although the film made about $20 million, I'm not as well off as I could be. But at least Warner Bros. gave me the opportunity.

FOR GENE RODDENBERRY producer of "Star Trek"

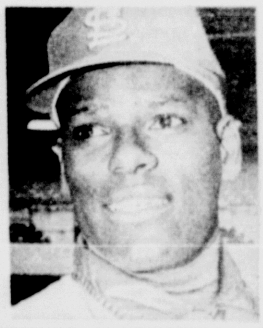
Any chance that you'll make a new "Star Trek" series for TV? It was such a good show.—R. Waller, Sarasota, Fla.



● "Star Trek" is coming back this fall as an animated series. It will be shown on NBC-TV late Saturday mornings—but it it won't be a "kiddy show." Many previous "Star Trek" writers will be with us. William Shatner has signed on to do the voice of Capt. James Kirk, and we're sure many others of the original cast will recreate their characters as well.

FOR BOB GIBSON, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher

I understand you were with the Harlem Globetrotters. Why did you quit?—Dan McAuliffe, Council Bluffs, Iowa



● I was with the Harlem Globetrotters for one season and I quit because Bing Devine [general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals] asked me to. He suggested it would be better for my baseball career if I didn't play basketball in the off-season.

FOR JULIA CHILD, "The French Chef"

Can you tell if a strange restaurant is good or bad without testing the food?—Ann E. Regan, Brighton, Mass.

● Yes. I can tell a good restaurant a short time after entering it by its smells. The good one smells good.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

In a recent FAMILY WEEKLY article on the "Secret Sexist Test," you equated Frank Sinatra with tenderness. How do you explain this in view of his recent display of bad manners in public?—Mrs. Aaron May, Wilmington, N. C.

● All I meant was that many of Sinatra's most popular songs deal with love and romance, and could appeal to a man who has a tender spot in his emotional makeup. My comment was not a reading of Mr. Sinatra's character.

Sheilah Graham Reports:

This Is How It Is Today in Palm Beach, The Land of the Super-Rich

Since her marriage to Stephen "Laddie" Sanford in the mid-thirties, Mary Duncan Sanford has ruled Palm Beach society along with Marjorie Merriweather Post.

Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

By Sheilah Graham

Author and columnist Sheilah Graham is known for her long-time incisive reporting of the Hollywood scene. Born in a London slum, she has become an impressive figure in the world of the wealthy and well-known.

Celia (Mrs. Victor) Farris is the leading Palm Beach hostess after her friend Mary Sanford. Who would have thought that so much could be achieved with milk cartons?

John MacArthur would be welcome at any soiree, but he doesn't attend many. He prefers the simple home-cooking prepared by his wife, despite his untold millions.

Fifty years ago, back in the 1920's, Palm Beach, Fla., society was like this: You had to produce five generations of pure Aryan blood to be a member of the Everglades and Jockey clubs; The Breakers and all the top hotels were "restricted"; and plebeian Sir Harry Oakes would not allow Joseph Kennedy in his house. But there was a chink in the armor, for even then talent could jump the barriers of exclusivity.

Today, almost anyone with a thousand dollars to donate to charity can enter the doors of the most aristocratic families – those that are left. There is no such thing as a restricted hotel or club—you can sue, as a Jewish family did a couple of years ago, to smash The Breakers taboo, so that it is now 80 percent Jewish, and much more lively than in the stodgy past.

Today you can see Old Guard Charlie Munn dancing cheek to cheek with ex-chorus girl Gregg Dodge Moran, the wife of an ex-vice cop from the Bronx. And 80-plus-year-old Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, now an aristocrat in her own right, may be doing a sprightly turn with Greg Juarez, who used to be a bit player turned press agent in Hollywood. Now Greg is a millionaire with an exquisite art gallery on Worth Avenue, the Fifth Avenue of Palm Beach.

Today, a former minor newspaperwoman, Betty Betz McMahon, can bring the top drawer to her beautiful home by the ocean for pre-Easter lunch cocktails and supper dances for charity. Betty's Canadian husband is among the three richest men in the world.

Some of the Old Guard members are still around – like the Phippses, the Shevlins, the Munns, the Loel Guinnesses, the Bakers, the Biddles, the Drexels, Stanton Griffis. Marjorie Merriweather Post, who once gave three square dances a week in the huge playhouse, now limits herself to one. She holds only intimate dinner parties inside the house. When the 86-year-old grande dame flits to her heavenly abode, her magnificent house will be used by visiting kings, presidents, and domestic and foreign dignitaries. The Post Toasties heiress, several times wed, is determined that her beloved Mar-a-Lago will not be torn down to become a housing development for middle-income retirees, as happened with Mrs. Stotesbury's El Mirasol.

There are still six servants in Mar-a-Lago's kitchen, six butlers, two chauffeurs, a half-dozen maids and six gardeners. But at one time there were 60 servants, plus a crew of 72 for "The Hussar," the world's largest sailing yacht.

The No. 1 hostess in Palm Beach today is Mary Duncan Sanford. She has ruled with

"MacArthur...is so wealthy he should send CARE packages to Howard Hughes."

Mrs. Post since her marriage to Laddie Sanford in the mid-thirties. Mary was never a big star, but she made a hit on Broadway in the late twenties in "The Shanghai Gesture." She played an inmate of a brothel, which was very shocking in the twenties. After a brief fling in Hollywood, she married multimillionaire Stephen "Laddie" Sanford. He was a famous polo player then, but he is now a cripple and is fed with a spoon by his charming wife.

You won't find the current richest man in Palm Beach, John MacArthur, at any gathering, social or charitable. MacArthur, brother of the late playwright Charlie MacArthur, who married Helen Hayes, is so wealthy he should send CARE packages to Howard Hughes. But—he dresses atrociously and lives in a small apartment in West Palm Beach, on the wrong side of Lake Worth. His wife still cooks for this man who owns the Palm Beach Spa, big hunks of Florida and sizable

How It Is In Palm Beach

The Zauderers are relative newcomers to the Palm Beach scene, but they are as exclusive as the Old Guard. Guess who their son-in-law is?

Greg Juarez, former Hollywood bit player and press agent, is now a millionaire art gallery owner who does ballroom turns with Rose Kennedy.

Wide World

Marjorie Merriweather Post remains the grande dame of Palm Beach. She may not be able to take her wealth with her, but she is going to safeguard what she has to leave behind.

Pictorial Parade

In her early days in Palm Beach, Rose Kennedy was on the outside looking in. Times have changed. She is now one of the most invited and indefatigable of partygoers.

including, of course, organizers Mary Sanford and Mrs. Jock "Brownie" McClean, daughter-in-law of the famed Hope diamond, by way of a chorus line and a marriage to Schrafft candy. There was a fund-raising gala recently at The Breakers to honor talkative Martha Mitchell, because when they run out of charity balls there are cocktail parties or supper dances for a visiting celebrity. Parties, parties, for every reason, some admirable, some because what else is there to do when you are rich and socially ambitious? The sole problem — not enough men to go around.

Mary Sanford's door is closed to some of the new society. Especially to Gregg Moran. Their feud has lasted several years. Gregg was angry when Mary did not invite her to a party when some of Gregg's pals had received the precious white card. She complained loudly and bitterly, and blew any chance she subsequently might have had. The acrimony between the two party givers has reached the point where if you go to a Moran affair you are taboo at the Sanfords. I have heard several younger socialites in this party-mad village whisper apprehensively, "I hope Mary doesn't find out I've been to Gregg's."

In a bygone decade, Old Guard Charlie Munn dictumed, "A gentleman is a man who pronounces to-may-to as to-mah-to." In Palm Beach's upper echelons today, that is still true, especially among the children of the newly rich.

Palm Beach, odd as it may seem, was discovered and founded by people whose parents had come steerage to make their fortunes in the hospitable United States. In 1893, Henry Morrison Flagler founded the famed resort, 70 miles north of Miami. He was determined to make it the world's most splendid playground. The son of a poor Presbyterian minister, he married his late wife's nurse, and then went to Florida and started building hotels. Between buying and building, he described West Palm Beach as "the city I am building for my help."

In 1894, his company constructed the Royal Poinciana Hotel, six stories high and the tallest wooden structure up to that time. The hotel, with its 32 acres, included tennis courts, golf, nightclubs and a dining room to seat 2,000 people. Ring Lardner, the famed wit of the '20's and '30's said, "To phone from one end to the other would be a toll call."

"Parties, parties, for every reason, some admirable, some because what else is there to do when you are rich and socially ambitious? The sole problem—not enough men to go around."

In the old days, the season was over after Washington's Birthday. Now it lingers until the end of April, with more and more residents making their beautiful mansions into year-round homes. Florida, which has no state income tax, is a haven of a sort for the rich, and many are choosing to live there, especially in Palm Beach, even though its prices, as everywhere else, are again on the rise.

Perhaps the biggest change of all in Palm Beach is the emergence of the Jewish multimillionaires, who are sometimes as exclusive as the great hostesses of yesterday. The Zauderers (their son-in-law, Peter Duchin, was brought up by the W. Averell Harrimans) are as exclusive as the Doc Holdens, the Whitneys or the Huttons.

Cosmetician Estee Lauder has two homes in Palm Beach. She spends the winter in one and rents the other. She gives many parties, and the Munns—do they ever stay at home? — attend, as do the Charles Wrightsmans and the indefatigable Rose Kennedy. The Charles (Paint and Powder) Revsons give and attend most of the charity parties. But blacks are still excluded. When David Frost and his then financée, Diahann Carroll, appeared in Palm Beach last winter, they did not receive the invitations that would have been showered on Mr. Frost alone.

Many Palm Beachers who feel that the paradise has become tawdry are moving away to Hobe Sound, thirty miles to the north. Of those who remain and who are not too old to be called The Younger Set, I predict that blonde, attractive Celia (Mrs. Victor) Farris will soon be rated among the top hostesses of the new, uninhibited, less artificial, less snobbish Palm Beach. Mrs. Farris was well known in the London theater as Celia Lipton, before she married philanthropist Victor, who has more than 200 inventions to his credit, including the milk carton (20 million of them are used each day). They have a beautiful oceanside home, Casa del Mar, with a swimming pool practically in the ocean and an 85-foot yacht.

Celia's best friend in Palm Beach is Mary Sanford, who is still the Queen, and who, I believe, will pass the crown to Celia when she abdicates the throne. FW property all over the U.S. (He recently added the huge Gulf and Western Building in New York to his holdings.) Mr. MacArthur would, of course, be welcome at any soiree or charity event. But that is one reason he avoids them, since he would be asked to dig into his capacious pockets.

Oh, the balls for charity! The Heart Ball on Valentine's Day. The Good Samaritan Hospital Benefit. The Red Cross Ball. The tea party for the St. Edwards Guild. The Christmas Capers. The St. Mary's Hospital Auction dinner dance. The April in Paris Ball, with half of Palm Beach at the Waldorf's Grand Ballroom in New York,

SO YOU WANT TO MOVE TO PALM BEACH...

Is it possible, in these inflationary times, that there can still be paradises for the rich? What is life like today in Palm Beach, the grande dame of all such resorts? Some interesting data:

- Condominium apartments. You can pick up one for $30,000-$75,000. In prewar days, visitors spent this much on a private railroad car just to get there!
- Private homes. These may cost you a bit more. One was recently built at a reported cost of $3 million.
- Transportation. Palm Beach has a population of 50 Rolls-Royces year-round, 300 in season.
- Children. Not an ideal spot for small fry. (The median age in Palm Beach is 58.) The best schools are two private schools — $1,900 tuition.
- Median income. $40,000-$50,000 a year.
- Real estate prices. $2,000 a foot for waterfront property. Somewhat less inland.
- Miscellaneous. Hanging out clothes is prohibited. So is selling food or drink in the open. No drive-ins allowed, except banks. No neon signs allowed. No undecorated store windows allowed. Men must wear shirts at all times.

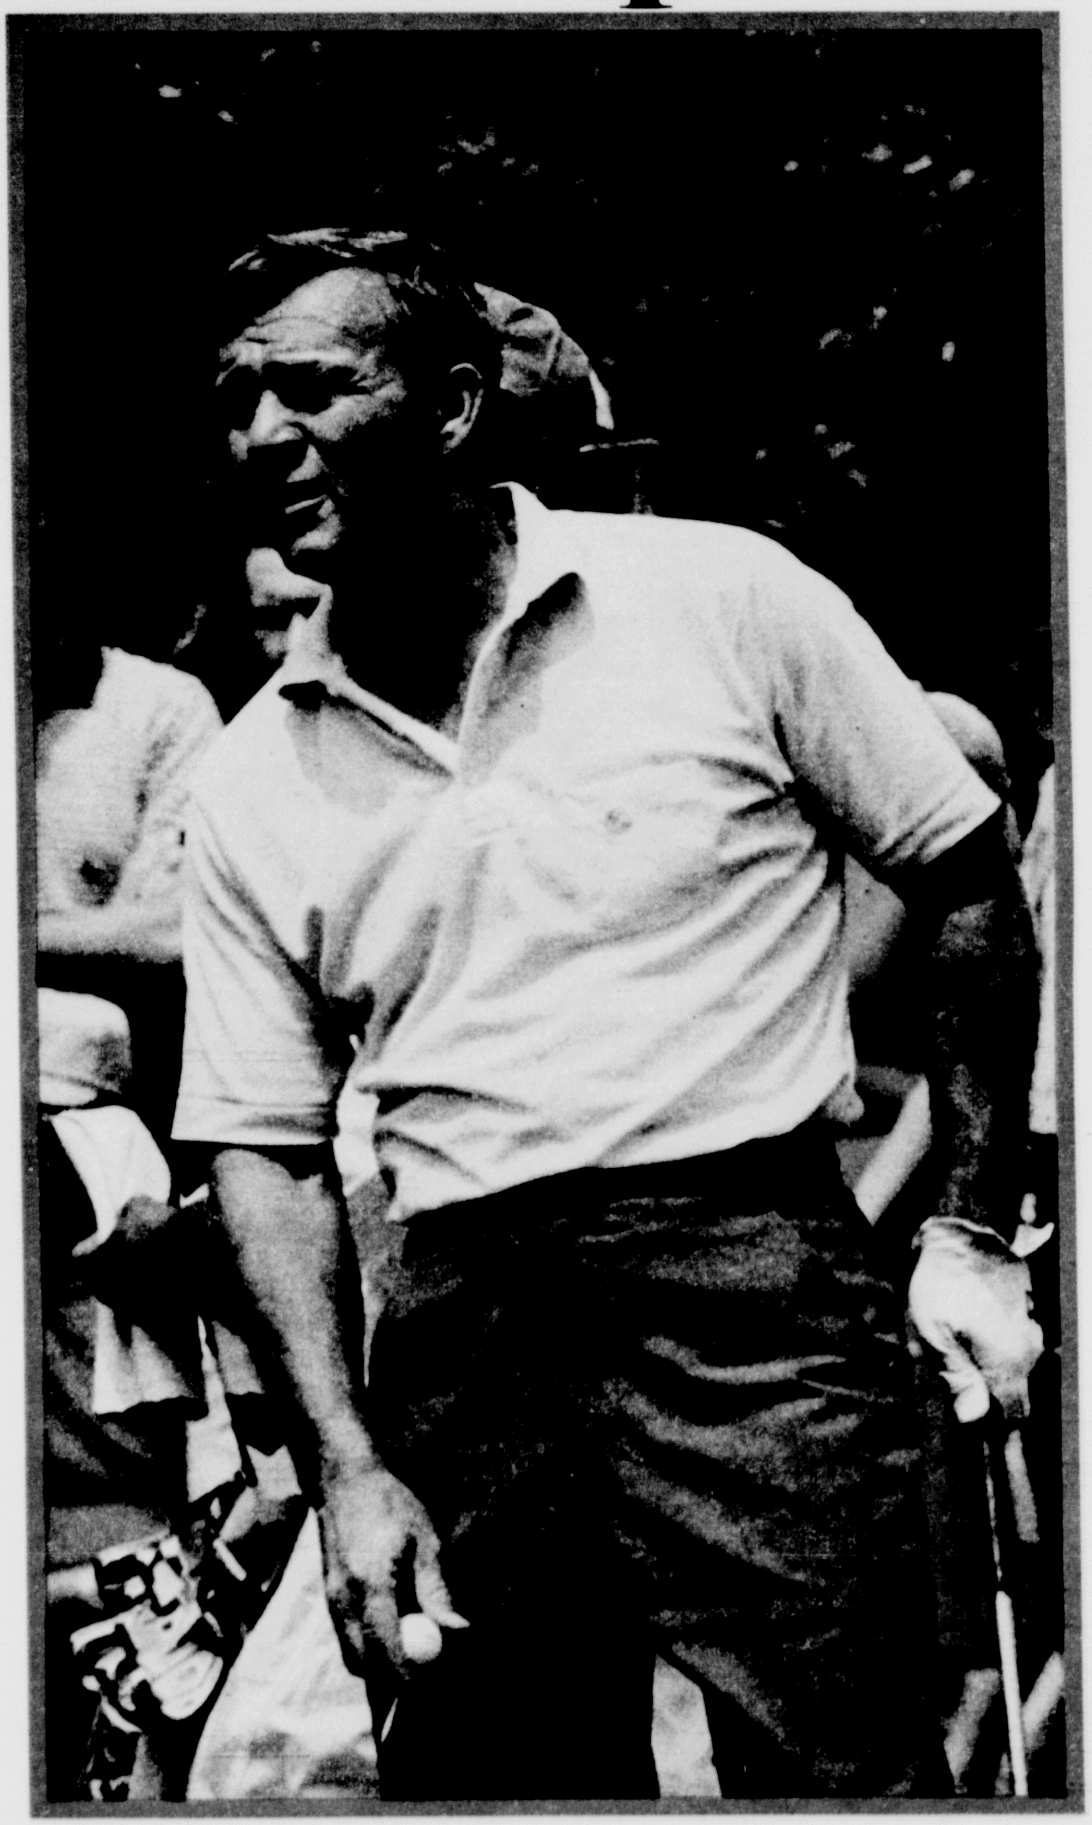
The Rich Men of American Sports

"When I came up to the majors, the guys sat around reading 'The Sporting News.' Now they read 'The Wall Street Journal.' "
—Whitey Ford, ex-Yankee

In today's sports-mad world, the heroes of our playing fields and arenas have become spectacular money-makers, breaking banks all over the map as they cash in on adulation. FAMILY WEEKLY has talked with a number of leading experts on the financial lives of the really wealthy sports figures to determine which athletes derive the largest annual incomes and which sports offer the biggest rewards for excellence. The result is this "Who's Who of the Sports Dollar," from Arnold Palmer to A. J. Foyt. The actual dollar amounts mentioned here are in most cases the educated guesses of the experts we consulted. "It would take a team of accountants most of a day to figure out exactly what these men are worth," says one of these spokesmen on sports money matters.



Arnold Palmer: His company grossed $55 million last year.

ARNOLD PALMER, Golf

(Estimated Net Worth: $20 million)

Arnold Palmer was golf's first millionaire and evidently is the richest active athlete. The 43-year-old native of Latrobe, Pa., is kingpin of the largest business conglomerate ever operated by an athlete. It is said that

Nicklaus: An Income Estimated at $1 Million

Wide World

Jack Nicklaus' conglomerate embraces some 30 ventures.

JACK NICKLAUS, Golf

(Estimated Net Worth: $15 million)

Since Jack Nicklaus lost that surplus weight in the past couple of years, all he seems to gain is income. In 1971 and 1972, in addition to earning record totals of prize money on the PGA tour, Nicklaus has considerably expanded his business ventures, with the assistance of Mark McCormack.

It is believed that Jack draws an annual income from all sources of close to $1 million. The diversity of profitable payoffs available to successful athletes is well illustrated by the empire already under Nicklaus' control. Jack's Golden Bear Enterprises is a conglomerate of some 30 ventures Nicklaus operates with his partner, Putnam Pierman. Through this network, the big golfer, a graduate of Ohio State, designs and endorses clothes (shoes, hats, shirts) that bear his name on the label; promotes a power lawn mower, fishing gear and airline tours; serves as goodwill ambassador for a major car manufacturer; appears on TV commercials; and seeks customers for a printing business.

Of course, Nicklaus also derives vast amounts from golf-related business. He designs golf courses, clubs and bags, and writes instructional films on the sport.

He even puts out a business newsletter and holds annual meetings for representatives of his affiliated companies at his Palm Beach home.

In 1971, the 33-year-old pro became the first golfer to accumulate more than $200,000 in prize money in one year, when he totaled $244,490. Last year he won seven tournaments and broke through the $300,000 barrier with $320,542.

Willie Shoemaker: Texas oilman and Arizona rancher.

WILLIE SHOEMAKER, Thoroughbred Racing

(Estimated Net Worth: $10 million)

Willie Shoemaker is probably the littlest millionaire in sports —he stands 4 feet, 11 inches and weighs 100 pounds. But he has developed one of the largest fortunes of any athlete because of his prowess in piloting thoroughbreds across the finish lines of tracks from coast to coast. Now in his 25th year as a jockey, "The Shoe" entered 1973 with 6,439 winning rides, more than any other rider in history. Willie's mounts have earned the astonishing total of nearly $50 million for their owners. Based on the standard ten percent fee that usually goes to the winning jockey in a race, this means that Willie has taken in about $5 million just from the track.

Despite some injuries in the late sixties, the 42-year-old Texan has seen no reason to retire. He has come back strongly from his layoffs, piloting his mounts to purses of well over $2 million in each of the past three years, including more than $2.5 million in 1972. Willie has led all jockeys in money earned a record ten times, reaching a personal high of $300,000 in 1967. Shoemaker, like many of the owners who hire him to ride their horses, is a conglomerate off the track too. He owns oil wells in Texas, a 33,000-acre ranch in Arizona, and a restaurant.

In a Title Bout, $55,555 a Minute!

Wide World

MUHAMMAD ALI, Boxing
(Estimated Net Worth: $8 million)

One of the most controversial figures in all of sports history, Muhammad Ali ascended to the world heavyweight boxing championship as Cassius Clay back in 1964, when he stopped Sonny Liston in the seventh round of their bout in Miami Beach. The heavyweight title is one of the most valuable prizes in sports, because of the potential income from championship matches to come. For example, Ali's share of the purse when he fought Liston in Miami Beach, including percentages of the box office, closed-circuit TV, radio, etc., was $360,000. When, as defending champion, Ali defeated Liston for the second time in 1965, his share was $480,657.

The title fight between Ali and Joe Frazier in New York on March 8, 1971, was the most lucrative sports event of all time for the participants. Each fighter was guaranteed $2.5 million. The bout, which Frazier won, lasted all 15 rounds. At three minutes a round, this came out to $55,555.56 a minute for each fighter.

Ali has earned considerable outside money for commercials and personal appearances. He and his family make their home in a lavish mansion-type setting in the Cherry Hill section of New Jersey, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Who's Worth More—an Athlete or a President?

In 1930, the New York Yankees created a worldwide sensation when they paid the great Babe Ruth a salary of $80,000. With the country plunged in deep economic depression, it seemed unconscionable to many people that a baseball player could earn such a wage.

"Do you realize that's more than President Hoover is making?" somebody asked the Babe one day. Ruth shrugged his shoulders and replied, "Yeah, well, I had a better year than he did."

KAREEM ABDUL-JABBAR, Basketball
(Biggest Rookie's Contract: $1.4 million)

Formerly known as Lew Alcindor, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is the towering center of the Milwaukee Bucks. When he graduated from UCLA in 1969, after leading the Bruins to three consecutive national college championships, he was the object of the most concentrated efforts ever made to sign a new professional player. The New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, representing his hometown, reportedly offered Kareem a contract worth $1 million. Milwaukee signed him for $1.4 million.

In two of his first three seasons in the NBA, Abdul-Jabbar, whose Islamic name means "generous and powerful servant of Allah," was named the Most Valuable Player in the league. He led Milwaukee to the NBA championship in 1971. After his third season, he signed a new contract for three years, reportedly worth more than $1.5 million. Kareem owns homes in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., in addition to one in a Milwaukee suburb, where he and his wife and daughter live during the basketball season.

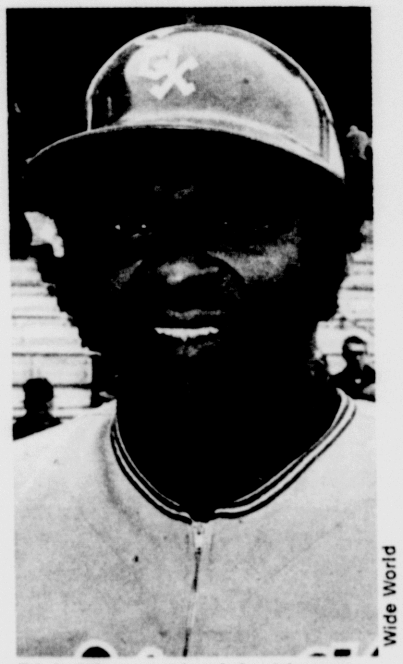
DICK ALLEN, Baseball
(Fattest Baseball Contract: $675,000)

After playing for four different major-league teams in as many seasons, slugger Dick Allen has found a home at first base for the Chicago White Sox. Last year, Allen nearly took a White Sox team, one that had been called an also-ran before the season, to the American League's Western Division championship. The team was in first place as late as August 28. He ended his first American League season by leading the league in home runs with 37, in RBI's with 113; and he finished third in the batting race at .308.



Wide World

Dick Allen received the biggest contract that was ever awarded a baseball player.

For this brilliant performance, which also included 28 doubles, 19 stolen bases and a league-leading fielding average among first basemen, Dick was not only named the Most Valuable Player in the American League, he also was given the biggest contract ever awarded a baseball player. Allen is receiving approximately $675,000 for three seasons, including this one, or about $225,000 per year. Other high salaries in Which Sports Yield The Biggest Cash?

Put a golf club in your boy's hands! Or, if he insists on being part of a team, see that he takes up basketball.

These are the conclusions to be drawn from conversations with Boston attorney Robert G. Woolf and investment expert Richard Alford of the giant International Management Group in Cleveland. They specialize in athletes' business interests.

"Because of the competition between the NBA and ABA," says Woolf, "pro basketball players are earning an average of $72,000 a year. In the pros this past season, there were 54 players with salaries of at least $100,000, and by next season there might well be about 65 in that class."

But in the potential for riches, team sports take a back seat to individual sports such as golf and automobile racing. For one thing, athletes in individual sports seem to have a greater capacity for generating outside sources of income. "Team athletes are more restricted by their schedules than individual athletes," explains one business manager. "They are not as free to make appearances around the country. Also, an individual athlete is more easily identifiable to the public than most athletes in team sports."

Sixteen golfers earned more than $100,000 in tour prizes in 1972, but most supplemented their income tremendously with endorsements of clubs and other products. There were several auto racers in the $500,000 class last year, with stock-car stars Richard Petty and Bobby Allison joining Mark Donohue, Peter Revson, Jackie Stewart and A. J. Foyt.

Foyt: The First to Top a Million baseball are being earned by Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox, Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Willie Mays of the New York Mets, Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals. Aaron supposedly is the only player besides Allen in the $200,000-salary class.

When he was with the Phillies, Allen had a clause in his contract that placed his mother on the team's payroll. Apparently, he doesn't need clauses like that any more.

A. J. FOYT, Auto Racing
(Estimated Net Worth: $7 million)

A. J. Foyt, the only active driver who has won the Indianapolis 500 three times (1961, 1964 and 1967), was the first American racer to earn more than $1 million in prize money. Five times national champion of the U.S. Auto Club, Foyt now has exceeded the million-dollar mark in USAC purses alone, driving in every type of competition possible—championship cars, stock cars, midgets and sprints. Foyt also has won more than $275,000 on the NASCAR Grand National circuit. His 43 championship car victories for USAC through 1972 represent history's biggest total by a single driver.

Foyt became a major attraction in racing in 1961, the year he won the Indy 500 for the first time, and he has been reaping the harvest ever since. He has commanded more money in endorsements, guarantees, promotions and tie-ins with parts manufacturers than any other driver. His annual income from outside sources is said to exceed $250,000, and may be much higher. He has a car agency in his hometown of Houston. He designs and builds his own cars, and maintains lucrative ties with a major tire company and a long list of sponsors.

Though he is one of the wealthiest men in sports, A. J. is so devoted to racing that he has been known to pass up a $1,500 speaking engagement to run a race whose top prize was $600.

Wilt Chamberlain's super-mansion cost a cool $1.5 million.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN, Basketball
(Estimated Net Worth: $3 million)

For the past 14 years, basketball great Wilt Chamberlain has commanded one of the largest salaries in sports. But his earning power has been magnified considerably since he joined the Los Angeles Lakers in 1968. His yearly salary for playing basketball has been well in excess of $250,000 since that time, and has been reported as high as $400,000.

Chamberlain, a 7-1 center who has scored more points and taken down more rebounds than any other pro basketball player, is a bachelor who occupies what must be the most opulent pad in the country. Nestled in the hills outside Los Angeles, it is a five-story residence that is entered through a 14-foot-high front door. The bedroom, with a bed that measures 72 square feet, takes up the entire second floor of the house. The house cost Wilt a reported $1.5 million.

Wilt adds to his basketball income by doing commercials for cars, castor oil and clothes. He also invests in office buildings.

But the owners of the 11 other WHA teams joined with Ben Hatskin, owner of the Winnipeg club, in awarding Hull a $3.5 million contract, starting off with a bonus of $1 million.

championship cars, stock cars, midgets and sprints. Foyt also has won more than $275,000 on the NASCAR Grand National circuit. His 43 championship car victories for USAC through 1972 represent history's biggest total by a single driver.

Foyt became a major attraction in racing in 1961, the year he won the Indy 500 for the first time, and he has been reaping the harvest ever since. He has commanded more money in endorsements, guarantees, promotions and tie-ins with parts manufacturers than any other driver. His annual income from outside sources is said to exceed $250,000, and may be much higher. He has a car agency in his hometown of Houston. He designs and builds his own cars, and maintains lucrative ties with a major tire company and a long list of sponsors.

sons, Hull was a rarity in the sport—a $100,000-a-year performer. He signed a four-year contract for $400,000 with Chicago in 1968, then balked at playing when tax benefits that had been promised him were not forthcoming. His differences with the Black Hawks were quickly resolved.

The Blond Bomber of hockey has used a lot of the money from his new contract to enlarge his ranch and land holdings in and near his hometown of Point Anne, Ontario. During his years as a star with the Black Hawks, Bobby built up a cattle enterprise of four ranches. He is one of Canada's major cattle owners, specializing in polled Herefords, and is a heavy land investor. Hull also makes money on hockey equipment and personal appearances.

As his nickname, "Rocket" implies, Rod Laver was the first tennis player to rocket into the million-dollar athlete class. The Australian redhead has been a professional since 1963, and in his first ten years as a pro, he earned purses approaching $1.5 million.

Laver is fortunate to be competing in an era when open play—competition between pros and amateurs—is dominant, and when pro tennis stars have the capacity to earn as much as pros in other sports. Open tennis became a reality in 1968. The next year Laver captured the Grand Slam, winning the Wimbledon, the French, the Australian and the U.S. championships—"amateur" tournaments for which he previously had been ineligible.

In 1970 and 1971 southpaw Rod established prize-money records for tennis, winning $210,453 and $292,717 respectively. Add to that endorsements for tennis racquets and other products arranged for him by Mark McCormack, and you can figure that Laver earned well in excess of $300,000 in each year.

JOE NAMATH, Football
(Estimated Yearly Income: Over $500,000)

The 1965 signing of Joe Namath by the New York Jets for a reported $427,000, including a bonus of $200,000 in deferred payments, touched off negotiations that led to the eventual merger of the National and American Football leagues five years later. Namath has been setting off sparks ever since. Despite the fact he missed most of the 1970 and 1971 seasons because of injuries, he was the center of controversy when he held out for a $500,000 contract covering the 1972 and 1973 campaigns.

Joe Namath: His TV commercials get top viewer response.

Joe's income from sources outside football has catapulted him into the company of the wealthiest sports stars. Three of the products he endorses on television—a chocolate drink, a shaving cream and a line of men's footwear—rank among the top 100 commercials in terms of viewer responses. Namath also appears in ads for a typewriter, for a line of menswear and for a popcorn-making machine.

Few athletes have enjoyed the kind of all-round achievement Namath has. He has had three starring roles in films, has conducted a syndicated television talk show, is a frequent guest on other TV programs, runs an instructional football camp for boys in the summer and owns three restaurants—in Boston, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Tuscaloosa, Ala. Joe, still a bachelor at 30, divides his time between a luxurious apartment on the East Side of New York and a residence in Miami.

Actually, mom was the one who bought it. But the whole thing was his idea.

What a chain saw! The Mini Mac 1 has a featherweight power unit (only 6.9 pounds) so that dad can really fly—through cutting firewood, limbing, pruning and building that patio furniture. Its 10-inch bar cuts a 6-inch log in just five seconds...and even zips through 20-inch logs.

And that price put a big smile on mom's face. She said: "When you can get a McCulloch for $99.95, why pay more?"

By T. K. Irwin

Butkus touts candy.

"When an athlete becomes a popular public figure," says Richard Alford, the low-keyed investment expert at International Management, "he is bombarded by wheeler-dealers who offer him investments in anything from a chicken farm to a piece of a racehorse or land in Rhodesia. Except in golf, the average star athlete has a high income for only a few years. We try to maximize his money while he's earning it so that he can retire with assets intact."

Some management companies receive a client's salary work out a budget for him, dole out spending money, pay his bills and taxes, do his bookkeeping. But their chief function generally lies in building up the athlete's fortune. The devices used take several forms:

Investments. Besides amassing a portfolio of stocks and bonds, the athlete's money is often put into real estate. Most popular are income-producing apartment buildings, sometimes shopping centers. For long-term gains, raw land seems to hold high appeal. Twenty athletes have invested in about a million acres in Australia, while others have bought land in the Canary Islands, New Zealand and South Africa. Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals paid $5,000 for acreage outside St. Louis, then sold it for $25,000.

Tax Shelters. Once a player gets into a high-income bracket (at least 44 percent), money managers find legitimate ways to reduce tax bites or defer income. Oil-drilling and exploring operations, though risky, may give the athlete a sizable write-off. He may go in for cattle or mink breeding and real estate with accelerated depreciation followed by a steady income flow. Many superstars shovel most of their income into tax-exempt pension funds and profit-sharing plans.

Business Ventures. Dick Butkus has his own candy bar, "Super-crunch"; Arnold Palmer has a chain of dry-cleaning centers; Rod Laver has a line of racquets. All kinds of restaurants and franchised businesses bear athletes' names. Johnny Unitas, former Baltimore Colt quarterback, invested in a chain of bowling alleys, a motel and a seafood supply company.

Appearances and Endorsements. For showing up at a company's gala event, Arnold Palmer may get as much as $10,000. On television, Lee Trevino conveys a sporty image to Bayer Aspirin. Racing champions are paid well for endorsing tires, sunglasses or gasoline. Tennis headliners put on exhibitions and clinics.

More Bonanzas. Instructional books and autobiographies have been written by (or for) golfers Doug Sanders, Nicklaus and Palmer, by football, hockey, baseball, basketball and tennis stars. A best seller can bring in $100,000 or more.

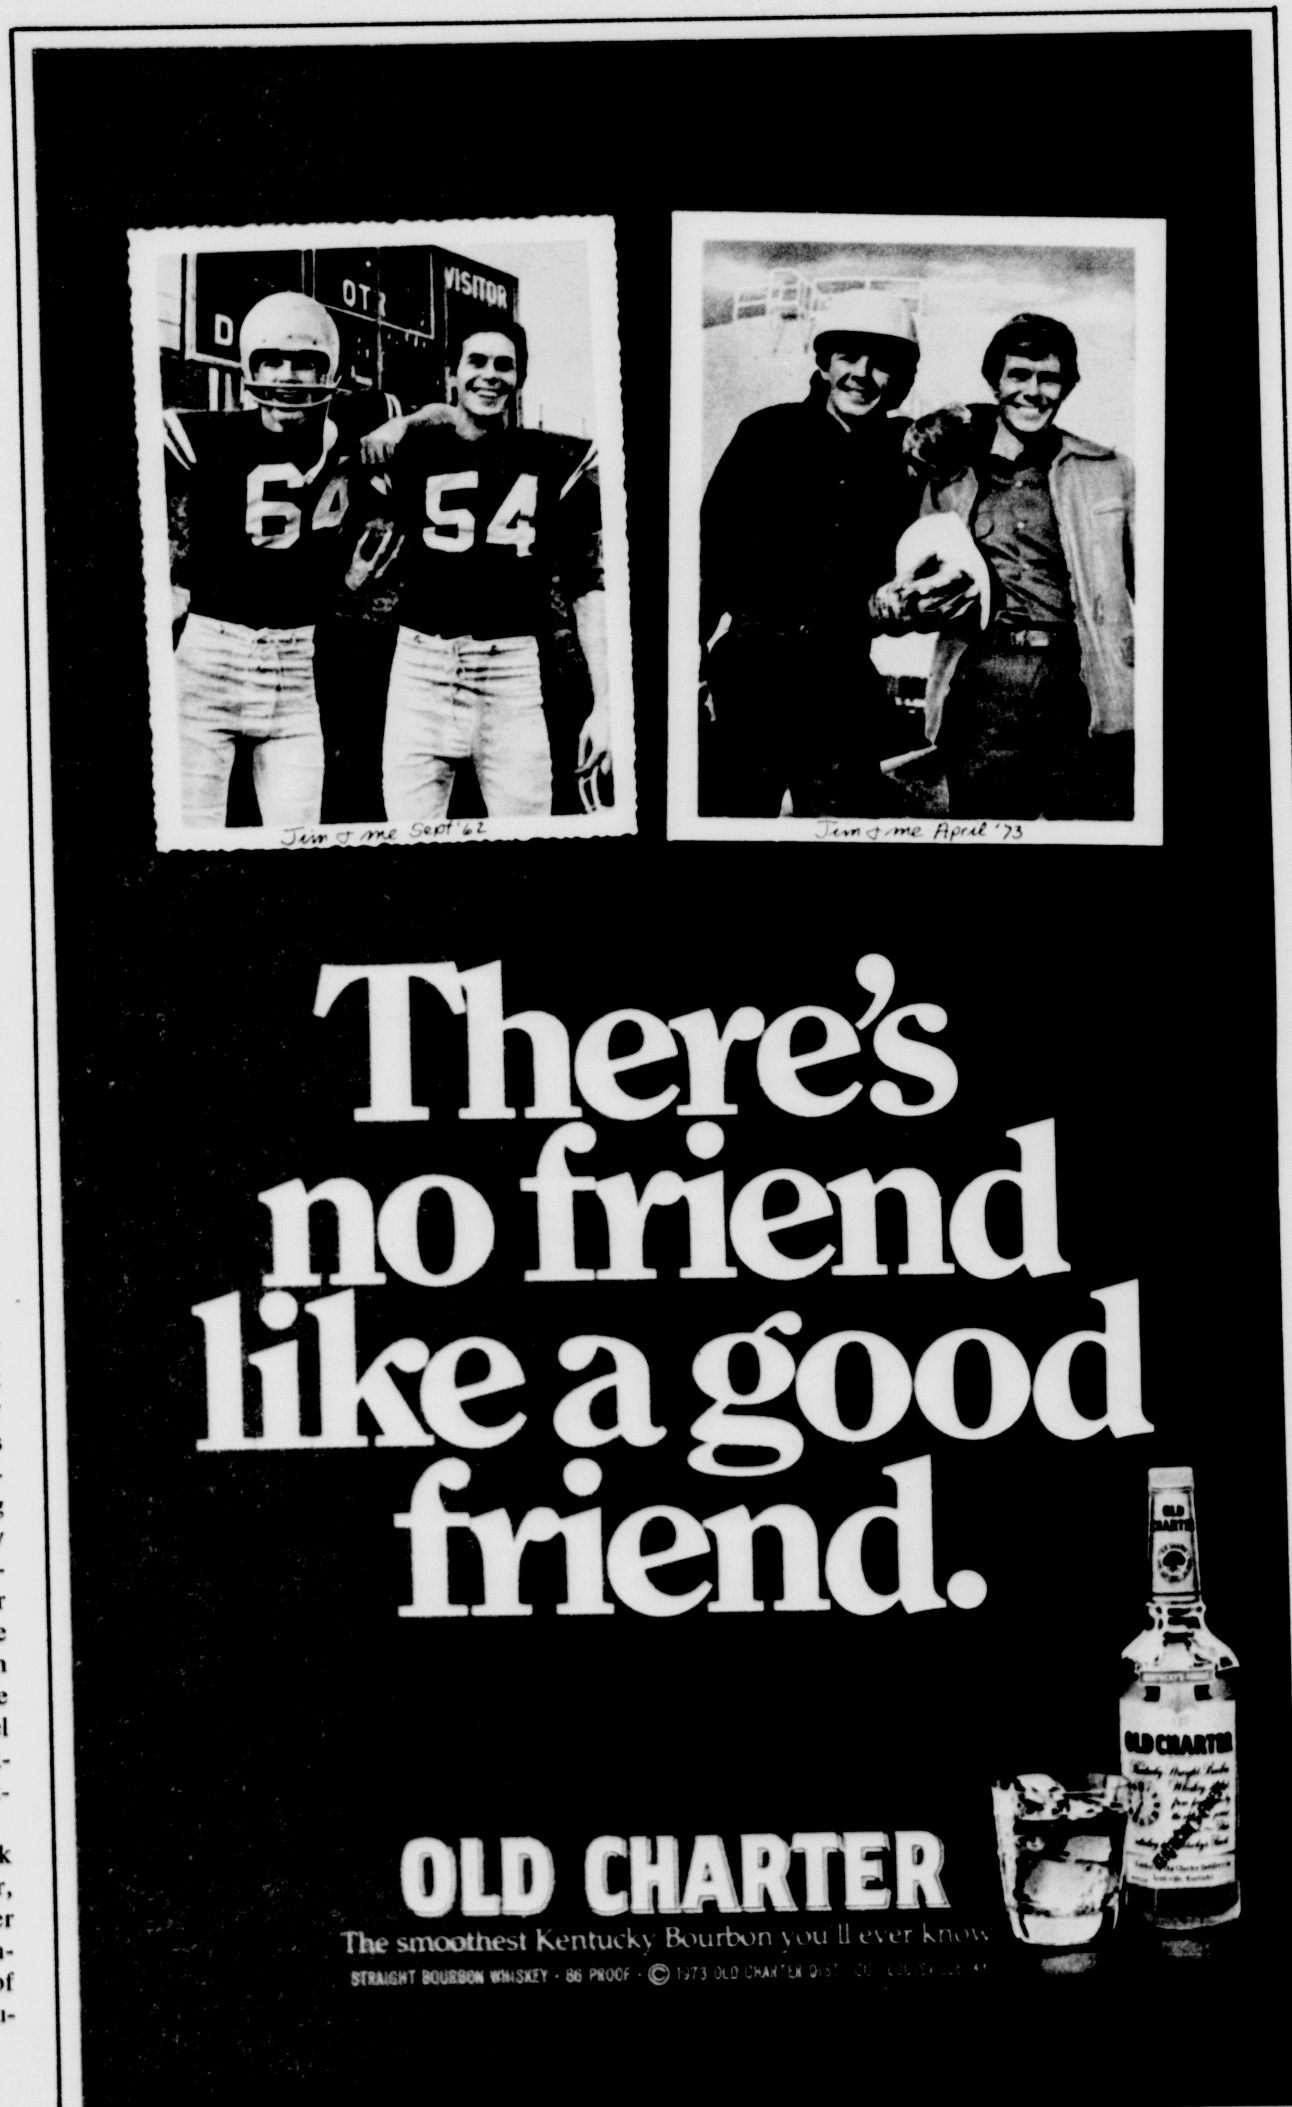
Car racer Jackie Stewart, featured in an award-winning documentary film, has a big share of a new movie in which he will play the leading role. Dick Butkus and John Havlicek, among others, have done films that net them each about $25,000 a year. Jean-Claude Killy appeared in a series of 22 TV films for CBS.

Blue-chip corporations have jumped on the sports bandwagon with bundles of prize money. In one recent two-month period, pro golfers competed for $1 million in prizes, most of it put up by corporate sponsors. Among them were Liggett & Myers with $250,000, and U.S. Industries with $200,000. Other large money awards are offered in tennis, car racing, bowling, skiing, even hot-air ballooning.

Salaries keep soaring. Even in baseball, which seems to produce few if any known millionaire players, the largest wage in the pastime's history—$225,000 a year—was lavished in February on slugger Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox.

Unfortunately, what happens to the superstars' piled-up pelf is not always a happy story. Some promising ventures turn sour. Joe Namath lost out on his much ballyhooed fast-food chain, "Broadway Joe's," and again on a temporary-help agency fronted jointly with Mickey Mantle. One New York Knick went bankrupt after his restaurant chain starved.

Now our affluent athletes, no longer behaving like traditional "dumb jocks," have become sophisticated, more cautious in feathering their nests, and concerned about their future security. Meanwhile, throughout the dollar-oriented professional sports world, locker-room chatter keeps focusing on business deals and tax shelters as the superstars' bank accounts mount up merrily.



SAVES UP TO 2 GALLONS OF GAS EVERY HOUR!

And Gives You Up To 25% More Horsepower Doing It!

How? By eliminating "Fuel-Pump Slop-Over"! And thus feeding your car up to 25% LESS gas (as much as two gallons an hour in heavy stop-and-go driving) . . . at the same exact time that it gives you up to 25% MORE Horsepower doing it! Like this . . .

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO YOU? Just this—

- Up to 8 miles MORE per gallon—INSTANTLY!
- Jackrabbit starts—INSTANTLY!
- Skyrocket passing power—INSTANTLY!
- Up to 10 miles more per hour top speed—INSTANTLY!
- And up to $100 a year savings on your repair bills alone—INSTANTLY . . . and for as long as you drive that car!

What does it cost you? Less than a new set of spark plugs! Less than five cents for every dollar you can save on gas bills THIS YEAR ALONE!

And how does it work? As simple as this—

Stops Your Fuel-Pump From Over-Feeding Your Engine One Minute . . . And Starving It The Next!

Your car, like every other car, stores its gasoline in a gas tank . . . and then draws that gas out of that tank and feeds it to your engine with a fuel pump. This fuel pump was invented over fifty years ago! It is a mechanical idiot! It has no brain—just a pump! And therefore, it always feeds your engine THE SAME EXACT AMOUNT OF GASOLINE, whether you're stopped dead in traffic . . . or spurting past another car at eighty mile an hour!

Think about it for a moment! The way gas is fed into your engine today, when you're pulled up for a light your engine is being flooded with gas that it can't possibly burn! (That's why stop-and-go driving is so incredibly expensive—because most of your gas goes right out the tailpipe.) Then when you pick up speed again to turn onto a highway, your engine is still wasting a little less gas at 20 miles an hour . . . wasting a little less gas at 30 miles an hour . . . and finally getting just the right amount of gas for top performance at about 40 or 50 miles an hour!

And then, if you go over 50 miles an hour . . . if you really want to zoom away at 60, 70 or 80 . . . or if you need "instant-muscle" to flash away from another car on a curve . . . then your "idiot fuel pump" STILL gives you the same exact amount of gas it fed you when you were going 40 miles an hour LESS—and leaves you puffing and puffing with your neck stuck out, as though that car was 20 years old and carrying a ton of cement!

IT COULD COST YOU YOUR LIFE ON A BAD CURVE! IT DOES COST YOU UP TO $100 A YEAR ON WASTED GAS ALONE! AND IT CAN ALL BE CORRECTED— IN JUST FIVE MINUTES WITH A SCREWDRIVER—LIKE THIS . . .

Now, just picture the startling difference with this ED ALMQUIST MINI-INJECTOR on your engine—

As you can see by the photo above, the MINI-INJECTOR is small enough to hold in your hand. It slips right on to your engine, between the fuel pump and the carburetor. A 12-year-old boy can put it on perfectly, using nothing more than a screwdriver, even if he never opened the hood before. But once he's done . . . and once you switch on that engine again . . . you're going to HEAR the difference—and FEEL the difference—from the very first second that engine ROARS to life again.

Yes! ROARS to life again! Because this is a NEW TYPE OF ENGINE you're driving with from now on! An engine that operates at absolute top gas-power every single driving second! THAT DOESN'T GET ONE DROP OF GAS IT DOESN'T NEED . . . AND DOESN'T WASTE ONE OUNCE OF POWER THAT IT CAN DELIVER TO YOUR WHEELS!

And this fact shows up for you the instant you start your car! Because—even on freezing mornings—your key is hardly in the switch before that engine is purring with power! Why? Because now there's no gas-flood at all. The walls of that cold engine aren't being choked up with raw gas that keeps the spark from catching fire . . . and that then drains out into your tailpipe, exactly as though you poured it right on the ground!

Now at this time—YOUR ENGINE ITSELF SIGNALS TO THE MINI-INJECTOR EXACTLY HOW MUCH GAS IT NEEDS TO START! And the MINI-INJECTOR tells the fuel pump to deliver JUST THAT AMOUNT OF GAS, AND NOT ONE DROP MORE!

You're off in less time than it takes a second passenger to close the door! And you're about to take the most thrilling ride of your entire driving life!

You Would Never Have Believed That Your Engine Could Deliver Power Like This! AND ALL AT A SAVING OF ONE GALLON OUT OF EVERY FIVE!

Now pull into the street and start cruising up to the first traffic light. You'll notice instantly that your foot sits lighter on the pedal . . . that your engine sounds silken-smooth . . . that it's practically floating up to that light, even though it was stone-cold only a few short seconds ago.

There's no coughing, or stalling or bucking—even in those first few cold minutes. And when you pull up to the light, and put your foot on the brake, your engine will tone right down to a contented purr. It will be quieter than you've ever heard it before, without the slightest shiver in the rest of the car itself. Because now that engine is NOT trying to spit out excess gas! Not trying to jerk away from your brake! NOT letting you know every waiting second that you're pouring money out of its tailpipe!

Now the light changes to green. Wait a second, and then carefully place your foot back on the gas pedal. Make sure to give it LESS pressure—THIS TIME—than you ever did before! BECAUSE THAT FOOT IS GOING TO GIVE YOU MORE BLAST-OFF POWER FROM THAT CAR THAN YOU'VE EVER KNOWN BEFORE! AND YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE TO SPEND A DAY OR TWO GETTING USED TO IT!

Prove It At The Lights! Prove It On The Hills! PROVE IT ON THE HIGHWAY— BY FLOATING RIGHT PAST OTHER CARS WHEN YOU WANT TO!

From that moment on, driving becomes a totally new experience for you! Because your car suddenly acts like an athlete—instead of a fat overfed fool!

Now you're not fouling that car with too much gas 80 per cent of the time! Now you're not splashing your plugs . . . eating away your valves . . . corroding your cylinders . . . or draining power out of your engine for every mile you drive!

Now, instead, for perhaps the first time in your life, you are sitting behind the kind of lean, tough, instant-response engine that only sports-car drivers knew before! An engine that flattens hills right down at the merest touch of your foot! That takes off screaming at the lights whenever you want to . . . leaves other cars sitting behind you, choking in your dust!

An engine that simply glides past other cars at 70 . . . 80 . . . 90 miles an hour—whenever you want to walk away from them! And that has so much reserve power left that you KNOW that there's no jam you can get into on the highway that it can't zoom you right out of at the lightest touch of your foot!

And—most important of all—STILL USING EVERY THRILL-PACKED SECOND ONLY THE EXACT AMOUNT OF GAS THAT IT NEEDS AT THAT INSTANT—AND NOT ONE SINGLE DROP MORE! So that the gas savings pile up—day after day . . . week after week . . . month after month! Till you've put a $20 bill back in your pocket . . . a $50 bill back in your pocket . . . a $100 bill back in your pocket—all from a simple little "engine-brain" that costs you originally less than a single set of spark plugs!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS!

Here's how it saves you up to one gallon out of every five—at the same time that it gives you the most power-packed ride of your life!

Think of this MINI-INJECTOR as having two main parts. The first is a "Miniature brain." And the second is an extra fuel pump connected right on to the brain.

Now, what happens when you put this MINI-INJECTOR onto your car is this: The miniature brain automatically senses the exact amount of gas your engine needs at every driving second (it does this by measuring the vacuum pressure within that engine from second to second).

Your fuel pump, on the other hand, has no such measuring device. So it never knows how much gas your engine really needs. So it simply delivers the same amount of gas to that engine, no matter how hard, or how easy that engine is working!

But now MINI-INJECTOR Takes over! And if your fuel pump is delivering TOO MUCH gas to that engine, MINI-INJECTOR blocks that extra gas with its own fuel pump—sends it back and holds it under compression until your carburetor calls for more gas!

Or, when your fuel pump is delivering TOO LITTLE gas to your engine (for example, when it's a life-or-death case of passing another car on a curve), MINI-INJECTOR skyrockets its own fuel pump into action, and shoots in that extra gas your engine needs. THE VERY SECOND IT NEEDS IT!

So you save the money you want—and you get the power you need—EVERY MINUTE YOU DRIVE!

Prove Every Word Of It At Our Risk! Far More Power On Far Less Gas From The Very First Second—Or We Send Every Cent Of Your Money Back!

And what's the cost for all this performance and all these savings? Only $11.98 complete—less than this MINI-INJECTOR can save you in your very first month!

And you try it entirely at our risk! Just slip it on, and measure the results! Either you're thrilled from the very first take-off—or every cent of your money back!

No ifs, ands or buts! It works for YOU, or it costs you nothing! Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . today!

How About A Lively Game of "TEGWAR"?

(The New Mod Card Game for People Who Don't Believe in Rules)

HUMOR

By Phil Foster
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

I bet you 50 cents that your first card game was Old Maid or Fish. From there you moved to bigger and better things, even a little penny blackjack, right? Now of course you've hit the big time, poker (where I come from, "bridge" is how you get to Brooklyn). But if you find yourself losing too much money or you're just bored with poker, try "TEGWAR," an original and challenging game created by author Mark Harris in his novel "Bang the Drum Slowly," which has now been made into a movie.

Now that you know where TEGWAR came from, I will secretly pass on to you the what of TEGWAR. Greater minds than ours will soon discover the why.

TEGWAR is a different game. The letters T-E-G-W-A-R stand for The Exciting Game Without Any Rules, and that is what it's all about. I am betraying a trust in explaining the game, and I'm certain that from now on I will become a marked man. But anyway, here goes . . .

First, to understand TEGWAR we must know the rules. Of course you have just read where there are no rules, so that is the first rule. Therefore:

Rule #1—There are no rules. This rule must be obeyed if there is to be a game.

Rule #2—Only four persons can play this game, unless there are two of you or three, or five, or six or whatever. One of these persons, who is known as "The Fish" but never called that, knows all the rules of card playing and must have confidence in himself as a man and TEGWAR player, even if he's never played before. The Fish begins by putting money on the table, keeping this up while other players or player or combination of the same add to, subtract from or equal the money The Fish keeps putting on the table while the same is done or abstained from by the players or person or people across the room. Any variance of this rule can cause a misdeal, except in the third match of the evening —which nullifies itself any hour before the 6 p.m. news, unless it's 10:45, in which case this rule still applies.

Rule #3—In the game itself, 12 cards are dealt out, two to each player except the player on the right who plays the discards. If in the dealing out of the two cards, a player can end the game in the following fashion by calling out "Fit 'n Fine" or "Red Rooster" (the highest count and perfect natural), both cards adding up to 15 is a perfect match or natural and this ends the game. Now the winner stays out while the other players play for the second best which can and usually does eliminate the original winner because he had no right to be there in the first place.

Rule #4—If a player has been losing all night long, the biggest winner is penalized and must give half of his winnings back to the loser, and in a head-to-head TEGWAR showdown the hands are dealt in rapid fashion and the black jack is the joker unless dealt in the previous round whereupon the Infallible? Yes! Always? No!

"He's a very nice man," said a tourist after an audience with Pope Paul, "but he's no more mistake-proof than I am." To a point, we would agree. It's funny, really, how many people, despite all our disclaimers, still think we believe the Pope can make no mistakes.

This isn't true. Infallibility doesn't mean the Pope can't be wrong about the date or the weather or the rate of exchange of the lira. Of course, he can. Who would ever dream of bringing t. ; special protection of the Holy Spirit to bear on these judgments? And even in more serious religious matters, the Pope's decisions are not always infallible. In fact, very specific conditions must exist for any papal infallible decision.

You may have heard differently. Well, sometimes in the heat of debate, irresponsible things are said. Will you do us the courtesy of listening to the real story, without debate, and without heat? We would like to tell you why we consider the papacy, not an evil, scheming institution, but an expression of God's love. Write today for our free pamphlet: "The Papacy, Expression of God's Love." "TEGWAR," Anybody?

Continued

Change of Seats Play comes into effect and the player without any is the first to sit, winning or losing, if the pot is full.

Rule #5—I would think so, but see section below to make sure.

Rule #6—At this time of the night all previous commentary is to be played out, dealers dealing from the bottom of the unused deck, face up and counterclockwise.

Rule #7—If a player is taller than the minimum, then a cover charge is to be added to the 7½ percent.

Rule #8—A change of partners can only occur when the rule applies to the situation calling for a change.

Rule #9—The first team or individual scoring 300 points or more has the first "beckett" or "knowlton" – 3 "knowltons" equal 1 (one) "beckett," which doesn't count in the final tally.

Rule #10 – Anyone caught cheating is to be penalized three "trydons," which can be deadly – especially if you're playing for money.

These are the basic rules in TEGWAR (advanced players will probably want to make up more), but you don't have to follow any of the rules because there are no rules in TEGWAR except the naturals and true love. Everybody should play TEGWAR, especially families who don't talk to one another. This will solidify the break. If there are any questions – that's good. It shows you have interest and a lively mind. Please make 15 copies of these rules and send them to friends. The first one who breaks the chain will hear from the others.

People and You

Happy News—Good Samaritans Are Still Around!

If you suddenly became ill while out shopping or needed help of some other kind from a stranger, what do you think your chances might be? While it is popular nowadays to say that people are becoming cold and distant, this idea may be greatly exaggerated. In recent experiments where people appeared to collapse on a subway, other travelers offered aid 95 percent of the time. Even simple problems like a torn grocery bag produced help from strangers. In one remarkable experiment where someone appeared to be having an epileptic seizure, he always received attention. You as a fellow human being in trouble are much more likely to create a sympathetic reaction than does an impersonal group. For example, a stranger noticing someone stealing from your pocket is very likely to notify you. But if he notices someone shoplifting, he may or may not report the theft. One very interesting discovery: Big city people's reputation for minding their own business comes not from hard hearts but from their belief that the big city has a trained specialist on call—an ambulance, a policeman, etc.—to care for the matter.

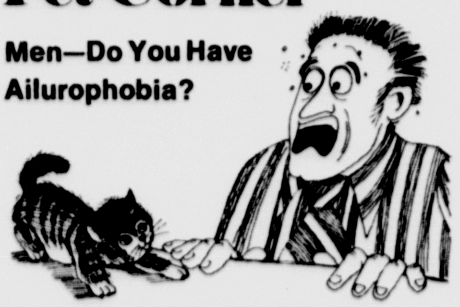
Men—Do You Have Ailurophobia?



Ailurophobia is a big word that simply means "morbid fear of cats." It is not to be confused with allergy to cats. The abnormal fear of anything feline—even as small an edition as a fuzzy kitten—is not as uncommon as one might think. It is reputed to be fifth among the common illogical fears for which psychotherapy is recommended. Oddly, men seem to be much more prone to ailurophobia than women. Alexander the Great, King Louis XIV and Napoleon were all ailurophobes. The exact cause is often mysterious; it may be one of several. Whatever the cause, desensitization takes patience but is not impossible. A simple expedient is for a person to hold a cat across the room from the patient. As soon as anxiety symptoms become unpleasant, the cat should be removed. Gradually the length of exposure is increased, and the distance between cat and patient decreased. Soon the patient is able to stand next to the cat, and finally to touch it. When he can hold the cat without anxiety, he is usually cured.—By Felicia Ames

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a rich Strawberry Cheesecake. Marilyn says: "June is Dairy Month — but it is also the season for strawberries. So I've paired them in this creamy cheesecake. Now some might say this is sort of expensive for just a dessert. And it is. But it is so irresistible, you owe it to yourself to try it. This recipe serves 12."

Smooth and Creamy Strawberry Cheesecake

STRAWBERRY CHEESECAKE

- 1 cup graham-cracker crumbs
- ¼ cup firmly packed light-brown sugar
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 5 pkgs. (8-oz. size) cream cheese, room temperature, softened
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
- ¼ cup milk
- 6 eggs, room temperature
- 2 pints fresh strawberries, washed and hulled
- ⅔ cup strawberry or red-currant jelly, melted
- 1 tablespoon kirsch or rum

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. In medium bowl, toss graham-cracker crumbs, brown sugar, butter and nutmeg together. Press mixture onto bottom of 9-inch spring-form pan. Bake for 10 minutes. Cool in pan on rack.

2. Make filling: Preheat oven to 500°F. In large bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat together cream cheese and sugar until light and fluffy.

3. Blend in flour, vanilla, orange rind and milk until mixture is smooth. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Pour mixture over baked crumb crust in pan. Bake in preheated oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 250°F. Bake 1 hour longer.

5. Leave cake in oven, with heat turned off and door shut, about 20 minutes. Remove from oven.

6. Cool on rack until room temperature, then refrigerate cake 3 hours or longer.

7. Prepare strawberry topping: Slice enough dry strawberries to garnish. Arrange sliced and whole strawberries on top of cake.

8. To glaze: Combine melted strawberry jelly and kirsch, cool slightly. Brush strawberries with glaze. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

This Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due to Infection.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting, named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Just see if doctor tested Preparation H doesn't help you. There's no other formula like it. Ointment or suppositories.

MARVIN AS MOVIE HOBO
Like the good old days?

In a new movie, "Emperor of the North Pole," Lee Marvin plays a hobo whose nemesis is a mean railroad man (Ernest Borgnine). Is this still the hobo's chief fear? "Naw, not anymore," says a real-life hobo named Boots, who was recently interviewed while trudging down a track. "I can remember when a brakeman wouldn't think nothin' of bashin' in your brains with one of those clubs they all carried. Nowadays, if you stay out of the yards, hardly nobody bothers you." And are there still cozy little hobo camps where men sit around eating beans from cans? "There used to be a 'jungle' at every junction. Now, there's hardly a one. You used to find ten or 15 guys, all of them glad to see you. Now you find one or two, and they're as friendly as rattlers. That's why most of us nowadays stay in missions."

CORALEE "NIBSIE" TOWNE
Ballet exercises for a swimmer?

What? Ballet exercises to keep a swimmer in shape? It works for Coralee "Nibsie" Towne, who isn't just any swimmer, and not just a champion at the sport, but a full-fledged mermaid! A competitive swimmer since she was 12, and Virginia's Amateur Athlete of the Year in 1965, Nibsie is part of a team of two dozen "mermaids" in the underwater show "Spring of Live Mermaids" at Weeki Wachee, Fla. She continually practices ballet routines on land so that she can perform her dramatic underwater roles.

QUOTE: Sen. Marlow Cook (R-Ky.), speaking of the Government's plan for passive restraint systems in automobiles manufactured after the summer of 1975: "Few people realize that the proposal to require installation of passive restraints also will completely remove the requirement for installation of seat belts in automobiles. We already know that seat belts are effective and we should keep them until it can be proved, beyond a doubt, that there is a device 100 percent as effective as seat belts. Seat belts impose no additional financial burden on motorists, whereas at the present time, the White House Office of Science and Technology reports passive restraints would add $370 to the price of a car." UNQUOTE.

DATES: The NCAA Outdoor Track Championships begin Thursday in Kansas City, Mo. The Belmont Stakes take place in New York and the Le Mans auto race takes place in France Saturday.
